$200,000,000 ISSUE OF BONDS TO HELP PROMOTE EXPORTS

War Finance Corporation Announces Its First Offering of Securities Tomorrow.

INTEREST RATE 5 PER CENT.

CREDITS NEEDED ABROAD

Sale to be Made Through the Federal Reserve Banks and Sub-Agencies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The War Finance Corporation announced tonight that it would issue $200,000,000 worth of 5 per cent bonds beginning on Wednesday of this week.

Nothing had been intimated previously regarding such an issue, and the announcement that the corporation would offer to the market bonds aggregating this large amount was made approximately twenty-four hours in advance of the offering of the securities for sale. It is the first bond issue offered for sale by the War Finance Corporation. The sale will be opened through the corporation's agents, the Federal Reserve Banks' and the subagent banks throughout the United States.

This sale of bonds is being made immediately ahead of that of Victory Loan bonds scheduled to open later in April and for which no interest rate has yet been fixed by Secretary Glass.

The main purpose of the two-hundred-million-dollar bond sale, it was authoritatively learned tonight by THE NEW YORK TIMES, although this purpose did not appear in the official announcement, is to obtain money to enable the War Finance Corporation to operate, under the amended act of Congress, in aiding the American export trade. The War Finance Corporation has lent $50,000,000 to the Director General of Railroads, and has made some loans to individual railroads, but the main purpose of the new loan is to obtain money to enable the corporation to help American exporters, as there is a probability that American credits abroad will be exhausted in a short time.

Bonds Bear 5 Per Cent. Interest.

The United States Government is the sole stockholder of the War Finance Corporation, and the Secretary of the Treasury is its Chairman. The final legal details with reference to the new issue were agreed upon in conference this afternoon between Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and counsel for the corporation. The circular offering the bonds for sale was sent out tonight by Eugene Myer, Jr., Managing Director of the corporation, being signed both by himself and by Secretary Glass.

The new bonds will be put out in denominations of $1,000, will be payable in one year, and will bear interest at 5 per cent. They will be exempt from State and local taxation and will also be exempt from taxation by the United States, with the exception that they will be subject to estate or inheritance taxes and to surtaxes and excess profits taxes now or hereafter imposed by the United States upon the income or profits of individuals or corporations. Another important tax exemption relating to these bonds is that the interest on $50,000 worth of them owned by any person will be entirely exempt from all income taxes, surtaxes, excess profits, or war profits taxes.

Balance Sheet Announced.

In announcing the bond sale the War Finance Corporation made public its general balance sheet as it stood on March 19, as follows:

Allied Guns Stop Red Attack in North Russian Battle

ARCHANGEL, March 30, (Associated Press.)—The Bolsheviki carried out an intensive bombardment of the American and British positions on both banks of the Dvina, in the Tulgas district, and at Kurgoman yesterday afternoon. At midnight a large number of the enemy infantry attempted to attack Kurgoman, but were repulsed by the allied artillery.

Numerous direct hits were reported during the course of the allied shelling of the village of Bolshoia Czera yesterday. An enemy plane which flew over the allied positions along the railway dropped propaganda but no bombs.

MANY LIVES LOST AT SHIP LAUNCHING

Scaffolding Gives Way, Throwing 150 Spectators Into Water —40 May Be Lost.

ONLY 4 BODIES RECOVERED

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, Penn., March 31.—A temporary scaffolding extending around the stern of a boat on the ways at the Merchants' Shipyards at Harriman, near here, collapsed this afternoon when nearly 150 persons were standing on it to view the launching of the freighter Waukau. At 7 o'clock tonight only four bodies had been recovered, and official estimates of the death toll varied from ten to forty.

Thousands had assembled to see the launching and eyewitnesses of the accident say that the scaffolding seemed to turn over like a giant turtle, precipitating its occupants into twenty-five feet of water. The accident happened four minutes before the launching was scheduled to take place.

Divers from Bristol and the Harriman police and firemen are grappling in the swift waters of the Delaware for the victims, but it is feared that many have been carried against the pilings of the ways and docks at the great shipyard and that the actual death toll may never be known.

At the Harriman Hospital it was said that preparations had been made to handle forty bodies, and it was asserted that officials expected the death toll to reach that number. Deputy Coroner Harvey Rue of Bristol, however, is of the opinion that not more than ten more victims are in the water. It will be impossible to check up the list of victims, as the crowd included spectators as well as workmen and there is no means of knowing how many were standing upon the scaffolding when it plunged into the water.

The scene of the accident was on No. 6 hull adjoining the ways where the Waukau was to be launched. Chased from other points of vantage by the guards, workmen and spectators crowded onto a plankway about five feet wide and extending around the stern of the hull. This scaffold was erected to permit the workmen to pass around the stern, without having to return to shore each time they passed from one side of the boat to another.

While workmen were sawing the keypiece on the Waukau, a shout of horror went up as the scaffolding gave way. An instant later the keypiece parted and the big hull slid down the ways, the suction, it is feared, drawing some of the victims down to the bottom of the river.

Every available craft, including the tugs which were on hand to make fast to the Waukau, rushed to the scene. Some of the victims, practically all of whom were men, managed to grasp the scaffolding and were pulled to safety. A sailor in the crowd of spectators jumped overboard and pulled two drowning men ashore.

Within a few moments all who were still on the surface were rescued and hurried to the Harriman Hospital in vehicles of all sorts. Divers were on the spot quickly and dove for bodies. The swift current and the piling hampered their work.

Officials of the Merchant Shipbuilding Company refused to be interviewed as to the cause of the accident. A strong guard of policemen kept every one from the shipyard, and anxious relatives of those who were known to be there, and who had not yet returned home, were unable to obtain any information.

It is the opinion of Coroner Rue that the great number of men who crowded on to the scaffolding overweighted it and caused it to tip over.

The four bodies recovered tonight were those of Rafael Doprito of 810 Dean Street, Brooklyn; Pasquale Maneine of Bristol; Alex Frazier of Bristol, and Nick Michoris of Bristol. All were employed at the shipyard.

STARTS INQUIRY ON JAPANESE DEAL FOR MEXICAN LAND

State Department Orders Embassy in Mexico to Investigate the Project.

CALLS FOR PROMPT REPORT

Agrees to Accept Washington Decision—Phelan Warns California Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—No time was lost by the State Department today in ordering an investigation of the report from Mexico City that General Amado Aguirre, Under Secretary of Development and Agriculture, had made the statement that the Mexican Government had granted concessions to Japanese corporations to exploit certain agricultural lands on the peninsula of Lower California.

Instructions have been sent to the American Embassy at Mexico City to make a most careful investigation of the report, which has aroused the deepest interest and concern in official and diplomatic circles in Washington, and notify the State Department of the facts promptly. At the same time, the department cabled to the embassy in Mexico City, it addressed a communication to the California-Mexico Land Company of Los Angeles, which has not yet replied to the department's previous note of two weeks ago. The former note was based on telegraphic advices to the Secretary of State from Senator Phelan of California that this American company was negotiating with Japanese financial interests for the sale to them of its properties in Lower California.

In response to inquiries Acting Secretary of State Phillips made the following statement this afternoon:

"The State Department has no official information on the subject of the concessions said to have been granted by the Mexican Government to Japanese corporations for the exploitation of agricultural lands in Lower California. The newspaper report published this morning is not clear on the subject, and the department has instructed the embassy at Mexico City to report the actual facts and circumstances in the case.

"Nothing appearing in Señor Aguirre's interview definitely identifies the concessions alleged to have been granted with any portion of the tract of the California-Mexico Land Company of Los Angeles."

Washington Keenly Concerned.

The State Department's keen concern over the report from Mexico City, emanating so soon as it did after the telegram received from Senator Phelan, was emphasized by the promptness with which action was taken to obtain the facts. Until the details are learned the Department will withhold action and make no formal comment by way of disclosure of the stand to be taken, but it is fully recognized here that the situation involved in the concessions may be loaded with diplomatic dynamite and for that reason great care is being taken in endeavoring to ascertain the facts quickly.

Should it develop that the Mexican Government has actually granted a concession to a Japanese syndicate for the exploitation of a large tract in Lower California, a peninsula which Senator Lodge and others regard as of the greatest strategic and military value in relation to the southwestern section of the United States, and that the particular tract involved, is a part of the land owned by the Americans interested in the California-Mexico Land Company of Los Angeles, the situation is apt to develop into a serious conflict of views between this country and Mexico, to say nothing of the potentialities of the issue respecting the relations between Japan and the United States.

The American Government has never recognized that the Carranza Government possesses any right to cancel or appropriate American rights or properties in Mexico, whether they be oil, mining, or agricultural properties, and if it should develop that the Mexican Government has granted or proposes to grant to Japanese corporations "concessions" to exploit lands the title to which belongs to American citizens, the differences between this Government and the Mexican Government over concessionary rights claimed by Americans in Mexico will be brought rapidly to a head.

Carranza Policy Rejected.

While the State Department, until officially so informed, does not assume that the lands involved in the announcement made by General Aguirre are part of the tract belonging to the California-Mexico Land Company, the wording of the Aguirre statement, though not clear, tends strongly to the assumption that he had reference to the lands of that company. The Aguirre statement mentions the "California and Mexican Land Company of Los Angeles," and this would be interpreted unofficially as a reference to the "California-Mexico Land Company of Los Angeles."

Still further ground is given for the unofficial belief here that General

LYONS, France, March 31.—Here is a wireless message which the French Government Radio Service picked up today. It was dated Moscow and was signed Tchitcherin, the name of the Minister for Foreign Affairs in the Bolshevist Government, and addressed to Bela Kun, head of the Hungarian Bolshevist Government at Budapest. The message read as follows:

"Beautiful riot in Philadelphia, which we are reliably informed was inspired by Bolsheviki. News in American papers reaches us that the States of New York, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, and Pennsylvania are impregnated with Bolshevism."

The message was in German.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—While there have been a number of minor disturbances, most of them as a result of strikes, and several bomb explosions in the city and other sections of Eastern Pennsylvania in recent months, nothing has been brought out in the official investigations tending to indicate that Bolsheviki had anything to do with them.

HUMBERT FACES SOLDIER JUDGES

PARIS, March 31.—The Humbert trial opened today before a court-martial in the Hall of the Seine Assizes at the Palais de Justice. It was the same big, oblong room with oak paneled walls and ceiling where Bolo Pasha was condemned to death by court-martial and Mme. Caillaux was acquitted by a civil jury.

Save for the blue horizon of uniforms of the Judges, prosecuting counsel, and clerks of the court there was but one sign that it was a military court. Right at the back, behind the seats of the witnesses and public, there was a file of eight soldiers with fixed bayonets, in the khaki uniforms of the Zouaves, who share with the Foreign Legion the glory of wearing red shoulder straps of the Legion of Honor. For the rest, it was the usual attendance of barristers and public—of the later fully half were women, though the fashionable element conspicuous in the Bolo case was almost wholly lacking.

Early in the proceedings, which consisted of the recital of a long list of about 200 witnesses—including such well-known names as Duball, Berthelot, Mangin, and Joffre's "Blue Devil" Aid de Camp Colonel Fabry—followed by the reading of a 300-page long report of Examining Magistrate Bouchardon, the President of the court conveyed the reminder that it was an army tribunal by the curt military sharpness with which he announced that witnesses must leave the court as their names were called and only be present while actually giving testimony.

As the clerk proceeded with Bouchardon's indictment, Humbert's demeanor was characteristic. He was sitting between Captain Georges Ladoux and Guillaume Desouches, who with Pierre Lenôir have been included in the charges against him, with which they are intimately connected. Humbert's strong, heavy face showed no signs of emotion. With his hands clasped firmly on the pew-like rail before him, he stared around defiantly. One realized that here was a very different defendant from the craven bluffer Bolo. Humbert will fight this case as he has fought throughout his life, raising himself from a dishwasher in a provincial café to be an influential Senator, famous journalist, President of the Army Commission, and very nearly War Minister of France.

Unless rumor lies, there are strong trumps in his hand which he will not hesitate to play. It has already been printed by Dhur, the former star writer of the Journal, that Humbert boasted, "They will not dare attack me. I hold Clemenceau in my power"; and he has been further credited with having had an extensive and elaborately organized "secret police" devoted to research of information that might enable him to bring pressure upon men of prominence.

Captain Ladoux, once powerful in the Espionage Bureau of the War Office, seemed miserable and ashamed as he sat there with head sunk forward on the breast of his sky-blue uniform.

As the case appears—despite the vast confusion of detail and number of witnesses—the basis of accusation is pretty simple. Humbert is accused of utilizing funds offered by the Lenoir-Desouches combination for the purchase of the Journal when he knew they came from a suspicious source, and indeed had actually checked earlier dealings of the same pair with the Journal pro-

LEA LED PARTY THAT TRIED TO KIDNAP KAISER

Plotters Planned to Rush Kaiser in Auto and Turn Him Over to Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Colonel Luke Lea, former United States Senator from Tennessee, commander of the 114th Field Artillery of the 30th Division—the "Old Hickory" Division of Carolinians and Tennesseans—who returned from France only a week ago in command of his men, is the American Colonel who led the party of American army officers who tried to kidnap the former German Kaiser last Winter.

The fact that Colonel Lea headed the kidnapping party was fully confirmed tonight by the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES from the lips of a Tennessee man who talked with Colonel Lea upon his arrival at Newport News, Va., in command of the 114th Field Artillery last Sunday, after that unit had arrived from St. Nazaire, France, on the transport Finland.

While current versions of the story printed last January in French, British, and American newspapers asserted that the attempt to kidnap the Kaiser was made on Jan. 5, Colonel Lea indicated to those to whom he spoke last Sunday that it really took place just before Christmas.

"What were you going to do with the Kaiser if your kidnapping project had succeeded?" Colonel Lea was asked by those to whom he admitted that he headed the party that went to the castle of Count von Bentinck, near Amerongen.

Xmas Gift to Wilson.

"We were going to give him a free ride to Paris in our automobile and present him to President Wilson as a Christmas gift."

This statement by Colonel Lea would indicate that the attempt was made just before Christmas, and it was intimated tonight that it took place about Dec. 21. From what was learned from the gentlemen who talked with Colonel Lea at Newport News there were fully a dozen officers and men of the American Army in the automobile party commanded by Colonel Lea that tried to obtain possession of the Kaiser.

They were armed with passports, which they had managed in some way to obtain and which enabled them to travel through Holland to the castle where the Kaiser was stopping. They got close enough to the presence of the Kaiser, Colonel Lea told close friends since his arrival in this country, to hear his voice, but were foiled through the sudden dispatch of Dutch guards from Amerongen to the castle, a contingency wholly unexpected and which forced the American officers to make a quick retirement in their military automobile to avoid arrest and possible internment by the Holland authorities, if not court-martial proceedings in the American Army, provided their identity should become known.

Fear of Court-Martial.

Colonel Lea did not desire to have the story of his escapade become known at the time. It is his intention to make a full public statement regarding all the details of the kidnapping attempt as soon as he is discharged from the United States Army.

The possibility that he might even yet have to face a court-martial for having crossed into Holland on such an expedition, and that those who were with him might be similarly dealt with, has been one of Colonel Lea's motives for extreme reticence in the matter. While in France he and those who were with him remained exceedingly quiet about the matter because they were in constant fear that they would be court-martialled.

Colonel Lea has expected that he would be discharged from the military service of the United States some time during the coming week along with the other members of the 114th Field Artillery Regiment, which he led back from France for demobilization. This regiment paraded today at Nashville, Tenn., and goes from there at once to Fort Oglethorpe, where it is scheduled to be demobilized during the next four or five days.

Immediately after his arrival at Newport News last Sunday Colonel Lea slipped up to Washington to visit his mother and sister who live here, and whom he wanted to see in connection with the recent death of his wife. It was not until the transport Finland was within three days of Newport News that Colonel Lea learned of his wife's death.

When the 114th Field Artillery arrived at Newport News there were a number of Tennessee newspaper men there to greet the regiment. In some manner word had quietly reached Tennessee that Colonel Lea commanded the Kaiser-kidnapping party, and those of the Tennessee newspaper men who were sent to New-

PARIS ASTIR WITH DIVERSE PEACE RUMORS; ONE SAYS BIG FOUR HAD VERY PLAIN TALK, CLEARING THE WAY FOR QUICK RESULTS

Our Force Abroad Is Still 1,400,000 Men; In Good Condition, but Only Want to Get Home

PARIS, March 31.—The possible use of troops in new theatres of action causes discussion of the number and quality of American soldiers available. It is estimated that we still have in France and in occupied German territory 900,000 combat troops, besides nearly 500,000 other elements. The Commander in Chief has just finished a divisional inspection of over 1,000,000 men, and I have taken pains to ascertain how these troops have shown up. It may be said without exaggeration that such a body of soldiers has never before been brought together. Their morale is high, their physical condition almost perfect, and there is a pride in their accomplishments, modest, though firm. Since the armistice was signed they have had three or four months of practice, and have been rounded out and polished off, and are in a high state of organization and efficiency. In the process of demobilization they have retained and increased their soldier-like discipline, and, if called on, they could go anywhere and do anything. It should be added, however, that in no quarter is there the remotest thought of sending these Americans back into the war furnace.

The American representative who visited the President assures me that he is most anxious to get our men home as expeditiously as possible. The men themselves would be quick to respond to any call of American patriotism and duty, but the present European situation does not make the same appeal as did war against the triumphant Germans, and they are eager for home.

Soldier sentiment, so far as I have been able to sound it from talk with officers visiting in Paris, leans toward the idea that the continued presence here of the Americans puts Europe out of balance and prevents a stabilization based on the forces which are permanent in Europe. It is held that America's aid having prevented a German victory, and Germany being now disarmed on land and sea, our large military representation is becoming a disturbing factor. If a settled policy of withdrawal were adopted and publicly announced, many believe European aspirations would more nearly correspond with the capacity of the respective nations to realize and sustain them.

But among the soldiers awaiting ships to take them home there is little discussion of the European outbreaks. Their thoughts are of America and the resumption of family relations and civilian activities. General Pershing's visits and talks have inspired them with enthusiasm to return to America clean morally and physically, and with a sense of duty well performed. As America has already had an opportunity of seeing, our soldiers are going back in the pink of condition and ready for work and for citizenship.

COMMONS PASSES THE MILITARY BILL

GREAT NEED OF MEN IS TOLD

Total Force of 859,000 Required at Present Because of the Many Difficulties.

LONDON, March 31.—The House of Commons today passed the third reading of the Military bill by a vote of 282 to 64, after strong criticism of the Government on the ground of wasteful expenditure and violation of election pledges to abolish conscription.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, made a vigorous reply to these criticisms. He described the broad band across Europe from the White Sea to the Caspian as smouldering or aflame through Bolshevist attacks, and declared that Germany and Austria were likely to slide into hopeless anarchy or form a military alliance with the Bolsheviki.

With respect to the cost of the army of occupation, Mr. Churchill said that after deducting the estimated figure of about £70,000,000 to be recovered from Germany for the upkeep of the Rhine army, this left the cost of the army of occupation for the present year at £133,000,000. The amount expected to be recovered by salvage was calculated to pay two or three times over the cost of the armies of occupation during this year.

Replying to arguments that there was no national necessity for the bill, Mr. Churchill asserted that Bolshevist armies were attacking along the whole front in Europe, and that the little States were in direct peril. Could it be said, he asked, that Great Britain had no interest in seeing the world coming to a peaceful settlement? The moment that the Allies divested themselves of their military forces, they would be powerless to exercise the slightest influence on the course of events all over Europe.

The approximate distribution of troops, the Secretary said, would be as follows: In Great Britain, 176,000; in France, 120,000; on the Rhine, 264,000. In Italy and adjacent regions, Mr. Churchill added, there would be 10,000 men, in order to adjust the lamentable differences which had arisen between Italy and the Jugoslavs, saying:

"We are keeping small forces of British troops there in many localities where the troops of no other nation would be welcome. We have been asked to do this in conjunction with our allies, because it has been found that these troops could prevent troubles between the local populations merely by their presence during the period we are trying to settle things."

This was, of course, continued the Secretary, done at the request and by the desire of both parties, who felt that otherwise there might be a grave politi-

MAGYAR ENVOYS SENT TO BERLIN

BUDAPEST, March 31, (via Geneva,) (Associated Press.)—The Hungarian Government has sent a delegation to Berlin to conclude a treaty of alliance against the Entente Allies.

German officers formerly belonging to Field Marshal Mackensen's army have arrived in Budapest to reorganize the Hungarian Army along German lines. The army now numbers 100,000 men.

Bela Kun, the Foreign Minister, has acknowledged in an interview that Hungary's commune does not desire to make war at present upon the Entente, but asserts that Hungary wishes to live peacefully with all. He says:

"Our only object is to protect the common people and defend their soil, and also the industries, which are the property of the proletariat."

Bela Kun makes no secret of the fact that he has merely used the last argument possible against the Entente, saying: "While the other countries of the former empire have been threatening the Entente with Bolshevism if their wishes were not consulted, we merely had the courage to take this final step."

The Hungarians declare that their action is guaranteed by President Wilson's fourteen points and that their ideas of personal national liberty are embodied in the American Declaration of Independence.

Women are joining the Red Army.

The town of Kaschau and several other points in southern Slovakia have been captured by Czechs who are fighting the Hungarian Communists.

German colonists in Western Hungary and Transylvania are hostile to the Communists and are attempting to gain their independence.

The French troops at Szegedin, Southern Hungary, and elsewhere, it is said, are permitting the Communists to establish themselves in control as they wish, despite the fact that there were riots in small industrial centres where the Communists held organized parades after the fashion set in Budapest.

PARIS, March 31, (Associated Press.)—A small force of French troops stationed in the neutral zone between Hungary and Rumania has been attacked by Hungarian troops, 350 of the French being taken prisoners, according to an official report received here. On demand of the French General the release of the prisoners has been promised.

But Some Delegates Continue to Be Openly Pessimistic.

DOUBT WILSON ULTIMATUM

But He May Have Said That He Might as Well Go Home Unless Something Was Done.

TALKS WITH LLOYD GEORGE

Paris Press Predict Large Developments the Coming Week.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 31.—The atmosphere of political Paris is surcharged with rumors concerning the conditions in the Peace Conference. Some of these are reassuring, but most of them are pessimistic and disquieting.

A Paris dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES sent Saturday furnishes the background of what is being said. President Wilson is credited by one rumor with having threatened to go home unless greater progress was made in adjustment of the world's affairs.

The pessimism which this causes is counteracted by another report that as a result of his frankness the "big four" have decided to take definite action on some of the major questions before the week is ended.

It is well to take with reserve any unqualified declaration that the President delivered an ultimatum. But that the President intimated that he might as well return to Washington if the policy of obstruction continued is something not to be cast aside as unworthy of belief.

What seems to have happened is that after futile efforts to make some progress last week (the whole week was wasted) the "big four" had a heart-to-heart talk in which words were not minced.

Today there are promises that this week will show a record of accomplishment. In American circles there is very generally a disposition to believe that if these promises are not fulfilled some rather radical action may be expected from President Wilson.

Hold Conferences Throughout Day.

PARIS, March 31, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson and the allied Premiers conferred throughout today, in the morning at the "White House" and in the afternoon at the War Office.

They went over the method for the payment of reparations by Germany with their financial advisers in the morning, and in the afternoon discussed military questions with Marshal Foch, who presented the French position regarding the left bank of the Rhine. Later the Foreign Ministers of the five great powers called in to discuss the situation resulting from the Hungarian revolution.

Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson conferred privately for an hour this forenoon before the Council of Four met at the President's residence. It is understood that the purpose of the conference was to expedite the peace proceedings.

The probability that important final decisions will be taken this week by the peace conferees is pointed out by the French press today.

Dwelling on the French claims, the newspapers reiterate their arguments that these are just and legitimate and absolutely necessary for the safety of France and likewise of the world.

The Echo de Paris states as fact that in order to assure the security of the French frontier it will be made obligatory upon Germany to destroy her forts on the right bank of the Rhine, with the Allies occupying the left bank until the war indemnity is paid.

Regarding the indemnities, the newspaper continues, the experts have admitted the impossibility of Germany's paying enormous amounts during the next two years. The newspaper says that it understands that the payments required will be on a rising scale yearly, each of the Allies to receive its share in cash or various products.

How to Protect Ruined Industries.

It is suggested in authoritative circles that the difficult question of protecting ruined French and Belgian industries from German competition before they can be restored, and at the same time permit the Germans to import raw materials and resume exportations at an early date so as to facilitate the payment of indemnities, might be settled by allowing indemnities to the owners of ruined factories, these indemnities to be calculated on a basis of proved profits for a certain number of years before the war.

It is pointed out that trade could be reserved for the devastated factories only by restricting the entry of manufactures of all foreign countries into the markets concerned during the entire period of reconstruction. In view of the urgent requirements of these markets, however, this is thought impossible.

Financial compensation, with priority in the matter of reparation, is proposed as the best alternative, as it has the advantage of increasing German's paying capacity.

It is argued that if the industries affected do not lose trade to the Germans, they will lose it temporarily to other countries. So that no advantage would be gained in prohibiting German exports beyond a punitive measure against the authors of the destruction.

LONDON EXPECTS UNRAVELING OF SNARL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 31.—News that the reported deadlock at Paris had been broken and that the bases of peace had been agreed upon by the "Big Four" is expected here at any time by men experienced in the course of diplomatic negotiations.

The fact that the little which is known of last week's deliberations indicates serious difference of opinion over such matters as the Saar Valley and Danzig is not thought to be any real cause for alarm. It is almost what might have been foreseen.

According to one student of public affairs, in all international conferences, when difficult questions come up, it is easy at first to sidestep and leave them for future deliberation. But at last there are nothing but difficulties left and then the trouble begins. The suggestion that the problem is insoluble and that one or the other party will withdraw rather than give way is then in order, and the only question is who will make it. Beaconsfield played this card at the famous conference in Berlin, and even had the steam up for the special train to take him away, but he never went by it.

So it is thought likely enough that at Paris the Big Four on Saturday were fagged out and tired of the very sight of each other. Probably they said sharp things to each other and vowed they would never give up a single point, but there has been a day off since and it is hoped that with two nights' good sleep the chances are that the Big Four will meet today in a much more amenable frame of mind.

Some one must give way, as it is rumored that the differences are on fundamental points, to allow a solution by the happy suggestion of convenient formulas. Which will take the first step toward compromise no one here will prophesy. But it is remembered that the United States controls a large part of the food supply and raw materials of the world and her industries are comparatively untouched by the strain of war, and in these she holds very strong cards. France will need help for many years to come and her statesmen are not likely to be blind to the value of American good will in the future.

As for Lloyd George, it is believed here that he is playing the side of moderator and is guided largely by the promises he has given to Wilson and Clemenceau. As the terms of these are unknown it is useless to speculate on how far they clash and what is the exact position he assumed.

FOCH CAN ORDER ADVANCE.

Has Authority, if Germans Balk, London Hears.

LONDON, March 31.—The Evening News says it understands that reliable information has been received in London that in case the German delegates refuse to sign the peace treaty, Marshal Foch has authority to order a general advance of the Allied armies along the Rhine.

The Department of the German Foreign Office having charge of the peace negotiations, has reached a decision as to its attitude toward the negotiations, a German wireless message says.

The Department has decided the German Government should act only in accordance with President Wilson's fourteen points.

TAKE UP TREATY PROCEDURE.

Allies' Ministers Will Decide Course Toward German Delegates.

PARIS, March 31, (Associated Press.)—The Foreign Ministers of the four great Powers, with one of the Japanese delegates, will meet tomorrow to discuss the procedure at Versailles or wherever the Allied Commissioners meet the German Peace Commission.

All the possibilities embraced in such a meeting will be considered by the allied representatives, such as the question of a short or a long session; whether opportunity will be given the Germans to enter into any discussion on the terms, and whether the Germans will be required to sign immediately or will be permitted to return to Germany for further instructions.

FINANCE MEETING THURSDAY.

Germans on Their Way to Arrange Food-Securities Exchange.

PARIS, March 31, (Associated Press.)—The first meeting of the Financial Commission of the Peace Conference with the German financial agents will take place Thursday at Compiègne, where a session of indefinite length will be held to arrange the exchange of German securities for foodstuffs.

After the first session it is unlikely that any members of the allied commission will remain in Compiègne, as the business to be transacted will be of such a nature that trained bankers can conduct it without assistance from the executive members of the commission.

In addition to the Compiègne meeting, committees are also working at Cologne for the disposition of raw material, at Rotterdam on arrangements concerning shipments of food, and at Spa concerning details of taking over German shipping. The committee at Rotterdam is the same one that looked after Belgian relief work before the armistice was signed.

The German financial commission of six members has arrived at Spa and is due to reach the Château de Villette, near Compiègne, tomorrow. The château where the Germans will be quartered is near the spot where Marshal Foch received the German armistice delegates in November.

American electricians have established telephone lines to the meeting place for the convenience of the conferees.

LONDON, March 31.—The German Financial Commission sent to Spa has been authorized to give an exact description of the financial situation of Germany to the representatives of the Allies, according to a German wireless message.

BESSARABIANS OBJECT TO RUMANIAN RULE

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 30.—Alexander Kronpensky and Alexander Schmidt have arrived in Paris to present Bessarabia's protest against Rumanian occupation. Their two delegates come to Paris with a direct mandate from the Bessarabian people, having been elected delegates by popular vote.

Their protest rests upon the principles of self-determination. Owing to its agricultural wealth, Bessarabia is considered a rich prize. It occupies the southwestern corner of Russia, between the Dneister, which divides it from Moldavian Rumania and the Pruth on the east; and, as it is largely Moldavian in blood and language, Rumania has set a claim to its 7,000,000 acres of land and 2,500,000 people.

Bessarabia has at no time been Bolshevist, although succeeding waves of retreating enemies have caused considerable devastation. The peasants, however, remained at work, and the country continued to do a large business through Odessa. The Bolshevist advance at the end of 1917 gave the Rumanians a chance to enter Bessarabia, and for the last year, the delegates say, they have tried to establish control over the whole country, though they were permited to come in on the Allied assurance, extended through the French Ambassador, that they would withdraw as soon as order was restored.

The Rumanian occupation is causing deep indignation and unrest, the delegates assert. They say the Bessarabians are Russians, and will never accept Rumanian rule. Kronpensky and Schmidt are urging a plebiscite for Bessarabia, and they say that if self-determination were confined to the Moldavian element only, which constitutes 47 per cent. of the whole population, the vote would be overwhelmingly in favor of Russian sovereignty, while naturally the other 53 per cent., comprising Slavs, Greeks, Armenians, Bulgarians, and Jews, would oppose Rumanian annexation.

The delegates say that there could not be a more extreme violation of Wilsonian principles than to subject this industrious, well-intentioned people, cultivating a rich territory, to alien rule, the effect of which would be to foment discontent and disorder and to drive Bessarabia to Bolshevism against her natural inclinations. They charge that the Rumanians are co-operating with the Bolsheviki to make trouble in Bessarabia. They have put out all the native judges and other Bessarabian officials, installing Rumanians instead, thus unsettling the existing order and causing conditions favorable to anarchy.

Kronpensky is a large Bessarabian landowner, but in talks with me expresses more fear of Rumanian rule than of Russian Bolshevism; and he makes the emphatic assertion that if the Rumanians can be got rid of, the Bessarabians will successfully resist the Bolsheviki. He further asserts that if the announced plans are carried out, of permitting the Rumanian armies to push eastward in the Ukraine, their rapacity and intriguing propensities will result disastrously to the Allies.

OFFICIALS FLED TO ALLIES.

German Governor Begged Them to Occupy Duesseldorf.

BERLIN, March 30, (Associated Press.)—Details of the hitherto mysterious disappearance of Adalbert Oehler, the Chief Burgomaster of Düsseldorf, who vanished while the last Spartacide uprising was in progress there and has not been seen since, are published by the Vossische Zeitung.

Oehler fled across the Rhine to the occupied district, the paper says, and has remained there, although his return has been urged strongly by citizens of Düsseldorf, who want to have the legal status of his case cleared up.

The paper also says that the provincial Governor of that district, Dr. Kruse, fled across the Rhine, but has returned. He was exonerated and reinstated in his office, despite the fact that he visited General Michelet, the Belgian commander west of the Rhine, and begged him to occupy Düsseldorf.

NEELY ASSAILS LEAGUE PLAN

But Philadelphia Methodists Vote for Best That Can Be Framed.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Addressing the Ministerial Union of Philadelphia, consisting of representatives of Protestant religious bodies, today Bishop Thomas B. Neely of the Methodist Episcopal Church called President Wilson "a dreamer," and insisted that the adoption of the League of Nations plan as at present drafted would "lead to wars and still more wars."

Bishop Neely's attack followed a resolution offered by the Rev. Dr. Edward B. Pollard of Crozier Seminary, indorsing "a League of Nations the very best that constructive statesmanship shall be able to formulate." After a hot debate, in which several eloquent defenders of the League made appeals, the resolution was adopted by perhaps a two-thirds vote.

"I am not opposed to the right kind of a League of Nations," Bishop Neely said. "But I warn the American people against the one emanating from Paris. I say, let us be careful. Before he went to Europe President Wilson quoted Washington against the Allies. I agree with the Wilson of that day as against the Wilson of today."

The Rev. Dr. Edward F. Randolph and the Rev. Dr. John Watchorn favored the resolution.

"It is not Wilson's or Lloyd George's or Cecil's League of Nations," asserted Mr. Watchorn. "It is Christ's League of Nations."

"This is a day for holy boldness, not for issuing warnings," Dr. Pollard said, turning to Bishop Neely. "I am opposed to any policy of isolation for this country. For America to leave her allies now would be scuttling the international ship."

TURNS TO LEAGUE SUPPORT.

Congressman Cooper of Ohio Admits Opposition Was a Mistake.

ASHTABULA, Ohio, March 31.—Speaking before the Ashtabula Chamber of Commerce today Congressman John G. Cooper of Youngstown, Republican, denounced criticism of the League of Nations and spoke in favor of the plan for world peace as outlined in the covenant. He "deplored the partisan politics being displayed by some of the Republican leaders," and said that America will have fought in vain unless the League of Nations becomes a reality.

"When the League of Nations was first proposed," he said, "I am frank to say I was not in favor of it. I was inclined to oppose it, and I expressed myself so on the floor of Congress. Now I confess that I have seen the question in a far different light."

Speaking of the recent Republican filibuster in the Senate, Congressman Cooper said he considered it a "colossal mistake."

WORLD LABOR OFFICE TO BE ESTABLISHED

PROVIDES YEARLY MEETINGS

Employers and Workers to be Represented and Women to Have a Voice in Their Own Affairs.

PARIS, March 31.—The completed draft of the Convention, creating a permanent organization for the promotion of labor interests and the international regulation of labor conditions, consists of forty-one articles.

The first chapter deals with the general outlines of the organization, which will consist of a general conference of representatives and an International Labor Office.

Meetings of the General Conference will be held at least once yearly. The Conference will include representatives of the employers and workers. Each delegate may be accompanied by two advisers, and, when women's rights are involved, at least one of the advisers should be a woman.

The Conference will meet at the seat of the League of Nations, where the International Labor Office will be established as part of the League organization. A governing body of twenty-four members will control the Labor office, and will be composed of twelve Government representatives and six members, elected by the delegates to the Conference representing the employers, and six elected by the delegates representing the working people.

The director of the Labor office will be appointed by the governing body, and will select his staff, as far as possible, from different nationalities, and include some women. The Labor office will act as a general clearing house for all labor information.

BIG ESSEN STRIKE CALLED.

Stuttgart Tieup Begins — 30,000 German Miners Out.

COPENHAGEN, March 31.—A conference of workers' delegates at Essen has adopted a resolution calling a general strike tomorrow.

A Stuttgart dispatch to the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger reports the outbreak of a general strike there.

COLOGNE, March 29, (Associated Press.)—Reports from Essen and neighboring towns show a serious increase in the number of strikers among the coal miners. Today 30,000 men are out, the result being that thirty shafts are closed down.

In Witten and Dortmund, Westphalia and elsewhere meetings were held at which the withdrawal of the Government troops, a twenty-five per cent. increase in pay, additional bonuses and a six-hour-day were demanded.

The strike fever is also spreading to other fields, including the Prussian-Hessian Railway, 6,000 employes of which passed a resolution threatening to cease work on all lines unless all their demands were conceded by April 10.

At Dortmund an anti-Bolshevist meeting was taken possession of by Spartacides who demanded the overthrow of the Government, the disarming of the bourgeoisie, the arming of the proletariat and new elections to the Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils.

BERLIN SOVIET HEAD ARRESTED AS PLOTTER

Daumig Suspected of Having Aided January Revolt—Ledebour's Release Demanded.

BERLIN, March 31, (via Copenhagen.)—Ernst Daumig, President of the Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council of Greater Berlin, was arrested yesterday.

He is suspected of having been a leader of the January disturbances with George Ledebour, who has been in jail for several weeks. Daumig is an Independent Socialist.

The Executive Council of the Greater Berlin Soviet has indorsed the appeal of the Communist Workmen's Council for the release of Ledebour and other political prisoners. It was decided to demand of Chancellor Scheidemann that he effect the release of these men immediately on the basis of a promise made on March 6. On that date the Chancellor said he was unable to grant amnesty until "order and quiet has been restored in Berlin."

Herr Geisberg, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, at the same time gave his word of honor that he would appeal to the Cabinet for their release as soon as Berlin was quiet.

The Executive Council maintains that order has been re-established, and demands that the promise be redeemed.

CANADIANS TO QUIT SIBERIA.

Date of Departure Kept Secret at Request of Britain.

OTTAWA, March 31.—Arrangements have been made for the return of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, it was announced in the House of Commons today by Minister of Militia Newburn, in reply to a question.

The date is being kept secret by request of the British Government.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Withdrawal of Canadian troops from Siberia, announced in the Canadian House of Commons today by the Minister of Militia as imminent, does not imply also the return of the American Expedition, it was said tonight by War Department officials.

The question of early withdrawal of the American troops at Vladivostok was referred to Secretary Baker in a conference with newspaper men a few days ago, and at that timethe Secretary was emphatic in his statement that no such plans were under consideration. The American troops, Mr. Baker said, were sent to Siberia to assist the Czechoslovak forces and to protect the military stores at Vladivostok from the Bolshevist armies. The need for the troops still existed, he said, and so long as there was such a need they would not be withdrawn.

WANTS ALL TRADE BARS LIFTED

Wolff Bureau Protests Against Restrictions Cited by Foch.

BERLIN, March 31.—Marshal Foch telegraphed Friday to General Inudant, his chief representative at Spa, saying that Germany was authorized to trade with firms in neutral countries, even if the firms were on the blacklist, provided that the Supreme Council and the blockade authorities approved.

The Wolff Bureau, the semi-official news agency, protests against this condition and demands that trade be entirely free.

Daniels to Confer in Italy.

PARIS, March 31.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his staff will leave Paris Tuesday for Italy, where they will confer with Italian naval officials. It is not known if the Secretary will visit the Adriatic, where a number of American warships are stationed.

IRISH ENVOYS SAIL FOR PARIS TODAY

Convinced State Department Is Not Antagonistic to Plea for Irish Republic.

PASSPORTS FREELY GIVEN

Walsh, Ryan, and Dunne, All American Born, Say Purpose of Visit Was Plainly Stated.

Three delegates, chosen by Irish societies in this country to appeal to the Peace Conference for the establishment of an Irish republic and the right of self-determination for Ireland, were the guests at a reception at the Hotel McAlpin last night. Passports have been issued to Frank P. Walsh, the former Chairman of the National War Labor Board; ex-Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois, and Michael J. Ryan, a lawyer, of Philadelphia, and they will sail today on the Touraine.

In their speeches explaining their mission the delegates told an audience of about 500 persons that they had reason to believe that the State Department favored, at least in a measure, the proposal for the reception of the delegates of the Sinn Fein Congress and the establishment of an Irish republic because passports had been issued upon applications that set forth clearly the object of the visit to Paris. Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, who was Chairman of the Irish Race Convention in Philadelphia on Feb. 22, and when President Wilson refused to meet here on March 4, when a delegation sought to obtain the President's views on the Irish question, said he believed that the three delegates represented "one hundred millions of Americans and not merely twenty millions of Irishmen."

Mr. Walsh said he and the other delegates were American citizens, born in this country, and that they had not sought to hide the purpose of their visit to the Peace Conference. He quoted from the letter of the delegates to Frank L. Polk, the Acting Secretary of State, that the "object in visiting France is to obtain for the delegates selected by the people of Ireland a hearing at the Peace Conference, and to place before the conference, if that hearing be not given, the case of Ireland; her insistence upon her right to self-determination and to international recognition of the republic form of government established by her people."

Dr. Patrick McCarton, representing the Sinn Fein movement in this country, said he believed that the granting of passports on this application was a "tacit acknowledgment of the right of the Irish delegates to appear before the Peace Conference" to present their claims for separation from the British Empire and the establishment of an Irish republic.

Similar opinions were expressed by Justice Cohalan, ex-Governor Dunne, Mr. Ryan and Jeremiah Lynch, Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom. Others who were at the reception and the dinner preceding it were Liam Mellowes and D. Lynch, who, with Dr. McCarton, are members of the Parliament chosen by the Sinn Fein.

Mr. Ryan said he had never visited Ireland and that he was interested as an American citizen only because he believed that the plea of Ireland for her own government was a just plea in conformance with the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence, the President's message in declaring war upon Germany, and other great American documents. He declared he believed there "would be no real peace, no honest League of Nations, until Ireland is recognized as a free republic."

Mr. Walsh said no antagonism toward England or any other nation was felt by the members of the mission, and that they went to offer no compromise or mediation, but to ask that the case of Ireland be presented by representatives of the Irish republic, De Valera, Plunkett, and Griffiths, who have not been permitted to attend the conference. He said that, failing in their request for recognition of those three delegates, they would seek to impress upon the American Peace Commissioners and those from other countries the necessity for allowing Ireland, under the principle of self-determination, to declare herself a republic free of the rule of Great Britain.

Dr. McCarton referred to the remark of President Wilson that the common people were in the saddle, and said that if the demand for an Irish republic were refused now the "wave rolling between the Rhine and Vladivostok may yet reach Ireland." He said that the republican form of government proclaimed in Ireland would continue to function on the principle that Ireland was free, even if the Peace Conference refused to hear the delegates.

Jeremiah Lynch said he believed that "somebody would be hurt, and not by words," unless the Irish republic were recognized, and that "not peace, but war and hell," would prevail.

The delegation appointed by the Irish Race convention to interview President Wilson dined together before they went to the reception, and speeches were made by Justice Cohalan, Dr. McCarton, ex-Governor Dunne, and others. Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Gavegan was Chairman of the meeting held later, and others who attended were Judge John Jerome Rooney, Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hendrick, John Devoy, Judge J. F. Minturn of New Jersey, and John D. Moore.

HINDENBURG SAW COLLAPSE

Letter of Oct. 30 Which Forced Armistice Plea Is Disclosed.

LONDON, March 31.—In connection with the discussion which has been carried on in the German press as to whether Prince Max of Baden, then Imperial Chancellor, took the initiative in demanding peace in October last, the Wolff Bureau publishes a letter from Field Marshal von Hindenburg, dated Oct. 30, which shows that on that date German Army Headquarters confirmed the demand it had made already in September that peace offers should be made. In his letter von Hindenburg says:

"In consequence of the disaster on the Macedonian front, with its attendant weakening of the reserves of the west front, and in consequence of the impossibility of replacing the great losses sustained in recent encounters, there is now, humanly speaking, no longer any possibility of our being able to impose peace on the enemy. Our opponents are constantly receiving reinforcements.

"While the elements of our rear still hold together and may still offer some resistance to the renewed attacks of the enemy, our situation is becoming very precarious and may at any moment place the army command under the necessity of making a comprehensive decision.

"In these circumstances it is imperative that we cease the struggle in order to save the German people and our allies from unnecessary sacrifices. Every day's loss in this respect costs the lives of thousands of German soldiers."

On receipt of this letter, says the Wolff Bureau, the Government had no choice but to take steps at once to obtain an armistice and offer to conclude peace.

BASLE, Switzerland, March 31, (Havas.)—The Hungarian Government is reported in Vienna dispatches to have sent an ultimatum to the Czechoslovak Government. # PADEREWSKI MAY FLY TO PARIS IN AIRPLANE

Unable to Get Through Austria by Train—Bolshevism Spreading from Hungary.

BERNE, March 30.—The latest messages from the Austrian frontier are in nowise reassuring. Owing to Hungarian Bolshevism, special trains, which hitherto ran regularly between Paris and Bucharest, have ceased; and owing to the disturbed condition of Austria the allied Red Cross trains between France and Poland have also ceased.

Paderewski, who is expected in Switzerland on his way to the Paris Conference, is unable to get through Austria, and may be obliged to travel by airplane.

My most trustworthy Viennese correspondent assures me that if allied troops do not occupy Vienna within a week Austria will join Hungary and Russia in a Bolshevist confederation. The effect of Hungary's conversion to Bolshevism is already visible in the attitude of the masses in Germany and Austria, where events are following a precisely similar course to that which they took in Hungary. The Spartacus party and the masses are joining hands, while the middle classes and Majority Socialists are abdicating in their favor. Bolshevism on the Continent is undoubtedly on the upward grade, and the Paris peace delegates have now a choice between Wilson's policy or Lenine's. The weaker Wilson's party, the stronger Lenine's becomes.

VIENNA, March 30.—By the Bolshevist upheaval in Hungary numberless mental workers have lost their means of livelihood, principally lawyers and officers, who try to turn to other avocations of a lower order. Yesterday 1,500 of these persons applied for work in potato and cabbage fields.

A daily wage scale has been established by the Government at the rate of 30, 25, and 20 kronen for men, women and children, respectively.

BUDAPEST, March 30, (via Vienna,) (Associated Press.)—The plunge of Budapest into anti-capitalism continues with feverish efforts to show that the reign of law and order is undisturbed. The city is outwardly quiet since the first few days in which there was much looting, especially of jewelry shops. As a result of the looting, it is reported, 150 persons were executed by the new régime, their communistic ideas apparently being too violent.

The new freedom exists for those who are willing to live as the Government dictates. Two important newspapers, the Pester Lloyd and the Az Est, print only what the censor permits. Foreign correspondents may transmit by telegraph if they write what is desired by the Government.

Persons entering the country may leave only by the personal permission of Foreign Minister Bela Kun. The latter has installed his offices in the royal castle.

House rents have been reduced 20 per cent.

The homes of the wealthy are being searched, and paintings and works of art are being requisitioned for the purpose of establishing national galleries after the style at Moscow.

BERLIN, March 30, (Associated Press.)—The diplomatic agent of the German Government at Budapest has advised Germans to leave Hungary.

RUMANIA MENACED ON FOUR FRONTIERS

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, March 16, (via London, March 31.)—It is beyond doubt that among the Allies Rumania is at present in the most unfortunate situation. The interior of the country needs every imaginable commodity, and the inhabitants are faced by starvation. However, if the condition of its new frontier were tranquil, Rumania might be able to deal with the situation.

Unfortunately, the country at the present moment is more menaced by its neighbors than even during the pre-war period. In the south, although the Bulgarians make use of threatening language, there is little danger that they will be able to put their threats into execution. The situation is more serious in Hungary, where daily conflicts take place between the Rumanians and the Hungarians, who seem indisposed to yield Transylvania, boasting that they will not submit to the decisions of the Paris Conference. Hungarian soldiers are persecuting and even killing the population.

But the situation is most critical on the Russian frontier. Here the menace comes both from the Bolsheviki and the Ukrainians, who, although their causes differ, have the same objects in view. The Bolsheviki hope to defeat the Rumanians, and, by starting a rising among the peasantry, to bring Rumania to the same condition as Russia. They hope to spread Bolshevism westward through Rumania to Hungary, where the ground has been sufficiently prepared by their agents.

Similar attempts were made in April and November, 1917, by Russian soldiers in Moldavia, but they were not crowned with success, and a new attempt on a much larger scale is now about to be made with the assistance of the Ukrainians, who wish to retake Bessarabia. The same object was sought early in 1918 by the Ukrainian commander Mouravief, but was defeated.

The Bolsheviki, reinforced by Ukrainians, gained a success a few days ago against the French and Greek troops at Kherson. The allied strength in South Russia is weak before the organized Bolshevist forces, numbering some 40,000 men. In such difficult circumstances it is very probable that Rumania will be compelled to mobilize again the whole of her army, although there are many difficulties in the way. The country pins its hopes to the Allies, who, it is expected, will deal more swiftly than they have done until now with the Bulgarians and Hungarians and prevent any acts of aggression.

Cases of fraternization of allied troops with Bulgars and friendliness of allied officers with Hungarians have produced a very depressed feeling here. The clank of arms is far from being a thing of the past in the Balkans, and unless strong and energetic measures are taken it threatens to continue for years.

AUSTRIAN MINISTER'S THREAT.

He Says Imposition of a Huge Indemnity Would Excuse Bolshevism.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, March 29.—The Austrian Minister of Finance, Herr Schumpeter, who was formerly an Austrian exchange professor in America, spoke yesterday of the economic condition of Austria as follows:

"The social danger is not the only danger confronting Austria. A new danger is threatening because Paris has evidently conceived the idea of imposing a war contribution upon us which is bound to render impossible the reconstruction of our economic life and to make us serfs. We should consider this an excuse for a Bolshevist development in Austria."

DON'T LIKE SOVIET RULE.

Great Majority of Budapest People Said to be Dissatisfied.

ROTTERDAM, March 30.—The latest news from Hungary contained in a dispatch from Vienna to the National Zeitung of Berlin conveys an entirely different impression than that created by the Government's communiqués. The dispatch says:

"Travelers from Budapest say there is a very depressed feeling in the city. Everything is quiet, but the atmosphere is that of the calm before the storm. An overwhelming majority of the people are not satisfied with the introduction of the Soviet form of government, but nobody ventures to give practical expression to these views because the Government is acting with great strength."

Authoritative circles in Berlin, according to a telephone message late tonight, regard the position brought about by the German reply to the Entente's Danzig ultimatum as extremely serious. The National Zeitung says there is no indication as yet that the Entente is willing to agree to the German counterproposals, and it is considered possible that negotiations will be broken off.

The paper adds:

"We are informed that the Government adheres to its standpoint and has firmly decided to make no further concessions. Moreover, the Government is acting in agreement with all parties."

REVIEW OF FINANCIAL CONDITIONS.

Review of the forces swaying stocks, bonds, and money—the condition of the acceptance market—in this week's issue of The Annalist. Ten cents at news-stands.

SAYS DANZIG'S LOSS WOULD RUIN POLAND

TELLS OF CONDITIONS THERE

Declares That Looting Has Ceased and That Food Situation Has Improved.

Dr. S. A. Iciek, chaplain in the Polish Army, who returned to this country several days ago from Poland, in an interview yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, described conditions in Poland as he saw them. He went to Poland at the request of the Polish National Department of Chicago. Dr. Iciek is pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Church, in Duluth.

"Danzig is indispensible to the national existence of Poland," he said. "It is the lung of her life. With Danzig in Germany's hands Poland becomes Germany's slave. In the hands of Poland, a nation of 35,000,000 people becomes a world's neighbor. Poland is historically entitled to Danzig.

"If Danzig is left in German hands American goods going to Poland would be disembarked at Hamburg or Bremen and American manufacturers would have to put the additional price of import duty and freight from those ports to the interior of Poland. Should the Allies yield to Germany's objection in giving up Danzig and delay the immediate sending of the Polish troops and necessary equipment to form a strong barrier between Russian Bolshevism and German anarchy, we can safely say that in diplomacy the Allies would meet their first defeat, which in time would become a calamity.

"One glance at the map will show the great importance of Danzig. It holds the same position to Poland and the Vistula River as New Orleans holds to the Mississippi Valley, with this added difference, that America has the entire Atlantic and Pacific sea coast with large harbors. Poland would have only Danzig. What Germany proposes to do is, as it were in our case, to hold the mouth of the Mississippi at New Orleans, and to give us Galveston as a seaport."

Property Being Protected.

Dr. Iciek said that he made an investigation into the conditions of the Jews with special reference to the massacres alleged to have taken place in Lemberg.

"The reports were that 1,200 Jews had been killed between Nov. 1 and Dec. 5," he continued. "I found that 132 Jews had died in Lemberg in that time, and of these 50 had been killed by bullets. The Poles destroyed three city blocks in fighting with the Ukrainians, because they had been fired on from Jewish houses. I don't want to say that the Jews did the firing, it may have been the Ukrainians. It must be remembered also that the Ukrainians opened the jails and freed the prisoners, and that there was some looting. In the fighting in Lemberg a Jewish synagogue was destroyed. I spoke to an officer who had been in the fighting and he said that a machine gun fired at Polish troops from the synagogue. The Poles burned the synagogue down.

"At the present time the property of all, the Jews as well as the rest of the population, is protected. Any one in Poland caught robbing or pillaging is stood up against a wall and shot. The Jews are not being persecuted. They have the same privileges as all other Polish citizens have. In Cracow the Jews are members of the city police. After the signing of the armistice when the soldiers returned there was some looting in a few villages. Food shops were broken into, Jewish as well as others, and food was stolen, but conditions now are improved.

"The solution of the Jewish problem in Poland is twofold. There are 2,000,000 Jews, who are mostly traders and business men in a population that will not support that many. There should be a partial emigration of Polish Jews to other countries where they will be afforded the opportunities to develop. The British Dominions, France, and America afford such places.

Wants Jews to Aid.

"The second part of the solution lies in the education of the Jews. I am an American, born and educated in this country, and I consider the American Jew a fine type of American citizen. All the Poles want is that the Jew there be as good a citizen in Poland as he is in America. The Jews in America, France, and England, instead of criticising the Poles should co-operate with the new Polish Government so as to make it economically a strong country, with access to the sea. In a strong Poland the Jew will have an opportunity to develop and prosper, but in a Poland that will be deprived of its natural boundaries and economical essentials the Jew and Pole alike will suffer. And if the American Jew wishes well and would like to help his co-religionists—I say this with the authority of Polish Jews—he should make all efforts to have a large and independent Poland.

"At the present time eight Jews are in the Polish Diet and many of them hold high positions in municipal governments and in the State. Mutual cooperation between the Pole and the Jew is the only solution to the problem. The American Jews should send a Commissioner to Poland to bring modern and progressive ideas to the Jews of Poland. You may be sure that we are going to solve the question. Just give us time."

Dr. Iciek said that since Paderewski took charge of the Government a wave of optimism and confidence had permeated the country. The food situation, he said, is being well taken care of by the American mission, but food conditions during the war were appalling. An analysis of bread made by a physician in the Hospital of the Infant Jesus in Warsaw showed that the percentage of adulterants and wheat were as follows: Flour, 24; horse beans, 21; chestnuts, 17; bran, 13; acorn, 7; sawdust, 6; sand, 4; potato peel, 5, and oak bark, 3. Dr. Iciek was one of the first American Poles to return to Poland since the signing of the armistice. He will tell of his experiences in lectures throughout the country.

AUSTRIAN STRIKE CRITICAL.

Railroad Tieup Delays Food—Fear Allies Will Occupy Country.

PARIS, March 31.—Reports that the railroad strike in German Austria has been settled are untrue, according to a Vienna dispatch to the Echo de Paris, which was forwarded by way of Genoa. Negotiations between the strikers and Herr Renner, the Chancellor, and Herr Deutsch, Secretary for Military Affairs, have failed, and the strike, it is said, continues on the Eastern & Southern Railroad.

Colonel Cary of the British Army, who is at Trieste, has offered to act as arbitrator. The strikers have been destroying railroad property and stopping the transportation of food. A council of railroad workers has been formed in Styria.

Chancellor Renner has implored the strikers to moderate their demands, pointing out that, in case of complications, the Entente troops will occupy the country. Employes of the western section of the Franz Joseph Railroad have joined in the strike which prevails on the Northern and Northwestern systems.

A British representative at Vienna is reported to have issued a proclamation to the public exhorting the people not to interrupt the movement of food supplies. The situation is reported to be grave.

STARTS INQUIRY ON JAPANESE DEAL

Aguirre was referring to the properties of the California-Mexico Land Company of Los Angeles by his statement that "the lands which were given by a concession in 1884 to the Mexican Land Company, were declared the property of the pre-constitutional Government on April 7, 1917, which action renders void the concession granted to the Mexican Land Company."

The American Government some time ago protested against the action taken by the Carranza Government in 1917 in which an attempt was made to render this and other American concessions void. The American Government, it is learned, has no intention of assenting to the dispossession by the Mexican Government of the American owners of Mexican properties, and there is every reason for the belief that this Government, whenever necessary, will take all the steps necessary to protect the rights of American citizens in their properties in Mexico.

Least of all is the Government here expected by those who have been in closest touch with the Mexican and Japanese situations to assent to Mexican cancelling of American rights to properties in so strategic a peninsula as that of Lower California in order to hand them over to a Japanese corporation for colonization and exploitation.

Official Disclaimer Accepted.

It was pointed out in official circles today that General Aguirre's quoted statement did not say that concessions had actually been granted to Japanese corporations, but that "Japanese subjects or companies are arranging to acquire lands in Lower California, said to belong to the California and Mexican Land Company of Los Angeles." In the face of denials from the Japanese legation at Mexico City and the Japanese Embassy in Washington of any official information concerning negotiations between Japanese interests and the Mexican Government, officials here were not inclined to believe that the Japanese Government was involved in the negotiations.

Despite the fact that the Japanese Government was declared by the State Department not to be involved in the effort of Japanese corporations in 1912 to obtain control over Magdalena Bay properties, the State Department at that time frowned upon the effort of another American syndicate to sell land on that bay to a Japanese corporation. The Senate looked upon the Magdalena Bay project in such a light that it adopted the Lodge resolution which enunciated the doctrine that this Government would look with "grave concern" upon the disposal to foreigners, not Americans, of harbors or other places of actual or potential military or naval value on the American continents.

The Lodge doctrine was intended to nail down still harder the Monroe Doctrine, and was passed by the overwhelming vote of a Republican Senate as a timely warning on the attitude of the American Government in such matters. Senator Knox, now a member of the Senate, and very insistent in his discussion of the League of Nations upon rigid safeguarding of the Monroe Doctrine, was Secretary of State during the Magdalena Bay incident when the Lodge doctrine was announced by the Senate in the Summer of 1912.

Frontier and Coast Restrictions.

General Aquirre, in his statement, declared that "even though Japanese companies do propose to acquire, as is alleged, huge tracts of land in Lower California, they cannot be aided by our Government, since the Mexican Constitution, in Article XXVII., expressly states that no foreigner can acquire land in a zone 100 kilometers wide from a foreign frontier nor in a belt fifty kilometers wide along the shores of the Pacific Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico."

Article XXVII. of the Mexican Constitution, relating to the purchase of Mexican lands by foreigners, says:

"Only Mexicans by birth or naturalization and Mexican companies have the right to acquire ownership in lands, waters and their appurtenances, or to obtain concessions to develop mines, waters, or mineral fields in the Republic of Mexico. The nation may grant the same right to foreigners, provided they agree before the Department of Foreign Affairs to be considered Mexicans in respect of such property, and accordingly not to invoke the protection of their Governments in respect of the same, under penalty, in case of breach, of forfeiture to the nation of property so acquired. Within a zone of 100 kilometers from the frontiers, and of fifty kilometers from the seacoast, no foreigner shall under any conditions acquire direct ownership of lands and waters."

Any lands on the peninsula of Lower California involved in the present issue would be considerably nearer to the boundary of the United States than were the shore lands on the Bay at Magdalena. Senator Lodge, while discussing his resolution before the Senate in 1912, took the position that no Japanese colony should be permitted to be established anywhere on the peninsula of Lower California, and careful analysis of the Senate debate of that time would be fairly interpreted as meaning that any colonizing project of Japanese in Lower California would be regarded as contrary to the spirit of the Lodge resolution.

Question Turns on Menace.

British, French, Dutch, Spanish, and other foreigners, including Americans, own very valuable properties in Mexico, but not in localities or under circumstances regarded as a menace to the United States or a violation of the Lodge doctrine. If Japanese undertook to acquire and control lands in Mexico, under identical conditions with these other nationalities, it might be more difficult for this Government to raise objection, but the position of this Government would depend upon the location of the lands, their propinquity to the American west coast or the border of the United States, and whether the concession involved a substantial menace to the United States.

Regardless of whether any Japanese agricultural exploitation scheme involves such a menace as would be covered by the Lodge doctrine, this Government would have plenty of ground for vigorous protest to Mexico should it develop that the Carranza Government had granted, or intended to grant, to a Japanese or other syndicate lands clearly the property of American citizens on any such claim as that the Mexican Government had declared the American ownership of the property to be void.

The possibility that private Japanese interests are negotiating directly with the Mexican Government, the latter desiring to obtain a loan and the former, to get concessions, is not overlooked here. In this connection the words of President Wilson, spoken at Mobile, Ala., on Oct. 27, were recalled today. Speaking of concessions, he then said:

"There is one peculiarity about the history of the Latin-American States. * * * You hear of concessions to foreign capitalists in Latin-America. You do not hear of concessions to foreign capitalists in the United States. They are not granted concessions. They are invited to make investments. It is an invitation and not a privilege and States that are obliged, because their territory does not lie within the main field of modern enterprise and action, to grant concessions, are in this condition, that foreign interests are not to dominate their domestic affairs, a condition of affairs always dangerous and apt to become intolerable.

"What these States are going to see, therefore, is an emancipation from the subordination which has been inevitable to foreign enterprise. They have had harder bargains driven with them in the matter of loans than any other people in the world. * * * We ought to be the first to take part in assisting in that emancipation."

COMPANY READY TO SUBMIT.

Chandler Says Patriotism Will Guide Course on Land Deal.

LOS ANGELES, March 31.—The owners of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's property in Lower California still adhere to a declaration made to the State Department in 1917, that they will not "under any circumstances make any lease of any kind to Japanese, where colonization is probable, until we are first authoritatively informed that such an arrangement will be entirely agreeable to the Government of our own country."

This was announced here today by Harry Chandler, President of the company. Mr. Chandler, who is also principal owner of The Los Angeles Times, issued this statement:

"So far as the alleged pending sale of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's property in Lower California to a Japanese syndicate is concerned, the owners of the land are still adhering to the declaration made by them to the Secretary of State in February, 1917, in connection with the proposed lease of a comparatively small section of the company's holdings to Japanese tenants. The following is an extract from a letter written by me, as President of the company, and concurred in by the stockholders of that company, dated Feb. 23, 1917, to the Department of State at Washington:

> While my company is anxious to secure these reliable tenants, amply financed, to help develop our property in Mexico, we are first of all American citizens and do not wish to make any move which could in any way prejudice a question which always appears to be a subject for agitation between the two countries. We will not, under the circumstances, consider making any lease of this kind to Japanese, where colonization is probable, until we are first authoritatively informed that such arrangement will be agreeable to the Government of our own country.
> We believe that most of the Japanese labor for this enterprise will come from the Pacific Coast States, and thus relieve to some extent the pressure of this class of people now in the United States, and will be an advantage rather than a disadvantage.
>
> During these ticklish times, we, as large land owners in Mexico, are determined to use scrupulous care in having this matter thoroughly threshed out in advance.

"The main body of the letter recited all the details of the proposed lease, and the portion quoted still expresses the attitude of the owners of the property.

"I desire to call attention to an error in the statement made by the Mexican Assistant Secretary of Fomento, General Amado Aguirre, as reported in an Associated Press dispatch dated March 29, to the effect that the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's titles came through a concession from the former Mexican Government. Neither the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company nor its grantors ever asked for or received any concessions for any portion of the lands now held by our company from the Government of Mexico.

"The lands our company owns and controls were acquired by direct purchase for cash at the full price asked from the Mexican Government, and no concessions of any kind were ever asked for or received in connection with the purchase of our landed property. After our company took an option on the land and before the purchase was consummated, a most exhaustive research of the records of title, as shown by the public records, was made by trained title searchers, and our title, after this investigation, was shown to be what we believe the most perfect title in Mexico.

"The reference by the Mexican official to special concessions made in connection with the sale of these lands must refer to lands adjoining ours, which were secured by an American syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan at about the time that our lands were purchased from the Mexican Government. Their titles were secured through a concession which provides for special colonization efforts on the part of the purchasing syndicate.

"Pastor Rouix, Secretary of the Mexican Fomento, visited Lower California a year ago, and a representative of our company offered to convey to Mexican colonists at any reasonable price which could be mutually agreed upon such acreage as might be required for Mexican colonization, and, so far as we know, there is a very satisfactory understanding between ourselves and the Mexican Government's Department of Fomento.

"It is fair to say that the Japanese who were negotiating for a lease at that time took precisely the same stand as prospective tenants that the owners of the land took, to wit: That they did not desire to consummate the lease unless it was perfectly agreeable to officials of our own State Department."

The property of the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company, known on both sides of the border as the C. M. Ranch, now comprises 830,000 acres, running from the international boundary line to the Gulf of California. It was originally 862,000 acres, but 32,000 acres were sold to John Cudahy about seven years ago. The whole tract comprises the Mexican portion of the Imperial Valley, which valley is practically all under irrigation and susceptible to intensive cultivation.

PHELAN TO APPEAL TO SENATE

Fears a "Little Japan" Which Would Menace California.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Direct diplomatic representations to Mexico and Japan to prevent land grants to Japanese within Mexican borders "because of their military and industrial menace" are to be urged on the floor of Congress by United States Senator James D. Phelan, according to an announcement by the Senator here today. He will make a direct plea to the State Department also.

"While Mexico is well within her constitutional rights in granting this land, it will form a 'little Japan' right on our borders," Senator Phelan said. "This will increase the danger of a Japanese invasion of California, which is a very attractive country for them. It would create a base of supplies and would be a propagating ground.

"Already we know that the Japanese are coming over the border from Mexico. The Japanese fishermen at San Pedro and San Diego maintain a large fleet of high-powered motor boats, and it is suspected that the Japanese are coming in also by that means.

"A large Japanese colony in Mexico would be a military and industrial menace, and I believe that the policy of the Government is to prevent such a settlement near our doors."

SACRAMENTO, March 31.—Measures to prevent Orientals from leasing land to California, and to abolish the "picture bride" practice by which Japanese women enter the United States, were advocated tonight by United States Senator James D. Phelan in an address before a joint session of the California Senate and Assembly. He urged amendments of the State anti-alien law along these lines.

"Notwithstanding the land laws, the Japanese are acquiring lands; notwithstanding the immigration laws and agreements, Japanese women are coming into the State and Japanese coolies are being smuggled over the border," Senator Phelan said.

"Their presence prevents the legitimate demand for land and labor from the character of people immigrating from other States or countries, whose presence would, politically, patriotically, socially, and industrially create American communities which are the units of national greatness.

"It is important that a protest be made that free immigration and equal rights cannot be accorded to Oriental peoples without imperilling our own national existence and destroying western civilization.

"'For east is east and west is west.
"'And never the twain shall meet.'

"According to St. Paul, while God made the people of the earth one blood, He determined the 'bounds of their habitation.'

"Of late years Congress has assumed or exercised powers which have been detrimental in the judgment of many, to the interests of the States, and the States should be alert to guard the interests of the people. Treaties have been negotiated by which aliens claim equal rights with citizens and when laws have been enacted by the Legislature affecting purely domestic questions, they have been ignored or circumvented.

"It has been held, however, that the anti-alien land law of 1915 is constitutional, but in order to accomplish its purpose it requires amendment. Its object was to prevent ownership of the soil of the State by aliens ineligible to citizenship. It has been overcome by such aliens forming corporations of which there are 200 in the State, with an aggregate authorized capital stock of more than $3,000,000, by transferring land to the names of minor children born upon the soil, and therefore citizens, and by an indefinite extension of the three-year lease authorized by law.

"The Legislature should find a remedy for these evasions of the true intent and purpose of the statute. Such aliens should not be allowed to incorporate for the purpose of holding land. The leasing privilege should be repealed, and marriages not solemnized between the contracting parties where both parties are present should be declared invalid. This would prevent Japanese women coming into the State as alleged photograph or picture brides, with the status of wives.

"The Japanese menace seems to be conceded by all who desire to preserve the soil of California for a white race. The Japanese are nonassimilable, and therefore they remain a permanent foreign element and do not contribute as citizens to the well-being of the State. They are capable, however, of crowding off the land the white farmer who refuses to come down to their standard of living and hours of work.

"Where the Government itself rests upon the free choice of the citizens, it is vital that the conditions under which the population grows and develops should be regarded as of greater importance than the mere production of crops and commodities. Whatever tends to lower the standard of American living and civilization strikes a blow at the very existence of the State.

"The Territory of Hawaii is under the American flag, but it is a Japanese plantation. There are probably one-tenth the number of Americans that there are Japanese there. California is exposed to the same danger.

"When men seeking farms and employment find themselves confronted by a problem of this kind, with the best lands of the State in the hands of aliens, whose competition is deadly to American standards, despair will be followed by resentment, and these conditions will breed I. W. W.s, Bolshevism, and all the modern evils of a deranged economic system.

"The matter of Oriental immigration has been brought before the conference in Paris where the constitution of the League of Nations is being drafted. The Japanese, against the protests of the United States and Australia, ask for racial equality.

"I do not believe that the conference will attempt so far to trespass upon the sovereignty of constituent nations as to dictate in matters affecting immigration, naturalization, land ownership, education, inter-marriages, and the elective franchise, but it must be borne in mind that Japan is one of the five powers sitting in the conference and it must be made clear that the United States regards this as a question of self-preservation and cannot compromise it. Unless a protest is made the doctrine of acquiescence will be invoked to say that America is indifferent."

ITALY MISSES ORLANDO.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 30.—The impossibility of Premier Orlando leaving Paris in these momentous days has made necessary the postponement of opening the Chamber to May 23. This has created a certain amount of discontent and restlessness in some political circles, as it means the impossibility of holding general elections in June. The Chamber will be obliged to have a long sitting to ratify the peace conditions decided upon by the Paris conference. Very probably, therefore, the general elections will occur in October, and at the same time there will be brought up again the discussion of electoral reform in favor of pluri nominal constituencies.

Every one is expressing the wish for a speedy settlement of the problems at the Paris conference to enable the Premier again to take his place at the head of the Government and to settle immediately many question of vital importance to the nation, which, if not ably and firmly handled, may prevent the Italian people from enjoying the fruits of the victory attained through so many sacrifices.

What may happen to your heirs after you are gone.

9 everyday business errors

3. Neglecting to check up items in current bills.
4. Inability to keep check book balanced.
5. Too easy optimism in starting credit accounts.
6. Careless handling of valuable business papers.
7. Signing documents without knowing their contents.
8. Tendency to establish living expenses which would exceed income and eat into savings.
9. Tendency to invest money on dangerous hearsay — without proper knowledge of facts.

THESE nine everyday business errors are common to many households. Their main importance lies in their significance when applied to the management of an estate in the hands of inexperienced heirs.

By way of making the significance clear consider Number 8:

Experience shows that the average heir, upon receipt of willed property, very quickly scales his, or her, expenditures upward.

The total value of the legacy is uppermost in mind. An over-sense of financial security is established and the actual income-value of the estate temporarily overlooked.

In such a case, the principal may become seriously depleted before the real condition of affairs is appreciated.

Frequent check of expenditure against income is a logical safeguard. This is automatically ensured if the heir receives from the estate a fixed income at stated intervals. Expenditures may then be gauged on a safe basis.

You can secure such disposition of your estate by appointing the Mercantile Trust & Deposit Company executor and trustee under your will. The final payment of principal can be arranged for such future date as your judgment approves.

We shall be glad to explain details or other advantages of such a business arrangement to any one who will communicate with us.

SENATORS SUPPORT ROOT ON LEAGUE

DISSENT BY HITCHCOCK

Nebraskan Says Proposed Arbitration Amendment Would Make Ratification More Difficult.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The warning of Elihu Root, in his letter to Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, that the American peace delegates should not enter into any pact for a League of Nations that does not amply protect the Monroe Doctrine and in other ways safeguard the national sovereignty of the United States, evoked the profoundest interest today among Senators at the capital. The attitude of the former Secretary of State in supporting the League idea in the main, while advocating amendments that, he considered, would make it a more effective vehicle from the American viewpoint, was regarded as voicing the reflective opinion of the party that will have the preponderance of votes when the peace treaty, with the League project, comes up for ratification in the Senate.

Mr. Root struck a responsive chord with Republican Senators in urging that reservations be made to safeguard the Monroe Doctrine and that the League covenant embrace a clause to assure the arbitration of justifiable disputes involving international law by an organized agency, such as The Hague Tribunal or some other regularly constituted authority. His insistence that the American delegates do not come back without making sure that the Monroe Doctrine is safe against foreign encroachment was considered by the Republican Senators as likely to awaken a lively sentiment throughout the country as to the necessity for unwavering action by the American delegates at Paris.

Impetus to Reservations.

The feeling was expressed at the Capitol that the American people had come to a frame of mind that would not tolerate any sacrifice of the principles of the Monroe Doctrine. Mr. Root's expression of this sentiment, after similar opinion had been voiced by Senator Lodge, Senator Knox and other leaders in the Republican Party, as well as Democratic Senators, such as Mr. Reed and Mr. Underwood, was regarded here as giving an impetus to the fight for the Monroe Doctrine reservation.

The insistence of Mr. Root that the League of Nations covenant does not offer the medium for adjusting disputes among nations involving their individual integrity was accepted by Republican Senators. They agreed with him that the covenant is weak in providing merely for the creation of a body to handle such disputes after they have arisen. Mr. Root's idea that such a body ought to be permanently organized and not established after arguments among nations in the League have arisen met their approval. Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, however, disagreed with Mr. Root on this point. Mr. Hitchcock contends that the League covenant provides a practical way to adjust disputes involving "national honor and vital interests," and that treaties already in effect would fully protect the United States. He disagreed with Mr. Root that these treaties would be swept aside by the League of Nations compact.

Nearly all the Senators at the Capitol today agreed with Mr. Root that the League of Nations idea, in its basic fundamentals, is practicable, and nearly all agreed with him too that, to make it effective, it must be radically amended. Even Senator Borah of Idaho, the bitterest opponent of the League of Nations among the Republicans, said he was in accord with Mr. Root in his advocacy of the fundamentals of the League. But Mr. Borah went on to explain that the League covenant, if there is to be any League, must "respect the principles, sovereignty, and independence" of the United States, and he felt that the League draft as it would come to the Senate would fail to accomplish it.

Unreserved approval was voiced of Mr. Root's insistence that any scheme that will bring about a settlement of such disputes as precipitated the world war "is of very great practical value" and that "it would be a sad thing if the opportunity for the establishment of such a safeguard against future wars should not be met."

Strengthened Opposition.

That the League of Nations covenant, unless appreciably amended to embrace provisions that will guarantee the political independence of the United States in its relations to other nations, will have a difficult road to travel in being ratified by the Senate was regarded today as certain, in view of the pronounced attitude taken by Mr. Root, together with that of other Republican leaders. Although Mr. Hitchcock believes that any League covenant that may be adopted at Paris, whether it embraces a reservation for the Monroe Doctrine or not, will be accepted by the Senate, others, in both parties, take issue with him. Mr. Root's frank avowal of his own opinion as to the League is considered as having strengthened the opposition to the League as the draft now stands.

Mr. Hitchcock did not hesitate to acknowledge that Mr. Root's opinions would challenge serious consideration in the public viewpoint of the League of Nations.

"Anything said by Mr. Root on this question is entitled to the highest consideration," said the Senator. "He has been recognized for years as one of the leading advocates of the peaceful settlement of international disputes, and he has contributed largely to the advancement of the cause of arbitration. He is a great lawyer, and his trend of thought therefore is in the direction of court proceedings.

"Mr. Root is in favor of establishing an international tribunal for the trial of disputes between nations, even those including 'national honor' and 'vital interests,' providing they are justiciable in character, and of making the decisions binding. This is the subject of his first proposed amendment. In my opinion, if this amendment were incorporated in the League constitution it would add to the difficulties of securing ratification.

"The Senate has never been willing to arbitrate disputes involving national honor and vital interests. It has specifically excluded them. They have been regarded as proper subjects for an 'inquiry' and 'report' by the Senate. This is also provided in the League constitution, which says the inquiry shall be made by the Executive Council. It is not safe, in my mind, to intrust to a tribunal the power to enter a binding decree.

"I can well imagine the storm of objections to this amendment in the Senate from those who fear the United States may go too far in binding itself in advance to accept the decisions of 'foreigners,' as some Senators have expressed it. Nor do I think other nations will care to go any further than we are willing to go in the direction of agreeing in advance to submit questions involving national honor and vital interests to the final decision of an international court. The proposition really contemplates, though Mr. Root does not propose it, equipping the League, or the court, with military or naval powers to enforce the decree, if necessary.

League Provision Better.

"This certainly is going too fast. Better far, in my opinion, is the League provision. It provides for arbitration where the members have treaties for it, or may agree upon it, but, if they have not, or cannot agree to arbitration, it requires them to promise in advance when they join the League that they will in any event of dispute submit to an inquiry by the Executive Committee. This less drastic form of procedure insures a delay of nine months, which alone will prevent most wars, and it sets up an international public opinion, which will probably settle the dispute.

"As to Mr. Root's proposed amendment reserving the Monroe Doctrine and American question, (including immigration,) it should, in my opinion, first of all, be divided. The Monroe Doctrine is one of American international policy and the immigration question is one of domestic policy. The immigration question is no more American than it is Canadian or Australian or British. Let us divide them then in any covenant.

"Speaking first of the Monroe Doctrine, I am frank to say that I should be glad to see it specifically reserved, if it could be. I am satisfied also that President Wilson has the same preference. I would not be willing, however, to insist on it at the expense of losing or endangering the League. Nor would I be willing to agree to consent to some of the special concessions other nations have been asking for as a trade to incorporate the Monroe Doctrine in the League.

"The Monroe Doctrine prohibits any nation of the Old World from making forcible aggressions against any nation in the Western Hemisphere. The League of Nations goes further and is designed to prevent nations from making forcible aggressions anywhere—either in the Western Hemisphere or anywhere else. If the League of Nations had been in existence one hundred years ago the declaration of the Monroe Doctrine would not have been necessary.

"The League of Nations agreement is a compromise between fourteen nations. We cannot have everything as we want it. No nation can. We may not be able to incorporate the Monroe Doctrine in it. If not, let it be omitted. Our notice to the world still stands that we will regard it as a cause for war if any nation attempts forcible aggression on the Western Hemisphere. The League is interested in preventing war, and its purpose will naturally be to prevent any such aggressions on that account.

"As to Mr. Root's proposition that questions of a domestic character, like immigration, should be definitely excluded from League jurisdiction, I agree with him, although not with the wording of his amendment. I am quite certain that only international questions can be considered, but that matter can easily be made clear, and I believe it will be.

"As to Mr. Root's other proposed amendments, they seem to me of less importance, affecting as they do chiefly the future development of the League, matters of procedure, and withdrawal of the members.

"I am glad to note his indorsement and approval of Article X., which certain Senators have attacked so furiously. He proposes to it an amendment which does not seriously weaken the article. It simply reserves to each member nation the right to withdraw after five years from the obligation to assist in preserving the political independence and territorial integrity of other nations. This withdrawal calls for a year's notice. There is no reason to think that after five years of operation there would be withdrawals. The provision that a nation can withdraw from the League itself on reasonable notice makes Mr. Root's amendment rather unnecessary.

"Above all, I am glad to see the friendly spirit in which Mr. Root suggests his amendments and the strong commendation he gives to some of the League's most important provisions."

Approved by Borah.

"With its fundamental principles I am entirely in accord," he said. "There runs through it all the rich full tone of Americanism and a positive and unmistakable plea for preservation of the independence and integrity of our Republic. He says clearly that whatever League is formed must respect the principles, sovereignty and independence of the United States.

"After quoting Washington's Farewell Address against artificial or permanent alliances and Jefferson's famous advice to Monroe against suffering Europe to intermeddle with our affairs, he declares 'the bases of the expressions I have quoted remain in substance.' He then says there never was a time when the wisdom of the Monroe Doctrine for the preservation of the peace and safety of the United States was more evident than it is now. The American people will be grateful to Senator Root for this clear and courageous announcement of the true American principle.

"It is not in the interest of peace in America or in Europe that we should forfeit these long established policies announced by Washington and Monroe, and Europe will not ask us to forfeit them unless she has ulterior and sinister motives for doing so.

"The situation at Versailles for the last few days ought to be sufficient to cool the ardor of those who have been most willing to turn over our most vital affairs to a tribunal controlled by European powers. Why should any power in Europe or Asia oppose the reservation of the Monroe Doctrine unless it is proposed to do something in the future in contravention of that doctrine? Why should the American delegation be thwarted unless some one wants to get rid of the Monroe Doctrine, and why should they want to get rid of it?"

Representative Henry D. Flood of Virginia, Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, declared that the people of the country "will force Senators who are opposed to the League of Nations to ratify the peace treaty, including the League covenant."

"Only three or four of the Senators who have come out in opposition to the League of Nations have not provided loopholes for themselves," said Mr. Flood. "Nearly all of them are now explaining that they are for a League of Nations, but that they believe in making certain changes. I predict that those who are holding out and those who plan to oppose ratification of the treaty will hear from the folks at home in no uncertain terms.

"Nothing better than the League of Nations has been proposed by any of these gentlemen, and the criticism for the most part has not been just and in accordance with the facts. I am thoroughly opposed to the surrender of our sovereignty in any degree, and I am for upholding the Monroe Doctrine.

"I fail to see the 'dangers' in the present covenant that some of the Senators seem to find. And I predict that they are doomed to failure if they persist in attempting to convince the American people that the President and the American peace delegation are doing anything that will relinquish any of our national rights. I will go even further and predict their political doom if they persist and fail to ratify the peace treaty.

"I believe the American delegation is working faithfully to speed up the negotiations, both as to the actual treaty and as to the League of Nations pact."

LEA LED ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP KAISER

port News who had a "tip" on the story were very anxious to obtain full details from Colonel Lea. He told them the story was true, and that, while he intended to tell the whole story later, he did not care to confirm the facts so long as he was an officer in the uniform of the American Army.

He related some of the details to several with whom he talked and told them that the party of more than a dozen American officers and soldiers was made up of men from all parts of the United States.

There were four commissioned and three non-commissioned officers in the party besides some others. Three of them were from the South, among them Captain L. S. McPhail of Nashville, and Lieutenant Ellsworth Brown of Chattanooga.

According to the story as told by Colonel Lea, the kidnapping party went from Luxemburg into Holland in automobiles. They stopped their cars near Amerongen Castle. Some of the officers went to the Kaiser's retreat.

While Colonel Lea did not undertake to give all the details, he told his friends that the Kaiser had spoiled the project, suspecting that something was wrong with the visit of the Americans to the Castle.

One of the Kaiser's orderlies telephoned from the Bentinck Castle to Amerongen for help, and a detachment of Holland soldiers was rushed out to the Castle on motorcycles. When the Americans caught a glimpse of the guards riding down the road "things were getting too warm for us," as Colonel Lea put it, and the Americans, whose waiting automobiles had their noses turned toward France, immediately sped toward the frontier and succeeded in escaping.

They were afraid that if taken into custody by the Holland soldiers they would all be interned or that, if not interned, representations would be made by the Dutch Government which would result in court-martial proceedings being brought against them on their being surrendered to General Pershing's control.

Report to War Department.

It was learned from a high official tonight that a report was officially made to the War Department on the Kaiser kidnapping expedition, but the official making this admission would not say whether this report contained the names of the men figuring in the escapade. It was also learned that the matter had reached the War Department in several forms and versions. Whether the Holland Government had brought the matter to the attention of this country could not be learned. Whether the War Department would now institute an investigation on the basis of disclosure of the identity of Colonel Lea and others in the party, was something else that could not be ascertained.

While it is impossible to tell the whole story as it will soon be related by Colonel Lea, enough was learned by those who talked with Colonel Lea after his return to bear out the main features of the story as currently told in foreign and American papers, without giving the names of the officers involved, immediately after the escapade first became known. According to the versions then current, on one of the first three days in January the Colonel of an American regiment, with two of his Captains and a military chauffeur, set out from his regimental headquarters and motored into Belgium. Soon after the start the car broke down, but the Colonel was supplied with another automobile, whose driver turned it over to the Colonel's chauffeur.

The party proceeded to Brussels, where, it is alleged, they saw Minister Whitlock and obtained from him passes permitting them to cross the border into Holland. When the car arrived at the castle gate in Amerongen the top was up and the curtains on, and the chauffeur was told to turn it around and keep the engine running. The occupants of the car were received at the castle by Count Bentinck, who escorted them into a drawing room and carried to the Kaiser their request for an interview. In a few moments men of the ex-Kaiser's guard began to filter into the room, and presently the guards in the room outnumbered the American officers.

Count Bentinck then returned to say that Wilhelm desired to know if the party represented officially the American Government or the higher military authorities.

The Colonel admitted that they did not. Count Bentinck withdrew and in a few moments returned to say that Wilhelm would not receive the Americans. With German guards all about them, the party left the castle and went away in the automobile, returning to their headquarters with the Army of Occupation.

Expected Welcome from Kaiser.

Within a few days French, British, and American newspapers published accounts of the appearance of the American military automobile at Amerongen. In some of these it was openly stated that the American party had intended to kidnap the Kaiser. It was expected that the Kaiser would welcome them. They thought he could be inveigled to the castle gate, where it was proposed to seize him, bundle him into the automobile and make off across the border, carrying him to Paris as a present to the Peace Conference.

Colonel Lea served in the United States Senate from 1911 to 1917. He is a Democrat, a thirty-second degree Mason, an Elk, a Red Man, and a Knight of Pythias, belongs to the Hermitage, Golf, and Country Clubs, and his fraternities are Alpha Tau, Omega, and Phi Delta Phi. He was the successor in the Senate of Colonel "Bob" Taylor, and came to the Senate after the famous contest in the Legislature in which he won by one vote against a group of opponents, among whom were Luke Wright, former Secretary of War; Benton McMillin, who served twenty years in Congress and is now American Ambassador to Peru, and B. H. Enlow, of the old Eight Tennessee Congressional District. The vote which elected Lea to the Senate was cast by an old fraternity man who had been a member of one of the Greek letter societies at the University of the South at Sewanee, where Lea was educated. Two years ago Lea was beaten in the primaries in Tennessee by McKellar, his successor in the Senate.

Lea responded for service in the war against Germany as soon as it was declared. He was sent to Camp Jackson, won a commission as Major, and went over with the 114th Field Artillery, which was part of what since has become famous as the Thirtieth Division. This division distinguished itself with the 27th Division in smashing the Hindenburg line on the western front. The unit commanded by Colonel Lea is the first part of the 30th Division that has so far returned to the United States. Colonel Lea's regiment was part of the 55th Brigade of that division.

When Luke Lea, a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families of Tennessee, was elected to represent that State in the United States Senate in 1911, he was immediately christened "the baby Senator." This was a reference to his age, for he was then only 32 years old, rather than to his physical proportions, for the new Senator stood well over six feet and was bulky despite his height; and when he started to speak he was "heard in the next county," as a friend once put it.

Graduated from Sewanee College, he had been practising law and publishing The Danville Tennessean for ten years before he went to the Senate. Shortly after he took his seat his wife, always delicate, became seriously ill. It was necessary that a blood transfusion be made, and the big, stalwart Senator gave more than a quart of his blood, fainting after the operation. As a result of the operation he was taken ill and hovered between life and death for some time.

In 1915 Senator Lea was defeated for re-election. He then returned to the law and to the publication of his newspaper.

SENTENCE OF DEBS UPHELD BY COURT

Rehearing Denied in Application for Review of Penalty of Ten Years in Prison.

RENEWS STRIKE THREAT

Says Indiana Miners Will Quit Work on Day He Goes to Prison.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Eugene V. Debs's application for a rehearing of his appeal from conviction and sentence to ten years' imprisonment for violating the Espionage act was denied today by the Supreme Court.

In filing his motion for a rehearing, Debs claimed the court's opinion amounted to the trial of a person for an undisclosed "state of mind," that the privilege of showing his motive in making the speech for which he was convicted was denied him, and that the court had failed to decide all of the questions presented to it for review.

The prosecution resulted from statements made by Debs in a speech in Canton, Ohio, last June. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction on March 10. Unless executive clemency is obtained, Debs now must serve his sentence. He is at liberty on bail.

AKRON, Ohio, March 31.—When shown the report of the decision of the Supreme Court, Debs said:

"That means that by May 1, the day on which I begin my sentence, a general strike will have culminated. It must not be forgotten that that day is the labor day of the world. On that day I had been assured that if the Supreme Court had not ruled by that time more than 5,000 labor meetings would have been held asking for my release.

"The miners of my own State, Indiana, will start the strike. These men came to me at my home in Terre Haute before I started on my last speaking tour and told me that from the day I went to the penitentiary there would be no more coal mined in Indiana until the day I was released.

"The movement will undoubtedly begin at once."

HAVE MUNSON AFFIDAVITS.

Statement of Actress Who Lived in Wilkins House Not Given Out.

Chief Operative Allen U. Myer of the Burns Agency has returned from Canada, and he turned over yesterday to District Attorney Charles R. Weeks of Nassau County affidavits made by Mrs. Catherine Munson and her daughter, Andrey Munson, a moving picture actress, and both former lodgers in the West 65th Street house kept by Dr. Walter K. Wilkins, now in the County Jail at Mineola charged with the murder of his wife. Those interested in the case would not say anything regarding the nature of the affidavits made by Mrs. Munson and her daughter.

The authorities have been seeking to find out whether the doctor was very friendly with his lodgers, and they have wanted to know why Mrs. Munson and Miss Munson left the Wilkins house. The reason they left, report had it, was because Mrs. Wilkins objected to them cooking in their rooms.

Attorneys for Dr. Wilkins indicated yesterday that they would prove that on the night Mrs. Wilkins was murdered in the yard of her house there were several burglaries in Long Beach. This would tend to support the story told by Dr. Wilkins that his wife was killed and himself assaulted by burglars they surprised in their home.

SEATTLE ORGANIZER HERE.

Marmer Speaks at Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines' Meeting.

New York is going to have its own Soldiers', Sailors and Marines' Protective Association, according to Peter Marmer, one of the organizers of Seattle's council, who spoke last night at a meeting of the Soldiers', Sailors' and Marines' Protective Association, held in the Labor Temple, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street. Not only that, but at another point in his speech Marmer, who wore the uniform of the navy, said that capitalism was the most undemocratic element in American life today.

Ralph Tropp, President of the association, a discharged soldier, presided. The first speaker was Alfred Leavipp, its Secretary, who served as a yeoman in the navy. Leavipp urged that something be done for the returned men, and added that unless "Congress does something it will have to be kicked out." Young Mr. Leavipp said that Congress's expulsion should be through the ballot, rather than by force. John Hopkins, who was introduced as the ex-Chairman of the National Progressive Party of the State of New York, said that the only thing the Government had done for the returned men, so far as he knew, was to offer them a chance to cultivate stump and swamp land out West. He predicted that a serious condition would develop within six months.

Marmer's talk was devoted chiefly to events in the recent Seattle general strike. He said that it was necessary for the discharged men in this city to "organize to offset violence." He was very emphatic in denying that he was a Bolshevist. "I am an American and I was born here." As the audience of 500, about 400 of them in uniform, were leaving, each received a publication at the door which explained the Soviet idea. After hearing Marmer again and again protest that the meeting was not Bolshevist, and that it was simply a gathering of Americans gotten together to attempt to solve the soldier re-employment problem, most of the men went home carrying a document that began by stating that "the war had put arms into their hands, (the Russian peasants,) and common sense into their heads and they used both to rid themselves of their oppressors," and ended with this question: "Oh, Ye Workers of America, When Will You Awaken?" The publication was distributed by the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Labor Party.

RESUME BREADLINE HERE.

East Side Missions Are Feeding Several Hundred Daily.

For the first time in a number of years the bread line has been resumed in New York City. Five hundred persons, many of them skilled mechanics, have for several days been receiving bread and coffee at 203 East Ninth Street and at 44 Bowery, where missions are being conducted by Urbain J. Ledoux, ex-American Consul to Prague, Bohemia, Austria, who during the war was engaged with the New York War Camp Community Service. The number who seek aid at the missions is growing daily, and Mr. Ledoux issued yesterday his first appeal to the public for help.

The mission at 203 East Ninth Street is known as "The Stepping Stone" and was founded by Mr. Ledoux some months ago in continuation of social welfare work he has been doing on the east side for more than a year. Of the 200 who received bread and coffee there last evening, fifty-five said they were skilled mechanics, and all but five had been engaged in war industries. Thirty-five of the number have dependents. Mr. Ledoux said that there are now about 100,000 unemployed on the east side. All the east side lodging places, including the Municipal Lodging House, were filled by 5 o'clock in the afternoon every day, Mr. Ledoux said, and thousands were sleeping on benches.

cal situation, and there were no troops anywhere engaged on a more merciful and beneficent task.

In the middle east and the Caucasus were 75,000 men, and he hoped that they might be reduced substantially in the near future. These troops had been there to expel Turks and Germans, and were there now merely to keep the people from flying at each other's throats until decisions had been reached at the Peace Conference.

In Mesopotamia Great Britain had 30,000 men. After emphasizing the smallness of the number of troops actually in Russia, Mr. Churchill said that if Russia did not exist the bill would still be necessary.

In north Russia and Siberia there were something like 20,000 men, out of a total of 859,000 British troops, comprising the contemplated army of occupation in the various areas during this trying period. From these 859,000 men it would be necessary to deduct 208,000, who were not combatants.

"To secure peace and tranquillity throughout the immense regions that have fallen into our hands during the war and to secure fulfillment of the peace treaty and to enable us, in conjunction with our allies, to influence a settlement in Europe," said Mr. Churchill, "the total forces we purpose to keep at our disposal are thus approximately 850,000 men."

It was quite impossible to get the forces required by voluntary means before the peace treaty was definitely ratified, he asserted.

Referring to a speech by a Deputy, who had attributed the situation in Egypt to the military government of the country, Mr. Churchill remarked that, whatever might be said, British soldiers and British Generals were more in demand in every country of the world as law givers and pacifiers than the soldiers of any other country. As a matter of fact, British rule, under which Egypt had prospered so enormously, he asserted, had never been military, but civilian. Of course, in time of war, exceptional steps had to be taken, but the country had been administered through civilian authorities.

prietor, Henri Letellier, by a warning to that effect. At that time the Senator did not form part of their combination. The prosecution alleges that he forced them to admit him and with their money and aid carried through the Journal purchase in July, 1915.

As further proof of this guilty knowledge, it is alleged that once the deal was accomplished he set himself to get rid of them by playing on their fears regarding the money's origin. In regard to the latter point there is a sinister story to the effect that Lenoir and Desouches got 5,000,000 francs from Germany, in the form of 65,000 different banknotes, many crumpled, torn, and bloodstained, which was part of the German plunder from invaded France.

Desouches speedily weakened, but Lenoir proved more obdurate, and the aid of Captain Ladoux was called in to terrify him into submission. When his new ally proved successful, Humbert seemed master of the great newspaper, but Lenoir's financial guardian, Maitre Brunet, insisted on the return of the money. Then Humbert utilized Bolo's German millions, knowing that the latter also would be as clay in his hands through guilt.

There seems no intention to claim that Humbert betrayed his country, but simply that he used funds he knew to be of German origin to gratify his own ambition. Consequently the charge against him and Ladoux is only commerce with the enemy, not implying capital punishment, as would "intelligence," of which Lenoir and Desouches are accused.

It is expected that the trial will take nearly a month, and, though sensational developments are expected, they are not likely to occur immediately.

Members of Red Cross Motor Corps Decide to Continue Service.

Blue and gray uniformed members of the American Red Cross Motor Corps, representing twenty-nine chapters of the Atlantic Division, met last evening at the Waldorf-Astoria, and after speeches had been delivered urging them to continue the work they had been doing during the war, decided unanimously to proceed with this work until every casual had returned from France. Addresses of praise for the Motor Corps were delivered by its head, Dr. Dorothy C. Smyley, Associate Director of the Atlantic Division, who presided; Colonel G. G. Woodwark of the British Commission; Colonel De Witt Weld, commanding the 105th Field Artillery of the 27th Division; Albert W. Straub, assistant manager of the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, and H. J. Rogers, Assistant Director of Military Relief.

J. W. BAILEY CALLS WILSON A SOCIALIST

DENOUNCES THE CABINET

Not One "Can Fairly Be Called a Democrat," He Writes His New York Namesake.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Declaring that President Wilson is "a Socialist" who has "proscribed" the real Democrats of this country," ex-Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas has written to Leon O. Bailey of New York a letter in which the assertion is made that "within the next two years the Democratic Party must either repudiate President Wilson or it must embrace practically all of the Socialist doctrines."

Mr. Bailey asserts that President Wilson has driven the Democratic Party into a reluctant support of many socialistic measures, and "that before his term expires he will have committed us, unless his power in that regard is challenged, irrevocably to socialism under the name of 'progressive Democracy.'"

Declaring his belief that President Wilson is a Socialist; that he was elected by Socialist voters in 1916 who had voted for Debs in 1912; that the President excludes real Democrats from conference with him and takes into closest confidence semi-Socialists and Socialists, Mr. Bailey says it seems to him that the time has come when "men who are not willing to become Socialists must speak out."

Ex-Senator Bailey's letter was written in reply to one he had received from Leon O. Bailey of New York City after the ex-Senator's recent speech at Newark, which appears to have been construed by Mr. Bailey of New York, as it was by some others, as meaning that his friend had withdrawn from the Democratic Party.

Following is the text of the letter:

"My Dear Leon—Yours of the 22d reached me in this morning's mail. You evidently did not read what I said with your customary care or else the report of it which you read was not accurate. I did not say that I had withdrawn from the Democratic Party. What I did say was that 'I will never again vote for the candidate of any party which constantly reduces our liberties and unnecessarily increases our taxes'; but that can only be construed as an announcement of my withdrawal from the Democratic Party upon the theory that the Democratic Party will continue to abridge our liberties and increase our taxes. If it does I will not continue to vote its ticket. But that does not mean that I have ceased to be a Democrat; on the contrary, it means that I am resolved to remain a Democrat in principle whatever I become in name.

"The only difference between you and me, as I read your letter, is one of procedure. You object as strongly as I do to the things which I have condemned, but doubt the wisdom of making your objection public. I cannot agree with that view. Inasmuch as those who are striving to socialize the Democratic Party are perniciously active in their work, it seems to me that we have reached a time when men who are not willing to become Socialists must speak out, and must speak out loudly enough to be heard. I know you would not advise any man to be a hypocrite, and consequently I am sure that, on reflection, you will not find fault with me for having said what I think.

"Pandering to Socialists."

"Your suggestion that I 'can render our country a better service in the Democratic Party than on the outside' would be sound if our present organization were really a Democratic Party; but had that been true, I would not have thought it necessary to say what I said at Newark. For several years our leaders have been pandering to Populists, Socialists, and political nondescripts, until they have now adopted almost everything which the old Populist Party advocated, and many of the things which the Socialist Party has advocated. In the hope that the Democrats who sought no office would perceive the danger of what was being done and compel all Democratic officeholders to renew their devotion to the real representatives of our party, I have refrained from making any public protests; but instead of the Democratic masses disciplining the Democratic leaders, the body of the party is becoming tainted with the 'isms,' and Democratic principles, as they were taught by our fathers, will be entirely discarded, unless something is done to arrest and reverse the present tendency.

"Can this work of regeneration be done by acquiescing in what every good Democrat must consider the betrayal of Democratic principles? I think not. How can men like you and me calculate that we can serve our country or save our party by sacrificing our convictions and following a group of politicians who are teaching governmental doctrines which we believe certain to subvert this Republic? Do you suppose for one moment that we can influence the people now in power? The President has proscribed the real Democrats of this country, and excludes them from all conferences with him, though he takes into his closest confidence semi-Socialists and Socialists. Consider his Cabinet. Some of them are downright Socialists, and not one of them can fairly be called a Democrat, according to any definition of Democracy which you and I have heretofore accepted.

Attacks Democrats in Office.

"With a few honorable exceptions, every man holding an important political office under this Administration utilizes every opportunity to discredit all men who adhere firmly to the fundamentals of a representative democracy; they stigmatize every man who believes in a faithful observance of the Constitution as a 'reactionary,' and they denounce those who defend the right of private property as 'subservient to the interests.' How, then, can any man who believes in the principles of the Democratic Party vote for such men? They reject Democratic principles, and apply, in the conduct of our Government, principles which Democrats always have opposed. If you and I help to elect such men to office, we have no right to complain at the manner in which they administer our public affairs.

"I am fully persuaded that within the next two years the Democratic Party must either repudiate President Wilson or it must embrace practically all of the Socialist doctrines. He has already led our party—or rather, I should say he has already driven our party—into a reluctant support of many Socialistic measures, and before his term expires he will have committed us, unless his power in that regard is challenged, irrevocably to Socialism, under the name of 'progressive democracy.' What then can you, and men like you, say to yourselves and to your friends? Will you say that you allowed Mr. Wilson to deceive you? You can hardly excuse yourselves on that plea; because every Democrat in the United States with intelligence enough to know why he is a Democrat now knows that Mr. Wilson is a Socialist—or, at least, he is not a Democrat, if Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson were Democrats.

"The Socialists understand the attitude of the President, if Democrats do not, and 40 per cent. of the men who voted for Eugene Debs in 1912 voted for Mr. Wilson in 1916. I say this, because the Socialists polled almost a million votes for Debs in 1912, while they polled less than six hundred thousand votes for their Presidential candidate in 1916. Where did those 400,000 Socialist votes go? Nobody supposes that they remained at home, nor does anybody suppose that any of them were cast for Judge Hughes; they must, therefore, have been cast for President Wilson.

Herron's View of Wilson.

"A Socialist preacher and teacher recently wrote a book entitled 'Woodrow Wilson and the World's Peace,' in which he describes the President as 'revolutionary beyond anything his words reveal, beyond anything his contemporaries have discovered,' and further declares that, 'as compared with Woodrow Wilson, there are socialistic spokesmen who are Bourbon in their understanding and their sympathy.' The man who wrote that description of the President has, since the publication of the book in which it appears, been appointed by the President to represent the United States at a most important conference.

"I may not accomplish much by a public and emphatic protest against the present trend of Democratic legislation and administration; but it is certain that I could accomplish nothing by remaining silent, and when the disaster comes—as come it must, if we persist in our present course—I shall have the unspeakable satisfaction of knowing that I have done what I could to avert it. Sincerely your friend,

"JOSEPH W. BAILEY."

GODSOL EXONERATED WINNER ON APPEAL

DID NOT PRACTICE FRAUD

French Government's Charges Declared Unfounded—Pierce-Arrow Commissions Legitimate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today affirmed the action of Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in ordering the release from custody, in habeas corpus proceedings last June, of Frank Joseph Godsol, former French soldier, arrested a year ago and charged with defrauding the French Government by alleged false pretenses of $1,500,000 in connection with the purchase of automobile trucks for war uses.

The opinion of the Court of Appeals was rendered by Justice Robb, and was concurred in by Justice Van Orsdel. Chief Justice Smyth filed a dissenting opinion.

The victory won by Godsol and his counsel before this court follows a year of litigation, begun last March when Godsol was arrested and held without bond on a complaint sworn to by the French Ambassador, Jusserand, for his extradition to France. Justice Hitz of the District Supreme Court sat as a committing Magistrate in the case, and held Godsol for extradition to France. Godsol's counsel instituted habeas corpus proceedings, which were heard by Justice Gould, who ordered the release of the accused on July 29, 1918. When the Government appealed Godsol was released on $50,000 bail to await the action of the Appellate Court. He deposited Liberty bonds as bail.

Findings of Lower Court.

Justice Gould held that the French Government did not seem to agree with the theory of the complaint as to the character of the false pretenses alleged to have been made by Godsol.

"The testimony, admissible and hearsay combined," said Justice Gould's opinion, "is entirely too meagre and inadequate to enable me to reach the conclusion that there is probable cause to believe that Godsol made the representations set forth in the complaint. But, even if probable cause were deducible from adequate evidence, there are other reasons which force me to the conclusion that the petitioner should not be held for extradition upon the record before me.

"The first is that the complaint itself is defective, not in form, but in substance. The second is that there is not only a variance between the allegations and the proofs, but the proofs squarely contradict the allegations. The record does not leave it open to discussion that the money obtained by Godsol was obtained from the Pierce-Arrow Company and not from the Republic of France. The record is equally clear, to my mind, that it was the money of the Pierce-Arrow Company and that France had no right, title or claim thereto. The record discloses no complaint as to this contract on the part of the Pierce-Arrow Company during the three years in which it has been in force."

In affirming the decision of Justice Gould, the Court of Appeals decision, read by Justice Robb, says, in part:

"Viewed from any angle, we can find no 'competent and adequate evidence' (which, as we understand, means substantial evidence) in support of the charge against Godsol. The complaint is that false representations were made to the Pierce-Arrow Company, and that the money was obtained from the French Government. The contract of purchase was between the Pierce-Arrow Company and that Government. Payments by the Government were to that company in this country, and those payments, of course, included the commissions here involved. In short, it was the usual and customary arrangement. The Pierce-Arrow Company then paid its agent here. If any one was deceived, it was the Pierce-Arrow Company and not the French Republic, for the commissions paid Godsol's firm in New York were not paid by that republic, but by the company from money to which the company had absolute ownership.

No Deception Practiced.

"The theory of the prosecution is that no agency was necessary. In other words, that exactly the same number of trucks would have been purchased by the French Government had the Godsol agency not intervened. It logically follows that no deception was practiced upon that Government. It wanted Pierce-Arrow trucks, and it got what it wanted, at an agreed price.

"But it knew that an agency did intervene, and that knowledge came to it immediately following the creation of the agency.

"Since commissions are usually considered a necessary incident of agency, it is somewhat strange that more than two years should have elapsed before any effort was made to deal directly with the Pierce-Arrow Company. Of course, that company would have been prfectly willing to eliminate the agency, but, having unsuccessfully tried direct dealings, it ought not now to be convicted of bad faith by a finding based upon pure suspicion that it made a corrupt bergain with Godsol."

"The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company has written to Mr. Godsol a letter under date of Feb. 27 in which it states: 'We have never had the slightest cause for complaint or criticism of your method of handling business negotiations in our interest. Our business association and negotiations with you have always been of the most cordial and friendly nature. In any question necessitating business negotiations you have met us in a fair and liberal manner. You have never in a single instance failed to fulfill all of your promises to us, whether these promises were in writing or were verbal.'

"Mr. Merten E. Lewis, former Attorney General of the State of New York, in whose office was Alfred L. Becker, who made the investigation on which the entire prosecution against Mr. Godsol was based, has stated in writing that he agrees with Judge Gould's conclusion, and further that the record 'does not in my opinion disclose evidence to justify the charges that Mr. Godsol made any false representations to any one either in France or within the State of New York.'

"Godsol in this case merely acted as agent for the Pierce-Arrow and other motor companies and received the usual agent's commissions."

GLOBE PRESSMEN ON STRIKE

President of Union Had Counseled Men Not to Quit.

Because two discharged pressmen, who had been employed by The New York Globe, were not reinstated twenty-five pressmen quit work yesterday. When it was known that the men intended to strike the International Pressmen's Union was notified, and George L. Berry, President of that organization, came to The Globe plant and counseled the men not to leave their work while the trouble was being arbitrated. His advice was not heeded.

The strike of the pressmen delayed the getting out of editions yesterday. Peter Breen, foreman of the pressroom, said that more than one-half of the paper's circulation was printed. He blamed David Simon, President of the local, for the hasty action of the men. The two men, who were discharged three weeks ago, Mr. Breen said, had been let go because they had overstayed their leaves of absence. The whole matter, he said, was in the hands of the international organization, but the men would not wait for that body to take action.

Misses' Evora Cloth Cape-Wrap 69.50

EVORA CLOTH is now in the limelight of fashion because it is the scarcest of the preferred wool fabrics; in fact it is almost impossible to procure. Its infrequent appearance has greatly enhanced the desirability of this fabric in the eyes of those who want an exclusive cape-wrap.

And it has many other charms aside from being exclusive. It is soft, pliable, light weight and clinging—essential characteristics for gracefully draped cape-wraps which attain the fashionably slender lines.

There are Misses' Evora Cloth Wraps in reindeer, taupe and new shades of brown; also black. Varying length models with deep yokes, coatee or panel fronts; large piquant collars, plain or marvelously designed silk linings.

WESTERN SOLDIERS RETURN ON SIBONEY

SAW ENTRY INTO BRUSSELS

Men of 35th, 73d, and 87th Divisions Arrive on the Maui and the Alaskan.

Among the 9,647 troops who returned yesterday from France were detachments of the 363d and 364th Infantry Regiments which were part of the 91st Division, trained at Camp Lewis, Washington, and composed of men from California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana, and Alaska. They were on the naval transport Siboney and were met down the bay by relatives and friends from the West, who had been waiting in New York for several days to greet them. The Western warriors have their divisional insignia, the green fir tree, painted on their trench helmets and embroidered on their shoulders.

The 91st Division took 2,360 German prisoners, 400 machine guns, and a large number of field guns and tanks, and its losses were 1,160 killed or died of wounds and missing and 5,000 wounded. One of its men won the Congressional Medal of Honor, twenty-two the Distinguished Service Cross, nineteen Belgian War Crosses and eleven the French Croix de Guerre.

Lieut. Col. Lucius Bennett, a regular army officer, who was in command of the troops on the Siboney, said that the 91st Division sailed on the first week of last July under command of Major Gen. William M. Johnston, and after six weeks' training in France were called into action as part of the First American Army in the attack on St. Mihiel. From there the division, he said, went to the Argonne on Sept. 26, where it remained until Oct. 11, when orders came to advance into the enemy territory, and after marching eight miles and capturing several entrenchments, the 91st joined the Belgian Army under command of King Albert.

Later they took part in the Ypres offensive, with the British on one side of them and the French on the other, and in the general attack on Oct. 31 they captured the heavily fortified Spitaals-Bosschen Woods and advanced 13 kilometres into the enemy's lines. It crossed the Scheldt River and captured the ancient city of Audendarde, liberating thousands of Belgians who did not know that American soldiers were in Belgium. A house-to-house fight took place in the narrow streets, and as the Germans destroyed all the bridges across the Scheldt the 91st succeeded in crossing on pontoon bridges, hastily constructed under fire. The troops were awaiting the renewal of the attack when the news of the armistice reached them.

The division participated in the entry of King Albert into Brussels and the entry of all the allied troops into the German city of Aix-la-Chapelle.

Had Part in Belgian Triumph.

Colonel Bennett said that the day King Albert marched into Brussels the Belgian people lost their reason. They thronged the streets through which the victorious troops passed, and the church bells rang out peals of welcome, while the massed bands at the principal points played the Belgian national anthem. It was a sight that no one could witness without emotion, the Colonel said. Men and women wept for joy and cheered the American flag as heartily as they did their own when the detachments of the 91st Division went by.

The remainder of the 91st Division is believed to be on its way home from France, the officers said yesterday, and should arrive in New York within the next few days.

The transport Maui had 3,644 officers and men on board, including 632 sick and wounded, of whom 130 were mental cases. Among the troops was the 146th Regiment of the 35th Division, Ohio National Guardsmen, who fought at St. Mihiel, in the Argonne, and in other sectors. The senior army officer on board was Brig. Gen. Sanford B. Stansbury of the 73d Division, who went overseas as Colonel of the 147th Regiment and was promoted in France. In private life he is a lumber merchant in Cincinnati. His son, Private Carroll A. Stansbury, is his orderly.

Two thousand men of the 346th Infantry Regiment of the 87th Division came back on the transport Alaskan, which had 2,216 troops from St. Nazaire. They were nearly all men from New York and New Jersey and were trained at Camp Dix. They left the United States under the command of Colonel W. E. Welsh, who was later promoted to Brigadier General and attached to General Pershing's staff. They arrived in France in July, 1918, and were to have gone into the front lines on Nov. 22.

The French liner Lorraine brought back 287 casuals. One company of the casuals consisted of 2 officers and 76 men of the Chemical Warfare Section in charge of Captain Donald H. Rowe of Portland, Me.

Colonel C. T. Clark of the Army Transport Service at Hoboken said yesterday that the transports would be taxed to the utmost capacity during the next few months to bring the troops home from France. The men, he said, have to stand in line to get their food, and in many cases they will have to be satisfied with two meals per day, the Colonel added, because the galley accommodation, where the food is cooked, cannot be expanded like the sleeping accommodation.

The Leviathan, which is due tomorrow, has 13,200 troops on board, he said, who will get three meals per day, but on the succeeding voyages there will be 16,000 soldiers on board, and they will only get two meals per day. They must fill in for the other one with hard tack, cheese, and other foodstuffs, which can be eaten without cooking.

O'RYAN IS MUSTERED OUT.

Other Members of 27th's Staff Also Get Discharges.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, with the members of the staff of the 27th Division and two of the brigade commanders, received their discharge papers from the United States Army yesterday, after eighteen months' service. General O'Ryan has made no comment yet upon the report that he would resume command of the military forces of the State by appointment by Governor Smith. The other officers will resume work in their professions or business.

As a courtesy to the three Generals who were to be mustered out, Major Gen. David C. Shanks, commanding the Port of Embarkation, sent officers to General O'Ryan's office in the Hall of Records to fill out the required papers and to make the necessary physical examinations. General O'Ryan was met there by Brig. Gen. George Albert Wingate of the 52d Artillery Brigade, and Brig. Gen. Charles I. Debevoise of the 53d Infantry Brigade. The other brigade commander, Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, will resume his rank as Colonel of Infantry in the regular army.

Other members of General O'Ryan's staff went to Hoboken for their medical examination and to sign their papers. They were: Lieut. Cols. Edward Olmstead and William T. Starr, assistant chiefs of staff; J. Leslie Kincaid, Judge Advocate; Joseph J. Daly, ordnance officer; Edward McLeer, machine gun officer; Henry S. Sternberger, Quartermaster; J. Mayhew Wainright, inspector, and Walter C. Montgomery, surgeon, and Majors Lucius A. Salisbury and Lefferts Hutton, medical officers; Sydney G. De Kay and August B. Peterson, assistant chiefs of staff; Tristram Tupper, adjutant; Raymond D. Monis and M. F. Carney, transport officers; Chaplains Francis A. Kelly and E. A. Jayne, and Captain J. D. Eddy, aid.

It has been recommended to Governor Smith by a commission, headed by Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, that the officers resume their ranks in the State Guard. Most of the officers are anxious to serve in a National Guard organization, and few officers in the division are anxious to serve in the Regular Army.

77TH DIVISION PLANS A $5,000,000 CLUB

TO MARK GRAVES IN FRANCE

Association Has 1,500 Bronze Tablets Ready for Shipment—List of Officers Promoted.

Tentative plans drawn by Warren & Wetmore for the proposed $5,000,000 clubhouse of the 77th Division were made public yesterday at the headquarters of the 77th Division Association at 280 Madison Avenue. The site of the old Astor Library, at Lafayette and Eighth Streets, has been tentatively selected as the location for the clubhouse. This piece of land and the building now occupying it have been leased for one year by the association, to provide a temporary club for the men when they return to the United States this month. Carpenters and decorators have been put to work renovating the building.

While other sites further uptown have been considered for the permanent clubhouse, those in charge of the project generally favor the Astor Library site because so many of the men in the 77th Division came from the lower east side. The Executive Committee in charge of the clubhouse plans consists of Major S. Fullerton, Weaver, Major Julius O. Adler, Major George C. McMurtry, and Major Lewis Sanders. Major James A. Roosevelt, who died on his way from France a few days ago, was also a member of the Executive Committee.

Keeping in mind the monumental character such an edifice should have, the architects have sought to design a building which will typify the spirit of Americanism that was developed in the division. The proposed clubhouse, as seen in the architects' drawings, resembles somewhat the Parthenon.

The building will contain a separate room for each regiment in the division, with a large drill hall capable of accommodating 6,000 men. It is planned to install a gymnasium which will rank among the finest in the city. Other proposed features are a restaurant, grill room, and reading rooms. Sleeping quarters for 500 men are also provided for in the plans.

The methods of raising the funds for the clubhouse have not been decided upon as yet. Several officers of the division expressed the opinion yesterday that the $5,000,000 could probably be raised within the division itself. Credit for originating the idea of the clubhouse is given to Major General Robert Alexander, commanding officer of the division and honorary President of the 77th Division Association.

Officers of the 77th held a preliminary meeting yesterday at the Biltmore to discuss plans for making the homecoming of the division a success. At this meeting the suggestions contained in the letters of scores of relatives of the men sent to the association were read and discussed. The suggestion of having cheer leaders along the line of march to co-ordinate the vocal greetings of the crowd met with approval. The officers will hold a conference this morning with the Mayor's Committee in the Hall of Records.

Lieut. Col. Douglas Campbell, who heads the advance party sent by Major Gen. Alexander to co-operate with the local organization in the reception arrangements, made public yesterday a partial list of promotions of officers in the division made after the signing of the armistice. These promotions resulted from Secretary Baker's modification of his order stopping the advancement of officers after the cessation of hostilities. The promotions are as follows:

Fifteen hundred grave markers, one of which is to be placed over the grave of every member of the division buried in France, have been received at the 77th Division headquarters, to be shipped to France this week.

The marker is a figure of the Statue of Liberty, the official emblem of the 77th, at the base of which is a circle to contain the identification tag of the soldier. The figure, which is of bronze, is eleven inches high and four inches broad. The markers will be placed on the wooden crosses over the graves.

"By means of these grave markers we will have a certain and permanent record of the burial places of those members of the 77th Division who have made the supreme sacrifice," said Mrs. Lloyd Derby, Assistant Secretary of the 77th Division Association, yesterday. "The Western front is dotted with the graves of our fallen heroes of the 77th, every one of which is being cared for. It is our intention to seek out every one of these sacred spots and place a marker over it."

Other promotions in the division will be given out later, according to Colonel Campbell. The recommendations for promotion in practically all of the cases grew out of conduct in the Argonne fighting, it was said.

DINNER FOR MAYOR ROLPH.

San Francisco Executive Here to Welcome Western Soldiers.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco was the guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Hotel Biltmore, by James Wood, managing director of the Hotel Belmont, and formerly Police Commissioner under Mayor Rolph. He stated that his sole purpose in visiting New York was to give to the soldiers from California the hearty welcome to which they were entitled, and that he was especially concerned in arranging for the greeting to be given to the boys of the 363d Infantry, consisting principally of drafted men from the city of San Francisco. They are expected to arrive on the steamer Kentuckian Thursday morning.

Colonel Charles F. Hutchins of the 160th Infantry, now at Camp Mills, and destined to leave in a few days for the West, spoke of the difficulty of giving credit to any one division for the winning of an action, as the composition changed so frequently. As an example he cited the 77th Division, the infantry division of which contained more than one-third of California troops during the Argonne fight, while several of the officers in the Colonel's own company were from the old 69th.

Among those present were other members of the California contingent, including Lieut. Col. Henry H. Brown, Major Alexander H. Thomas, Major Stephen S. Boothe, Major William Frieberg, and Captain Herbert Simon. John Hays Hammond, President of the Rocky Mountain Club, sent a telegram pledging co-operation upon th part of the club in welcoming the Western boys. Edwin W. McGanney presided.

Out to-day

New Victor Records for April

A new month's Victor entertainment! Here are popular songs with the swing and sentiment and touches of humor that make them really popular; and catchy dance music that stirs the feet to action.

Delightful new numbers, too, by famous and exclusive Victor artists. Braslau sings a dreamy little plantation melody; Caruso thrills with a great march song of the French soldier; the Flonzaley Quartet plays an exquisite Mozart number. Alma Gluck and Efrem Zimbalist present a tender penitential hymn; Jascha Heifetz contributes a remarkable violin solo, and Schumann-Heink sings an impressive number inspired by army bugle calls.

Below you will find the complete list of these new Victor Records—and remember, any Victor dealer is willing to play any of them for you.

MAURICE DISCUSSES REVOLT IN HUNGARY

URGES FOOD SHIPMENTS

Believes Enemy Will Sign the Treaty of Peace as Soon as It Is Presented.

Major Gen. Sir Frederick Barton Maurice, formerly Director of Military Operations in the British Army, yesterday summed up his opinion of Germany's threat not to submit to the peace terms in the one word "bluff." Returning yesterday from an over-Sunday visit to the British Embassy in Washington, General Maurice also was positive that the Red uprising in Hungary was likely to give little trouble in a military way.

"The uprising in Hungary," he said, "is not likely to lead to extensive military operations. A few tanks, armored cars, and airplanes probably will be all that will be required to cope with the situation from a military standpoint. Both Germany and Austro-Hungary are too exhausted and militarily impotent to make any formidable resistance to the Allies.

"The reported selection of General Mangin for an important mission to the Balkan country does not necessarily mean that he is to lead a large army against the revolutionists. It is my belief that such a step would not be necessary. I made a trip through part of Germany just before coming to the United States, and the impression I received was that the enemy was in no condition to put up any more fight.

"The military spirit of the peoples of the Central Powers is thoroughly broken. With our airplanes alone we could whip them into submission. I believe that the people of Germany and Hungary fully realize what we could do to them and to their factories and towns with our bombing planes, and they have no real desire to force the issue with us.

"I do not wish to be understood, however, as trying to minimize the gravity of the situation. I cannot too strongly emphasize this. While I am convinced that the military subjugation of Germany and Austria-Hungary would be a comparatively simple matter, we would still be, after that was accomplished, in the uncomfortable position of 'sitting on the safety valve.'"

General Maurice said that to his mind the only solution of the problem lay in rushing food and supplies to the starving peoples. He added that this should be done, and that the signing of the treaty of peace should be hurried before the plight of the people became desperate.

"The enemy will sign the treaty of peace as soon as it is presented to him. At least that is my belief," General Maurice said. "It is not the first time that Germany has whined and bluffed about complying with demands we have made of her, but you will recall that she always has complied with them when she found that we meant business. A policy of passive resistance could be carried out by them, of course, and it would mean a lot of trouble for us, but it would hurt Germany a great deal more—in fact, it would mean absolute ruin for her, the end of everything. I feel quite sure that she realizes that, and would not dare to go to such extremes."

FRENCH BUREAU TO GO ON.

High Commission to Continue Part of Work Here.

It was announced yesterday by Edouard de Billy of the French High Commission that, although the commission was terminated by a French governmental decree on March 22, a part of the organization is to be maintained in the United States for a few months longer. This will be under the direction of Maurice Casenave, who will be appointed Director General of the Service of France in the United States. He will act under the authority of André Tardieu.

The Department of Franco-American War Co-operation will continue to be maintained until after the departure from France of the American Army. This department was created in June, 1918, with Mr. Tardieu, in Paris, as the head of it.

SPEEDY NET MATCH GOES TO ANDERSON

GERALD EMERSON A WINNER

Defeats Edmund Hendrickson in Straight Sets at 7th Regiment Tourney.

Only four matches were played in the National Indoor Tennis Championship at the 7th Regiment Armory yesterday morning, and with them the second round was entirely completed, leaving only sixteen contestants in the tournament. The third round of the singles will be played this afternoon, and a start will be made in the doubles.

Yesterday's tennis was largely concentrated in a thrilling three-set struggle between Frank Anderson and Henry S. Parker, which the Brooklyn youngster eventually won 6—1, 11—13, 6—2. Anderson was exceedingly brilliant from the start, and while he kept at top speed the Rockaway veteran could do nothing to check him. But in the second set the prodigy of the Anderson family ran into a streak of wildness and was soon trailing his steadier opponent, who forced the errors by returning everything he could reach.

The boy made a determined fight for the set, however, realizing that his superior strength and endurance would carry him through a long-drawn match if necessary. He brought the games to deuce and continued to win on his own fast service, but threw away several chances to break through by flubbing easy kills at the net. It was through such errors that Parker eventually pulled out the set, after twenty-four games had been played.

But the older player was almost exhausted by his efforts to square the match and could offer little resistance in the rubber, which went quickly in Anderson's favor, the Brooklyn boy recovering his volleying eye, and cutting off Parker's drives in dazzling style.

On the adjoining court Gerald Emerson and Edmund Hendrickson had a shorter session, but were at it hammer and tongs while it lasted. Both of the young stars hit hard, often sacrificing accuracy for speed, and bad errors alternated with sensational shots. Emerson's game was just a little more consistent than that of his southpaw doubles partner, and he took two straight sets at 6—3 and 6—4.

Champion Voshell found no real opposition in C. M. Amerman, and allowed him only two games, both in the opening set, while Peter Ball gained a place in the third round by eliminating another hard-hitting junior, Frank Loughman, in straight sets.

Craig Biddle and Leonard Beekman were among those who turned out for a little morning practice, and both will appear in the doubles this afternoon. Beekman meets Tilden in the third round of the singles this morning, and the later matches bring together Voshell and Emerson, Frank Anderson and George Groesbeck, L. B. Dailey and R. J. Sommer, Shafer and Ball, Fred Anderson and C. J. Post, Toussaint and Ingo Hartman, and Vincent Richards and G. A. Wagner, all scheduled about 1 P. M.

The summaries:

National Indoor Tennis Championship; Singles—Second Round—Frank Anderson defeated Henry S. Parker, 6—1, 11—13, 6—2; S. Howard Voshell defeated C. M. Amerman, 6—2, 6—0; Gerald Emerson defeated E. H. Hendrickson, 6—3, 6—4; Peter Ball defeated Frank Loughman, 6—4, 6—4.

YALE USES ENGLISH SHELL.

Crew Now Training for First Races of Season.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31.—Yale's rowing equipment this year will consist of two English shells. None of American make have been ordered, the two boats which will be used in the Yale races having been purchased before America entered the war. They were not rigged until recently, when Dr. Abbott, the Yale crew coach, put them into working condition. Both were made by Rough, the Oxford boat builder, with whose workmanship Dr. Abbott, himself a former English oarsman of Oxford University crews in the nineties, is familiar.

The Rough shell which was recelevd at Yale more than two years ago is now regularly employed by the Yale 'Varsity eight at its daily practice. The crew will be boated in it in their race April 19 with University of Pennsylvania on the Housatonic, and May 3 against Princeton and Columbia.

Among the better-known Harvard flyers who may also take part are Douglas Campbell, James Knowles, and Chester Wright, all aces; Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., the youthful flyer who escaped from a German prison camp, and John Lavalle, Jr.

HEARNE TAKES TWO HEATS.

Fast Races in Trials for Metropolitan Skating Titles.

R. Hearne of the Ice Palace skating team showed plenty of speed as an ice skater last night in the qualifying heats for the metropolitan championship tests, at the 181st Street Ice Palace. The title races will be held Monday night. Hearne won the third heat in the half-mile trials in 1:40 2-5, and in the second heat of the mile trials skated home in front of his rivals in 3:26 1-5.

Spills changed the expected order of finish in the second of the half-mile trials. In a field of four skaters, three were eliminated through falls before the finish line was reached. M. Shields, a sailor skater, was the only survivor. His time was 1:39 1-5. Leslie Boyd, Tremont S. C., skated the fastest mile, taking the first heat in 1:28 1-5.

Barnes Wins Two-Mile Run.

John Barnes led home a field of twenty-nine rivals last night in the two-mile road race of the Boys' Club. Barnes covered the course in 11:28, winning rather easily from Harry Sass. The latter's time was 11:40. John Westen was third in 12:02. The Wingate A. C. captured the point trophy.

WILDE WINS ON POINTS.

Joe Lynch Gives English Champion Hard Battle in London.

LONDON, March 31.—"Jimmie" Wilde, the British flyweight champion, tonight defeated Joe Lynch, an American boxer, on points in a fifteen-round bout.

The Prince of Wales, Prince Albert, and Lord Lonsdale witnessed the contest, which took place at the National Sporting Club.

It was a fast and stubbornly fought battle throughout. Wilde started a 3 to 1 favorite, but Lynch was doing so well in the ninth round that the betting fell to even money.

In this and the following rounds Wilde was badly shaken by heavy punishment, but fought gamely and recovered in the fifteenth. The American finished the fresher of the two, and though Wilde won on points he had a close call.

The verdict seemed somewhat of a surprise to many present and there was some adverse comment. Wilde was giving Lynch about sixteen pounds in weight.

At the close of the fight the Prince of Wales congratulated both men and said that it was by meetings such as this that Anglo-American friendship, which they had welcomed throughout the war, became cemented for all time.

BILLIARD RULES UNCHANGED

N. A. A. B. P. Refuses to Reduce Point Total in Title Play.

Plans to replace the regulation championship billiard emblems with certificates or standard medals, and to reduce the length of Class A 18.2 balk-line billiard championship matches from 300 points to 250, were defeated last night at the meeting of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, held at the Liederkranz Club. The delegates at the meeting contended that the competitions should remain as they are, and, although there was considerable discussion on the questions, the proposed amendments were defeated.

Officials from Chicago, where the last championship tournament was conducted, were the leading figures in the agitation for a decrease in the number of points in the Class A title tournament. Their argument was to the effect that a decrease would render the game more spectacular and result in larger runs by contestants. At the meeting, it was maintained that a player can best demonstrate his ability over the 300 points distance, without depriving the competition of any of its lustre.

Efforts to reduce the number of points in other championship games also were defeated. Class B will remain at 200 points and Class C at 150. The proposal to increase the pocket billiards matches to 150 points was defeated, and the games will continue at 125 points. Likewise it was proposed to make 25 points the standard for three-cushion carom billiards, but the committee voted for 50.

The resolution to award certificates or standard medals in place of the present title emblems was defeated overwhelmingly. The officials retained the present scale of values for cups, which is not to exceed $300 for Class A, $200 for Class B and $150 for Class C in balk line.

An amendment was adopted providing for the selection of a nominating committee consisting of at least three and not more than five members, none of whom shall be a member of the Executive Committee. This committee will have power in future to nominate officers and committee members. The committee will be installed at the next annual meeting. Heretofore any two members of the N. A. A. B. P. could nominate officers or committee members.

Distribution of the annual championship tournaments was deferred until a meeting of the Executive Committee is held. The Boston A. A. has applied for the Class A 18.2 balk line championship, New York A. C. for the pocket billiards championship, and Chicago A. A. for the three-cushion title event. These applications will undoubtedly be favorably acted upon.

More than thirty members attended. George B. Dryden of Chicago, who was appointed to serve out the unexpired term of George T. Moon, Jr., as President, was elected President. Mr. Dryden, although expected, did not attend the meeting. In his absence, Arthur B. Hyman of the Amateur Billiard Club filled the chair. Corwin Huston of Detroit was re-elected Vice President, J. P. Allen Secretary, and G. O. Rudolphy Treasurer.

HANDICAP BEATS TORRANCE

Crescent A. C. Squash Champion Loses to Moses.

N. F. Torrance, the Crescent A. C. squash tennis champion, was eliminated from the Brooklyn organization's annual handicap tournament yesterday in the semi-final round of the fixture. A. A. Moses, playing at plus 7 aces, conquered the New Moon title holder, in a hard three-game match, by scores of 18—15, 10—15, 15—9. Torrance was playing at minus 4 aces, and this handicap largely accounted for his downfall.

The first game was bitterly contested, but throughout Moses played steadily. With the score at 13—10 against him, Torrance rallied and set the game at 13—all. In the extra five aces, however, the club champion could not combat the offensive of his rival, and Moses won by 18—15. Torrance got off to a flying start in the second game, and led throughout, winning by 15—10. In the third game the title holder appeared tired from his earlier exertions and was overcome by 15—9.

Torrance, in the second round play, disposed of C. H. Zinn, plus 5 aces, in straight games, by 15—9, 15—12.

In the second semi-final match C. W. Dingee, playing at scratch, won from M. M. Sterling by default. Dingee and Moses will clash in the final match Saturday.

The summaries:

Crescent A. C. Club Handicap — Second round, M. M. Sterling (minus 2 aces), defeated H. R. Burroughs (plus 6 aces, ½ hand,), 4—15, 15—12, 15—11; C. W. Dingee (scratch,) defeated L. G. Griffith (plus 10 aces, ½ hand,) 18—15, 15—12, 18—17; A. A. Moses (plus 7 aces), defeated J. P. Carlin (plus 8 aces), 12—15, 18—15, 15—8; N. F. Torrance (minus 4 aces), defeated C. H. Zinn (plus 5 aces), 15—9, 15—12.

Semi-Final Round—Dingee won from Sterling, by default; Moses (plus 7 aces), defeated Torrance (minus 4 aces), 18—15, 10—15, 15—9.

ROOKIE'S HOME RUN DEFEATS YANKEES

Kane's Circuit Clout Helps Yannigans Beat Huggins's Regulars by 5 to 4 Score.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 31.—Miller Huggins's regulars took another trimming this afternoon, their third in as many consecutive playing days. The Yannigans, who took the measure of the big fellows on Friday, the day before the Dodgers turned the trick, again defeated the first-string players this afternoon by the score of 5 to 4. Bunched hitting in the last two innings gave the rookies all their runs. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning.

Quinn and Nelson did the pitching for the rookies, each boxman working three frames, while Schneider and Ferguson served up the slants for the regulars on the same scale. Quinn was easily the most effective of the lot, the regulars making but one scratch hit and one unearned run while the veteran was on the mound. Nelson was reached for seven hits and three runs during his three innings on the pitching peak.

The Yannigans nicked Schneider for four hits, but could not score while the former Redleg was working. Ferguson allowed only five hits, but one was a homer with a runner on first and another was a triple with two on bases, this latter hit turning the game against the big fellows.

Frank Kane, the former Providence outfielder, who played centre field for the Yannigans, had the distinction of driving out the first circuit clout of the Yanks' training campaign. With two out and Nelson on first base in the fifth inning, Kane connected with one of Ferguson's slants and drove the ball to the fence in deep right centre, beating the relay to the plate by a pretty slide. Kane had lined a clean single to right field off Schneider, so the batting honors of the day went to him. In the sixth inning singles by Vick and Lamar, Elmer Miller's triple to left, and an infield out furnished three more runs for the Yannigans, just enough to win.

The regulars got a run in the first inning without a hit. Halas walked, took two bases on Peck's sacrifice, and counted on an error by Mooers. In the fourth Peck walked and stole, Pratt, Lewis, and Bodie hit safely, and Lamar made a misplay, this combination netting two runs for the regulars. The regulars' last run arrived in the sixth on Pratt's walk, Lewis's sacrifice, and singles by Bodie and Ward.

During the morning practice Walter Pipp was hit over the right eye with a batted ball which took an ugly bound, and the optic was partly closed this afternoon, but he played through the game. The lineup and score:

| Score by innings: | | | | | | | R. | H. | E. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

HANLON TESTIFIES FOR FEDS

Baltimore $900,000 Suit Will Be Concluded This Week.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Testimony for the Baltimore Federal League Baseball Club in its suit for damages against the American and National Leagues and certain former officers of the Federal League will be completed tomorrow. This announcement was made today after a numbers of players and former Directors of the Baltimore Club had taken the stand.

Edward Hanlon, Harry H. (Mike) Mowrey, and Clarence (Lefty) Russell testified regarding contracts, and the players told of being shifted from club to club by the organized interests, and how they were held by the reserve clauses in their contracts.

McLeod to Captain Harvard Nine.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 31.—Willard W. McLeod of Malden was today elected to the captaincy of the Harvard baseball team. McLeod's position is second base, and he captained last year's team until the aviation service claimed him. He held a Second Lieutenancy in that branch of service. The new Captain will graduate in June.

Plan "Columbia Day" May 10.

Columbia plans to make May 10, the day on which it meets Brown University in a dual track meet on South Field, a day of celebration to be known as "Columbia Day." In addition to the track meet, boat races on the Hudson and other athletic competitions are in contemplation.

BROOKLYN INFIELDER HURT.

Ray Schmandt Is Spiked in Practice Game.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 31.—The Dodgers' training camp was thrown into gloom here this afternoon when Raymond Schmandt, the brilliant second baseman, was spiked on the left foot in the game played between the regulars and Yannigans. The accident occurred in the third inning. After two men were out Brazill drew a pass and attempted to steal. Snyder's throw was slow and Brazill slid into the bag feet first. His spikes tore through Schmandt's shoe and inflicted a deep gash about four inches long on the player's foot. The spikes grazed a bone, and came within an inch of cutting a tendon.

Dr. Baumgardner responded to a call and sewed up the wound. Five stitches were required. The player will be out of the game for about a month, and will be sent to his home in St. Louis to rest up. With Schmandt out of the game the Dodgers are greatly weakened both in the field and at the bat.

Owing to the injury of Schmandt Manager Robbie stopped the practice game at the end of the seventh inning. The regulars won by a count of 5 to 4. Larissey, a local lad, pitched for the victors and Goodbred started for the Yannigans. He was relieved at the end of the third session. Hy Myers, who reported yesterday, went through his first workout this morning, and appears to be in good shape. He went to his old position in centre in the afternoon.

STYLES PLAYS GOOD GOLF.

Leads Big Field in Amateur Tourney at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 31.—With a record-breaking field of 244 contestants entered, the first eighteen holes in the thirty-six-hole qualifying round of the North and South amateur championship golf tournament were played today at Pinehurst.

Edward Styles of the Washington Golf Club turned in a score of 66 on the difficult No. 3 course, while James D. Standish of Detroit followed with a 78 on No. 2 course.

The official standing at the end of the eighteen holes was: Styles, 38, 38—76; Standish, 37, 41—78; C. G. Waldo, Jr., Detroit, 40, 39—79; F. H. Gates, Moore County, 38, 41—79, and E. C. Beall, Uniontown, Penn., 40, 40—80.

BARRY GOING TO FRANCE.

Former Red Sox Player to Promote Army Baseball for K. of C.

Jack Barry, former manager and second baseman of the Boston Red Sox, is going to France for the Knights of Columbus and will supervise the baseball activities in the A. E. F. Barry, with several other players, left the Red Sox at the end of the 1917 season and went into the navy. It caused some surprise when the player announced that he woudl not join the Red Sox again this season.

Barry will take up the same kind of work in France that was started by Johnny Evers. He expects to sail in a week or two and will get in France just when the baseball season gets into full swing among the soldiers.

HAUGHTON NOT TO COACH.

Harvard Football Mentor Enters Business in Boston.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 31.—Percy D. Haughton, for nine years head coach of the Harvard football team, has entered a Boston brokerage firm. He is therefore unable to accede to the request of the Harvard management to tak charge of spring football practice, and it is problematic whether he will act as head coach next fall. The football meeting booked for tonight, as well as the start of spring practice tomorrow, were postponed because of the inability to get any one to take charge.

Leo H. Leary, field coach in 1916, is indisposed, and several other coaches who would be considered are still overseas. The football men may get out, however, before the week is over.

RACING TODAY AT BOWIE.

Eastern Thoroughbred Season Starts on Maryland Track.

BOWIE, Md., March 31.—The thoroughbred racing season on Eastern tracks will begin tomorrow at Prince George Park, when the Southern Maryland Racing Association will open a meet which will extend to April 15. While the Bowie meet does not attract all of the best stables, the list of attractions at Bowie includes several stakes of unusual interest.

There will be thirteen days of racing, when the thoroughbreds will change to Havre de Grace, where a thirteen-day meet will be held. This will be followed by the Pimlico meet, which will run from May 1 to 17.

GIANTS' REGULARS AGAIN BEAT COLTS

Veterans Hit Ross Hard and Easily Defeat Youngsters by 6 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 31.—McGraw's Yannigans weer again the victims of the veteran Giants today. The New York colts were buried under an avalanche of home runs and extra base hits, and dropped the third conflict of the series by a score of 6 to 2.

McGraw put regular pitchers into the game for the first time this Spring. The two left-handers, Ferdie Schupp and Rube Benton, pitched for the Regulars and George Smith, the Columbia collegian, wound up for the Yannigans. Sid Ross, the former San Antonio left-hander, started off for the youngsters, and he took quite a pounding. All of the six runs scored by the New York Regulars were made off the delivery of Ross.

Schupp's workout was watched with considerable interest by McGraw as well as his teammates. On the whole, his first appearance in a practice game was voted to be satisfactory. He did not let himself out, and walked four men in four innings and permitted five hits. Yet when Schupp was in trouble he put the ball over, and except for the first inning the youngsters could not score on him.

Rube Benton looked very good in his three innings, and only one hit was made off him, a single by Thorpe. After Ross took his pounding for the Yannigans, George Smith went in and checked the Regulars. They failed to score on George in two innings, and he struck out three.

Jim Thorpe had an adventurous time this afternoon and smacked the ball hither and yon. However, things broke badly for the noble Redman, as he was deprived of tw hits, both of which should have been homers and one of which was the monster wallop of the training season, and for this he did not even get credit for a single.

Thorpe dotes on southpaws, and when he came up in the first inning Gillespie and Rommel were on base as the result of hitting singles. Jim knocked the ball to deep left, scoring Gillespie and Rommel, but when he tried to stretch his hit into a homer, the relay, Burns to Zimmerman to McCarthy, cut him off at the plate. In the third inning Jim took another healthy smash at one of Schupp's benders. This time his effort resulted in a fierce drive far over Burns's head. George just caught up with the ball when Thorpe was dashing over the plate. But again Jim was denied the fruits of his lengthy bingle. The ball was thrown in to Chase, who claimed that Thorpe had skipped first base as he went by. Baird, who was umpiring, called Thorpe out.

It was a great day for long hits, as both Chase and Lew McCarty hit real homers and got full credit for them. Chase hit his home run in the first inning to deep left centre. In the second inning the Regulars got three more runs when Zimmerman singled and scored on Fletcher's three-base hit. McCarty also came along with his homer to left and sent in Fletcher ahead of him.

In the third inning the Giants scored two more runs, Young walked, and on the hit-and-run play Chase slapped a single through the vacant shortstop position. Hal stole second and scored behind Young when Kauff birched a hot single to right field. A strong wind which blew the length of the field made many of the long hits possible, as it carried the balls over the outfielder's heads.

The lineup:

Wistaria Romance.

39 EAST, a comedy in three acts. By Rachel Crothers. At the Broadhurst Theatre.

It is by no means a portentous thing which Miss Crothers has attempted in her little new play at the Broadhurst, and for that we may all be thankful. "39 East" is what the boarders call their boarding house; and, in its stage presentation it is the scene of certain humors of character of the more prevalent sort, as also of a romance of the sort which should be prevalent if it is not. It is probably quite prevalent—or at least one believes it is, writing in the amiable and optimistic mood in which Miss Crothers leaves one.

Little Constance Binney is the heroine, and by now she speaks on the stage as well as she dances. She is the daughter of a country minister, and she has come to the city to find a career as a singer, and, incidentally, to send her young brothers to college. She hopes to sing in the choir; but just at present choirs are all full of singers. So, pursued by the spectre of her board bill at 39 East, she finds a place in a Broadway chorus. You can imagine what the boarding house tabbies say to all this, or to as much of it as they spy out and guess. And especially as the Young Man of 39 East pays a great deal of attention to Miss Binney.

He is Henry Hull, and, being a young man about town of quite solvent ancestry, is rather a waif and a stray in 39 East, but all the more welcome and admired by the tabbies. He makes love to our heroine with a fervor well strewn with humoresque turns of the parlance of Broadway; and, as 39 East is all too populous and inquisitive, he induces her to meet him in the solitary wilds of Central Park. It is at the summer house above the lake, and the wistaria is in bloom, while swans sail by. A very romantic place as it seems, this park which is in our midst. It is quite intoxicating, in fact, and the young man about town makes love in a vein that is fervent, but altogether as unworthy as the tabbies could think and desire. So our heroine is revolted from him, and thrown into the trap which her bold, bad Broadway manager is spreading for her.

In the last act we are at 39 East again, assisting at a musical, with the music provided by the boarders. Once more there are familiar humors of quite recognizable character. And then it appears that our Penelope has innocently taken her bad manager at his word and is on the brink of The Worst. Napoleon (which is our hero's name) is thoroughly alarmed, and discovers what we all knew from the start, that he really loves Penelope and wants above everything to marry her. The play becomes dramatic and perhaps a bit declamatory.

Penelope comes in, and her evident innocence and distressed sincerity soften the hard heart of the landlady, so that she even forgets the two weeks' board. In fact, every one becomes a trifle exalted. It transpires that Penelope really can sing and dance; and, as a climax, it is alleged that the theatrical manager is a very proper man, really—the evidence being the fact that he admits he is married. Penelope is quite properly independent and resolute, but in the end she yields to her young man, and to matrimony.

The audience last night was frankly and very heartily responsive to the boarding-house humors, both at the breakfast table and at the home-made evening concert. To the romance of Central Park it seemed positively to thrill. Miss Crothers's touch is everywhere deft and lifelike. From beginning to end the play is without a really false touch, and it has many and many a delightfully true one.

The acting was admirable, as it so often is when a company has real humors to deal with. Alison Skipworth made the boarding house keeper quite vital and real. Miss Binney and Mr. Hull are as persuasive a pair of young lovers as we have seen in many a first night. They responded buoyantly to tumultuous curtain calls, and finally induced Miss Crothers to come on and be kissed by them.

ASK DAMROSCH TO FRANCE.

Symphony May Accept Government's Invitation Next Year.

President H. H. Flagler told the annual meeting of the Symphony Society yesterday that the French Goevrnment has invited the New York Symphony Orchestra to pay a visit to France, at a time to be selected by the American organization, in return for the courtesy shown on the recent tour of the orchestra of the Paris Conservatoire.

M. Louis Lafere, Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts, writing from the Government offices in the Palais Royal on March 13 last, thanked Walter Damrosch as dean of American conductors for the welcome given to the Frenchmen, and assured him "that the Beaux-Arts will give every possible cooperation" if Mr. Damrosch's players go to France.

The Secretary of the Symphony Society was instructed to thank M. Lafere for the honor of the invitation, which has been referred to President Flagler and Conductor Damrosch for further consideration. While it is admittedly impossible to send a band of 100 players at this time, the idea of such a tour next year is being seriously entertained.

APRIL FIRST BRINGS STORM.

Midnight Starts All Fools' Day with Wintry Downfall.

Hardly had midnight ushered in April Fool's Day before New York was greeted with a snow storm. The thermometer registered eight degrees below freezing at the hour the storm started with the promise of the weather man, however, that it would be "warmer tomorrow."

Amateur weather prophets have been practically unanimous in asserting that the real cold would come in the Spring to make up the mild Winter. The March that went out as lion was followed by an April shower—of snow. According to the promise of the weather man, however, this April Fool snow storm has not come to stay long.

"TAKE IT FROM ME" FUNNY.

Lively and Melodic Musical Comedy Hits the Popular Fancy.

TAKE IT FROM ME. A Musical comedy in a prologue and two acts. Book and lyrics by Will B. Johnstone. Music by Will R. Anderson. At the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

The new entertainment at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre gives all signs of being what the public wants, and can't get enough of. "Take it From Me" is its title, and it is a sprightly, noisy, generally laughable and frequently melodic musical comedy, possessed of a hardier plot than the average and plentifully sprinkled with types and "bits." It comes to New York with a record of road success behind it, and it is well and shrewdly designed to meet the popular taste.

A department store, inherited by a happy-go-lucky spendthrift and shared by him with a pair of friends, is the framework upon which are hung the characters and their sundry drolleries. A drab secretary, a movie vampire, an aged attendant on roller skates—these and others are intertwined with an attempt of the spendthrift trio to run, or rather wreck, the store. The humor is broad, but not of the slapstick, and the fun of the piece is in the main the natural result of the story.

Jack McGowan and A. Douglas Leavitt are agreeably humorous as two of the spendthrift youths, and Fred Hillebrand, as the third, manages to get his laughs. Harry Burnham, as the attendant on skates, is responsible for much of the humor; Vera Michelena is a statuesque vampire, and Alice Hills does well as the sombre secretary. Dances contributed to the second act by the Gardiner Trio were also held in high favor.

The author, Will B. Johnstone, a local newspaper cartoonist, has written workmanlike lyrics and also shown no little skill in the manipulation of the chorus, which is frequently made to fit neatly into the scheme of things. (It is not, it may be remarked parenthetically, the best looking chorus of the season.) The tunes are spirited, the costumes and scenery attractive, and the entertainment as a whole may be heartily recommended to the tired peace delegate.

WANTS MARRIAGE ANNULED.

Former Miss Brainard Charges 'War Hero' Was Pretender.

The deception practiced by a London clerk who stole his dead employer's passport and came here under his name to pose as a wounded British army surgeon with a commendable war record, which enabled him to dupe many well known New York people and to induce Miss Florence Brainard of Chevy Chase, Md., to marry him, is related in a suit filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Florence Brainard Grimwood against William F. G. Grimwood, whose real name is William Robert Archer, to annul her marriage.

The young woman, now 24 years of age, to whom a daughter was born on June 21, 1917, while her husband was in the Washington asylum and jail under charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, now lives with her parents at Chevy Chase, but she filed her suit here through Gifford, Hobbs & Beard, because she was married here to the man by the Rev. Dr. George C. Houghton at the Little Church Around the Corner, on July 27, 1916, three weeks after she had met him. On her application Supreme Court Justice Cohalan directed that the papers be served on the defendant in London by publication. He was arraigned there on March 4 last on a charge of forgery, but because one of the witnesses against him was dead and the other was in France, he was discharged.

Mrs. Grimwood states that as a result of the investigation instituted by her parents she has learned that Grimwood, or Archer, is now forty-five years old, and was a member of a humble family. He became clerk to a solicitor named William F. G. Grimwood, since dead, and used the latter's passport to come here. He was married in 1900 to Alice Lenard in Essex, Eng. The plaintiff says that the defendant's English wife has sent her the information that he was wanted by Scotland Yard.

SAYS JAPAN FAVORS LEAGUE

But Dr. Iyenaga Urges Amendment Granting Equality to All Races.

Dr. T. Iyenaga, Director of the East and West News Bureau, an organization understood to express the views held in official circles in Japan, issued a statement yesterday strongly favoring the League of Nations, but urging amendments. On Japan's attitude in favoring an amendment providing for equality of treatment by each race of every other race, he said:

"Neither race, color nor creed should stand in the way of equal enjoyment of rights and privileges accorded to the citizens of members of the League. This proposition should not, however, be construed as the assertion of the right of unrestricted immigration. Immigration is per se a domestic problem. It becomes an international question only in case the laws enacted happen to infringe upon or violate the rights accorded by the treaty to the other high contracting party. A sovereign State has, of course, every right to enact and enforce its own immigration laws.

Clothing Gifts Swamp Red Cross.

So many New Yorkers waited until Sunday to bundle up their old clothing that the seventy receiving stations throughout Manhattan were swamped yesterday. Mrs. Edward M. Hager, Chairman of the New York County Chapter of the Red Cross, announced yesterday afternoon that all the receiving stations would therefore remain open until 5 P. M. today to collect these last minute contributions. Provision has been made by the New York County Chapter to keep three of the Manhattan stations open until Saturday afternoon to accommodate late comers. These are at 9 Union Square, 7 East Fifty-sixth Street, and Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street.

Beethoven, Bauer and Thibaud.

It was a cheering spectacle to see an audience at Aeolian Hall last night that packed the house to the doors and overflowed on the stage in true Josef Hofmann fashion. Beethoven was the attraction and, incidentally, Harold Bauer and Jacques Thibaud. The occasion was the third and last concert of Beethoven violin and piano sonatas, and three of the master's works in this form were played: A major, opus 12; F major, opus 24, and the A major-A minor, opus 47, mightiest of the ten, better known as the Kreutzer; also the object of vilification from the pen of a man of genius, the tone-deaf Tolstoy. Thus if not precisely three periods were represented, there was sufficient variety to please an appreciative audience. The Haydnesque moods of the A major and F major sonatas were well-suited to the interpretative style of the two artists. But in the opening allegro of the Kreutzer we missed the leonine paws of Beethoven. All was favor and prettiness, the tragic accent not felt. The drama took place behind closed doors.

The violinist, Jacques Thibaud, plays with elegance, is technically finished and musical; but the stern, virile utterances of Beethoven were not temperamentally sympathetic to him. Mr. Bauer seemed repressed throughout, and while the sensuous element was brought out in the slow movements, the saccharine side was not afar. Miniatures and petit-maitre! Delicacy, charm, rhythmic finesse—nothing was absent save the big note. "All is lacking if the fibre of the right man is lacking," said Wicked Walt Whitman, the good gray poet of Camden and the Cosmos. Walt did not use the word "fibre," but he meant it. However, would it be ungrateful after one hour and one-half hour of lovely music-making to complain of missing special notes. After all, these sonatas were written for just such an intimate atmosphere and the audience decidedly thought so. The best part of the evening was the feeling that notwithstanding the mud-gods of opera and other meretricious music, there is still enough lovers of lofty art to fill Aeolian Hall. We heartily congratulate Messrs. Bauer and Thibaud.

Major Reginald Barlow Returns.

Major Reginald Barlow, character actor, who last played in "Old Lady 31," at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, returned yesterday from France after serving nine months with the 76th and 88th Divisions. He was fighting near Metz when the armistice was signed on Nov. 11, and was then ordered to Toul to get up entertainments for the soldiers, and every man saw a show. He had on his staff of players Miss Mary Boland, Fred Truesdale, and others.

"Penny Wise" at Punch and Judy.

GIVE TWO OPERA THRILLERS

"Pagliacci," with Caruso, and "L'Oracolo" Fill Metropolitan.

March went out like a lion with the Metropolitan's most leonine thrillers, Leoni's "L'Oracolo" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci," sung last evening to a packed house, the first "daylight saving" assembly on Broadway. From early sundown the Caruso standees lined the curb, and the last of them got inside the doors at 8 o'clock in broad day.

Thomas Chalmers for the first time sang the "Pagliacci" prologue, his voice and musical style winning deserved applause. Caruso was, as always, the centre of attraction in the tragedy of Italian life among the lowly, and others in the cast were Miss Muzio, Messrs. Paltrinieri and Werrenrath.

In the Chinatown curtain-raiser, the "Cat and Cherub" of Fernald's story, were Mr. Scotti and little Eva Quintana, while among the motley of the old San Francisco quarter there were also Miss Easton, Messrs. Althouse and Didur. Mr. Moranzoni led the double bill, and the stars on recall were greeted with cheers.

BANKER GOES TO PRISON.

Bozzuffi's Institution Failed, with $180,000 Due Depositors and Others

John Bozzuffi, once a private banker at 1,149 First Avenue, was sentenced by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday to Sing Sing Prison for one year and three months to three years and six months on his plea of guilty to grand larceny. Bozzuffi's bank failed three years ago with liabilities due to 2,000 depositors and others of $180,000.

The bank's affairs were in a complicated state, and Bozzuffi, for three years, managed to have sentence postponed by his promises to reimburse depositors. Recently a committee of depositors discovered that Bozzuffi, instead of working in the interest of the depositors, had invested funds in twenty-two houses, the rents of which he had used to repay remittances of Italian immigrants.

Jackson Estate $2,508,514.

An estate of $2,508,514 was left by George J. Jackson, President of the National Conduit and Cable Company, who died on April 8, 1918. He had $2,321,476 in stocks and bonds. He gave his entire estate to his wife, Minnie B. Jackson of 501 Fifth Avenue, with the exception of books and pictures worth $1,370 to his son, Gerard L. Jackson.

PRICE REGULATION.

Already it has been remarked that when the Government took over the railways it did most of the things which it had forbidden the railways to do, and considered itself absolved from granting many of the accommodations to passengers and shippers that competition had enforced upon the railways. There now is a similar demonstration that officials think there is one rule for them and other rules for others, in the regulation of trade matters in the manner of the trusts. When steel prices were stabilized in the crisis of 1907 the price fixers were prosecuted, and the Gary dinners were abandoned. This year the Government sat at the same table with the price fixers, but is exposing itself to suspicion of lukewarmness in respect to paying the prices it fixed for others.

In volume and variety the Government purchases are the largest of all, and the Government's policy in buying is as important as its sharing in price fixing. But the Government's purchases are scantily forthcoming, and the price fabric is threatened. Many producers of basic articles—coal, iron, and others—are reducing production for lack of orders, and some of them are put under financial strain to meet their obligations of a fixed nature. The Government is not free from this embarrassment, but does not feel it in equal degree. The Government is without the limitations of a capital account, for it keeps none. The Government's fixed obligations are only such as it freely assumes, and it does not incur them by competition in trade. For the Government not to abide by prices it assisted in fixing is to expose itself to the reproach of a price cutter.

There is nothing fanciful about this, for the matter has gone to President Wilson on appeal in the matter of coal and iron. When railways were under private management they cheapened coal to themselves in devious ways. For example, if coal was cheap to the railways cars were plenty to producers. The Director General has not been charged with cheapening his coal in just that way, but his purchases of nearly everything have been limited, and coal orders have been distributed between sections and producers in a manner not conducive to stability in maintaining the prices which the Department of Commerce has arranged as reasonable. For such reasons there has been an open breach between the Director General and the National Coal Association. That is a combination of bituminous operators much less coherent than the Anthracite Trust, but yet superior to any the bituminous trade had ever before arranged. The seriousness of the formal charge of "unfair practices" by the railways appears from the fact that they use nearly one-third of the total production, and that the weekly production has fallen 3,000,000 tons below last year, with frequent suspensions of those least able to compete with the more efficient or stronger producers.

The Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce seems to be doing its best to enlist the various purchasing bureaus in loyal support of prices established as reasonable, but finds that they feel they should buy for the Government as cheaply as possible, and that they can do so better if they are free from entangling alliances. On the other hand, officials are as zealous to pay high wages as departments are to buy cheap goods. Even when wages have been arbitrated Government has overpaid, and weakened arbitration as much as it has strengthened wages, with reaction in other trades than those directly concerned. Miners are now asking for a shorter day and higher wage at the same time that Government is shopping for coal and iron.

There have been too many demonstrations that prices rise and fall together. Labor demands that wages and the cost of living should be kept in relation, and capital demands the same regarding its costs. Wages can be maintained if production can be increased, but the movements of wages and costs in opposite directions cannot continue, not even if enforced as in Russia. The Steel Trust has increased wages and production together. Others must do the same or go out of business. That is particularly easy in the coal trade, which ordinarily works only some two days out of three. The wasted time would increase production so that the same wages could be paid if full time were worked. Labor is only partly to blame for short time in the coal trade, but in all trades labor is sometimes as much to blame for the conditions which result from its policies as traders when they now and then deliver short weights. Fair play all round is the best policy for capital, labor, and Government alike and equally, with emphasis on Government, if anywhere.

WORDS OF PROMISE.

Representative Frank W. Mondell, who will be the Republican leader in the next House, speaks with more moderation and candor than his record for partisanship might have led us to expect, and realizes the hopes born of his long experience and unquestioned ability. In an interview reported in The Evening Post he says:

> Using words of moderation, I think one may properly say that the coming Congress, the Sixty-sixth, will be even more important than the war Congress. We did many things under stress of war without careful consideration, and with considerable mental reservation, hoping for the best. We cannot legislate in the next Congress along any such line of thought. Our decisions will be so momentous and far-reaching in their effect that they must be arrived at and determined only after the most painstaking consideration, for, while we may have been pardoned for mistakes made under the stress of war, we cannot expect any such charitable estimate of our acts as the Sixty-sixth Congress proceeds to the formulation of policies for the period of peace.

That is by far the most statesmanlike utterance that has come from any leader in the House of either party for a long time. He is hopeful, he says, "that we shall be able to work "harmoniously with the minority in "carrying out a large portion, at least, "of the coming program, in view "of the fact that the questions involved are in no sense purely political." Mr. Mondell is the successor of Claude Kitchin in the majority leadership. It would have been well for the country if at any time during Mr. Kitchin's leadership he had been able to take this view of his responsibilities. It is time that the parties got together, and Mr. Mondell speaks with great restraint and in a tone which no honest Democrat can take exception to when he speaks of the many things done under stress of war "without careful consideration, and "with considerable mental reservation, hoping for the best." He places the responsibility on his own party as well as the Democratic. If Congress generally takes the attitude toward its problems that is taken by the Republican leader, it will produce better things than the most sanguine had hoped for.

DANZIG.

Germans have faith in German statistics, except those who know how the statistics are made up, so no doubt the great majority of the German people honestly shudder at the idea of giving up Danzig to Poland. Their statistics tell them that the population of the city is almost entirely German, and they point to its past as one of the chief members of the Hanseatic League as proof that it has always been German.

But from the middle of the fifteenth century to the partition of Poland Danzig belonged to the Polish State. Its population even then was largely German, but its commerce drew heavily on the Polish hinterland, and political as well as economic interest held it to the same political allegiance as the inland territories on which it was dependent for its prosperity. Under German rule that prosperity has greatly diminished; with the Polish connection renewed, it would certainly improve. The Fourteen Points, accepted by friend and foe alike, promised to Poland an access to the sea. Danzig is nearer the heart of Poland than any other port, it is Polish by history and association, and even by race, more than any other port which might be assigned.

The German statistics are such as to convince few but Germans. Polish authorities of the highest weight assert that private inquiry has established the fact that one-half of the present population is Polish. In German Poland it was not profitable for a Pole to admit his race. He could not enter Government employment, he could get no work from many of the most powerful private employers who were co-operating with the Government in its energetic attempt to denationalize the Poles. Every possible economic obstacle was thrown in the way of a Pole who kept up his racial patriotism, every possible advantage was given to the man who declared himself a German even though his name and his blood might be pure Polish for generations back.

In such conditions it is not surprising that many men with families to support abjured their nationality. But many business men in Danzig speak German in business and Polish at home with their families; many families which have for the most part forgotten the Polish language have retained Polish patriotism which dared not manifest itself openly in the face of Prussian repression, but which was still dreaming of a return of Polish freedom.

As for the German population, its numbers were greatly increased by the soldiers gathered around the military headquarters in the city, by the industrial population serving military needs, by the civilian employés of the Government, and by Germans who had come in knowing that they could count on all possible assistance in competing with the Poles. With the passing of German sovereignty almost all of these immigrants will go, and Danzig before long will be recognized as a city predominantly Polish. Moreover, in the territory to the west and southwest of the city, from the Baltic coast to the old Russian frontier, not even the German Government has been able to deny that the great majority of the population is Polish. The Government figures put the Poles at from 55 to 75 per cent. in different regions; the actual figures will undoubtedly set them considerably higher. As a Polish seaport surrounded by territory inhabited by Poles, Danzig may again recover its old prosperity; if it is left in German hands, it is reasonably certain that Germany would rather see the city stagnant than have it built up by Polish trade. To leave Poland cut off from the sea by Germany would come very near to meaning economic ruin for the new State.

SUICIDE IN THE BALKANS.

In a letter published on Sunday, Dr. Panaretoff, the Bulgarian Minister at Washington, took exception to the character of the commission which investigated Bulgarian atrocities in the occupied districts of Serbia. Bulgars and Bulgarophiles will doubtless be convinced by his argument that the commission's judgment could not be regarded as wholly disinterested. But he fails to throw any light on the massacres and torturings whose traces were found throughout Macedonia and Serbia by observers who came in after the Bulgarian armies went out. These observers were by no means all Serbs or Greeks; there were Frenchmen, British, Americans among them; they found convincing evidence that many persons had been put to death with great cruelty.

Bulgarians, of course, would not have killed Bulgarians, and we are told that they did not kill Serbs; furthermore, we have it on Bulgarian authority that there are no Serbs in Macedonia. Nor would the Germans have committed such outrages on their Bulgarian allies. The Serbs and French and British could not have done it, for they were not there. The only possible explanation is that the dead whose mutilated and charred remains were found so plentifully were Bulgarians who committed suicide from grief at finding themselves in the war on the side opposed to America, whose friendship they value so highly—particularly when the terms of peace are still unsettled.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Acquittal Hard to Explain.

Criminal trials as conducted in France are always so unlike those to which we are accustomed that it is with some difficulty that we ever understand how they arrive at just conclusions. That they do so, however, at least as often as our own, is the belief of the experts, and if the French do not seem to fear as much as we do that the innocent may be convicted unless they have over the prosecution the many and great advantages we habitually give the accused, the French fairly enough can say, and do, that the difference is due merely to their realisation that to save the one innocent man from a danger how largely imaginary it is not necessary to let six or seven—or eight—of ten guilty men go free.

But it is not a mere difference of procedure that confronts the interested observer of French justice in the acquittal of the man who assassinated the deservedly eminent Socialist, Jaurès. Of Villain's guilt there is no question. At any rate, that he fired the shot that killed is unquestionable, and it is no wonder that the members of the Socialist Party in France are equally astonished and enraged at the outcome of the trial.

The only explanation suggested in the dispatches is that there was reluctance to impose the death penalty on a wretched tool of the real criminals, but that excuse, poor enough in any case, is deprived of all weight by the fact that the real criminals, whoever they may have been, are not on trial or even under arrest. And Jaurès was not a Socialist of the sort that is without common sense or patriotism. Almost, or quite, certainly he would have been loyal to France had he been allowed to live, and that, probably, was the reason why he was murdered. Yet his assassin escapes punishment!

It Is Only Another Betrayal.

While far from the most important, not the least interesting of the statements made by the former Kaiser in his remarkable conversation with Harold Begbie was his statement that Queen Victoria again and again had warned him to have as little as possible to do with her son Edward. That is an astonishing statement, and even more amusing than astonishing, but is not altogether incredible.

According to William, the Queen told him that association with Edward would do him no good, intellectually, morally, or socially. Possibly she thought so, for Edward did not observe the conventions that were so dear to his mother's heart, and it may well be that she thought he would have a bad influence over the young German grandson whose ideas as to royal rights and sanctions were or seemed to be so much like her own.

But if Victoria did give this warning to William, it must have been in strictest confidence, and the betrayal of the secret does not add to one's sympathy for the fallen monarch. Perhaps he imagined the whole story. It is well known that he hated his uncle bitterly, and for other reasons than those that might have moved Queen Victoria to put him on his guard against the too gay Prince of Wales.

No Longer Afraid of Storms.

It seems only a year or two ago—and it wasn't so much longer—when even the most reckless of aviators remained on the ground except when there was a dead calm, or something not far from it. If a smart breeze came up while they were in the air, they descended as soon as they could, and to fly in a gale was not to be thought of. Those were the days, too, when "holes in the air" were much discussed, and for good reason much feared, and when it was considered dangerous to fly over a city, and especially over New York, because the aerial currents were broken and confused by deflection from the high buildings.

All that seems amusing now, for the enormous improvements in airplane engines, in respect both to power and to trustworthiness, make many of the old precautions unnecessary, and the aviator with a really important errand pays practically no attention to the weather unless it is such as to render impossible the performance of the particular task that has been imposed on him. Of course, if the object, as was often the case at the war fronts, is to make observations or to take photographs, it is useless to fly in a fog, and the aviators dislike rain and snow for the same reasons and to the same extent as other people do.

Great as the change has been, however, it is still a cause of wonder that at the very height of last week's storm one of the men who daily carry mail through the air between New York and Washington not only attempted the flight, but succeeded in reaching his destination in good time.

Landing Is Still a Problem.

As aviation was practicable in a blinding snowstorm, with the wind blowing at close to hurricane rate, it is evident that the airplane in its present stage of development is as independent of weather conditions as any other vehicle used by men. In some respects, indeed, the machine cannot yet emulate the birds. Its most notable inferiority is its inability to slow up just before touching the ground. Airplane "wings" will have to be much different in construction before such safe and easy landings as the birds make will be possible for human fliers, but the latter are doing more than fairly well already, for there are few if any birds that would have ventured out in last week's storm, and even the strongest of them would have failed to make headway against such a wind.

But that would have been true of the aerial mail carrier also. The wind was favorable to him, or not unfavorable, as to direction. It was wildly unsteady, however, and to have made a flight so long when conditions were so trying was a most remarkable achievement, not at all less creditable to the aviator than to his machine.

A State's Right of Search.

In your issue of Tuesday, March 25, there is an editorial entitled "The Constitution and Alabama," the general purpose of which is to register an entirely justifiable protest against the high-handed methods of the Alabama authorities in prosecuting supposed violations of the "bone dry" laws of that State.

But the text of your protest is the fourth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, (intended to protect the citizen against unreasonable searches, &c.,) which you print in full at the head of your editorial. This provision is not applicable to the case in question, as it has been held repeatedly by the United States Supreme Court that Amendments I.-VIII. of the Federal Constitution, which make up the so-called "Federal Bill of Rights," are to be construed as limiting or restraining the Federal Government only, and as not having any force to limit or restrain the Governments of the several States.

To be sure, there is a very similar provision in the Bill of Rights of the Alabama State Constitution; but my point is that if the State authorities see fit to ignore that State provision, there is no appeal to any Federal tribunal; at least, not on this ground.

The Sinn Fein Demand.

May I beg a little space to make a correction in a report of some remarks of mine made on the topics of Sinn Fein, self-determination, and the League of Nations? I am reported to have said that Sinn Fein desired "to achieve independence in Great Britain." This seems to me meaningless. In the course of my remarks I said that Sinn Fein stood for national self-determination and for the creation of an Irish republic. I went on to say that the recognition of an Irish republic should be precedent to any federal arrangement within the British Islands, as federalism must be founded upon the political equality of the federating parties. But at the moment this question is of little interest. The immediate demand of Sinn Fein is for the recognition of the principle of self-determination in Ireland.

PADRAIC COLUM.

THE RETURN.

You who have lingered in the pleasant walks
Of changeless days from rise to set of sun,
And gathered round the fire for merry talks
And harmless laughter when the day was done;
You who have followed life's accustomed ways,
Nor watched the flash of battle light the sky,
When thund'ring thousands charged, with eyes ablaze,
And there was but one choice: to kill or die—
What can you know of joy so keen 'tis pain,
The joy that comes with being home again!

The nights were long beneath the starry dome,
And there was time, while Mars throned high above,
For thoughts of one dear spot across the foam,
Touched with the splendor of our early love.
Out of the past fond pictures rose to view,
Of happy gath'rings round the merry board,
Each tone of love, each gesture to record.
"O God! to be with them once more!"—'Twas vain,
The ardent wish to be at home again.

For some, New England's hills of friendly green
For some, the long, low Western plains, with sheen
Of rip'ning grain, transformed the distant night.
The broad savannahs and the craggy peak
Each called some heart among that silent throng.
Each seemed endowed with magic powers to speak—
To waft across the deep a siren song.
'Twas but a dream, a figment of the brain—
But ah! the dream's come true, we're home again!

That the Victorious Allies Did Not Accept Responsibility for the Welfare of Central Europe.

By Dr. FRANK BOHN.

SECOND ARTICLE.

The fundamental failure of the Paris Peace Conference arose from its refusal to accept responsibility for the rehabilitation of Russia, the Central Empires, and the Balkans. It is not enough to send food and good advice. What has been needed all along is kindly and constant help in political and economic reorganization. Large and efficient commissions, composed of persons who understood those whom they went to help, should have been sent to every capital and large city of Central and Eastern Europe as soon as conditions permitted their safe travel. A single regiment of the American Army includes some 3,500 men. That number of experts in political and economic reorganization, their work directed by men of progressive attitude and socialized thinking, would have turned chaos into order and stability, and quickly led those nations out of the wilderness. Vast numbers of these people are ill both physically and mentally. There is a specific disease of the nervous system even among the better fed portions of the populations, which is due to lack of fats in their diet. This disease prevents concentration of mind and the use of the will. At best the task presented was and is colossal. But Paris has lacked the vision, the knowledge, and the organized personnel even to begin this task with any hope of success.

The imperative duty of the Conference has been very clearly indicated in that most able pamphlet published under the name of General Smuts of South Africa. Referring to the Governments lately included in the Russian and Central Empires and Turkey as being in a state of "liquidation," General Smuts observed:

> Europe has been reduced to its original atoms. For the moment, its political structure, the costly result of so many centuries of effort, has disappeared. But that state of affairs must be looked upon as temporary. The creative process in the political movement of humanity cannot be paralyzed; the materials lie ready for a new reconstructive task, to which, let us hope, the courage and genius of Western civilization will prove equal. * * * My broad contention is that the small, embryonic, unsuccessful Leagues of Nations have been swept away, not to leave an empty house for national individualism or anarchy, but for a large and better League of Nations. Europe is being liquidated, and the League of Nations must be heir to this great estate.
> The peoples left behind by the decomposition of Russia, Austria, and Turkey are most untrained politically, many of them either incapable of or deficient in the power of self-government; they are mostly destitute and will require much nursing toward economic and political independence. If there is going to be a scramble among the victors for this loot, the future of Europe must, indeed, be despaired of. The application of the spoils system at this most solemn juncture in the history of the world, a repartition of Europe at a moment when Europe is bleeding in every pore as a result of partitions less than half a century old, would indeed be incorrigible madness on the part of rulers and enough to drive the torn and broken peoples of the world to that despair of the State which is the motive power behind Russian Bolshevism. Surely the only statesmanlike course is to make the League of Nations the reversionary in the broadest sense of these empires. In this debacle of the old Europe, the League of Nations is no longer an outsider or stranger, but the natural master of the house. It becomes naturally and obviously the solvent for a problem which no other means will solve.

That statesmanlike and far-seeing utterance represented and still represents, of course, much more than the personal opinion of General Smuts. It no doubt expressed the settled policy of the British Government and of its Peace Delegation at the Conference. It was made the veritable foundation of the British conception of the League of Nations. Why did the British view never predominate? Because the Conference was persuaded to discuss theories and generalities for over two months and shut its eyes to the stupendous problems which lay directly across its proper course. As regards a Russian policy, Mr. Lloyd George no doubt showed weakness as well as Mr. Wilson. To a mind at a distance, which watches quietly, it is hard to understand why the Conference could not perform two pieces of business at once. A subcommission might have conducted the entire discussion of the League of Nations, while the main body gave itself to the task of assisting Central and Eastern Europe, or vice versa.

Dr. Mühlon recently said to me in Berne:

"I profoundly regret that the Allies did not insist upon the unconditional surrender of Germany. From the point of view of the fundamental interest of the German people it would have been much better for us had our representative at the armistice in November last offered unconditional surrender. That would have given us democratic Germans an opportunity of conducting a bona fide democratic reorganization of Germany."

Of course, it may be presumed that, had our supreme command at the time of the armistice better understood conditions in Germany, unconditional surrender would have been demanded.

In a previous article I have referred to the collapse of Hungary. The misery of Russia I shall discuss in the future. Here I wish to call attention to two other cases of conspicuous failure. It ought to be evident to any normal mind that if Germany is to pay indemnities, Germany must go to work. If the German people are to go to work, they must have raw materials to work with. Germany's gold reserves are limited. Furthermore, to remove Germany's entire gold reserves to Belgium, France, and Italy would merely raise the prices of commodities in those countries to the consuming public. Let Germany keep the major part of her gold reserves as a basis of her exchange and pay her indemnities in coal, iron, cloth, lumber, and machines, for all of which the invaded districts are literally starving. From the point of view of the interests of those of our allies which expect large indemnities, the blockade against Germany as regards raw materials is a piece of almost unbelievable ignorance.

However, lack of a sense of responsibility as regards Germany and German-Austria is comprehensible. They are hated bitterly as enemies whose crimes have been colossal. But not so as regards the Czechoslovaks. In their case we were dealing with loyal and warm-hearted allies. It was the revolt of the Czechoslovaks, separating Berlin from Vienna, which finally broke up Austria, demoralized Germany, and secured us the victory in 1918. The story of this brave, patient, and most democratic of peoples is the grandest epic of the great war.

I had the privilege of meeting with their Socialist Party convention in the Spring of 1915, and there taking counsel with the revolutionary group concerning the desperate task before them. At that time the Russian forces were in the Carpathians, and the democracy of Bohemia and Moravia was prepared to declare the revolution with the first Russian advance of the Spring campaign. That advance never came. On the contrary, the Czechoslovaks were forced to witness victory after victory by the armies of their hated oppressors. Let this never be forgotten: That in the cause of liberty and democracy the Czechoslovaks, suffering more than any other people except the Armenians, performed deeds of heroism which it has not been given any other nation to do. Three hundred thousand strong, they went over to the Russians, knowing all the time that their own wives and children at home would be crushed and starved for their deed. In the end these 300,000 Czechoslovaks no doubt saved the lives of more than 300,000 American soldiers. What can we ever do to repay them?

I am going to tell what we have not done. I admit that I have developed during these years a very great degree of affection for them. But the facts speak for themselves without danger of personal bias. The armistice of Nov. 11 discovered, in Prague, the flag of a free people flying over the population of starving women, children, and old men. The Austrian Government had robbed them to the bone. One of the peace delegates of the Czechoslovaks in Paris related to me the story of a woman in Prague who said to him: "I, who have drawn strength from the cause, to live and fight through this war, losing everything that life had given me before, shall now have strength, also, in the cause of freedom, to die for lack of bread." This from a working woman in Prague indicates the true reason why Bolshevism has thus far found no footing in Bohemia. May the friends of the Czechoslovaks not claim that it was our sacred duty to feed and clothe the wives and children of the Czechoslovak soldiers just as we fed and clothed our own regiments in the field? Nor does the responsibility lie alone with the high command. The American Food Commission (later the Interallied Commission) piled up food for the Czechoslovaks by the hundred thousand tons in Trieste. Why was this food not properly delivered? Were not the rails between Trieste and Prague fit for train service? A few regiments of American railway engineers would have mended them within a few days. Was there a lack of rolling stock? Why not send in engines and cars from Italy, France, and Germany? Was it unworthy opposition of the Italian Government which prevented rail connections via the territory of the South Slavs? The combined voices of President Wilson and Marshal Foch would have broken through such brutality within twenty-four hours.

If ever in the history of the world deeds were demanded in place of words, that period has been during the last five months. The peoples, demanding bread, have received a stone. Yet even now it is not too late. If the American mission at Paris, from which leadership in almost everything is expected, will really lead in this matter of the reorganization of Central and Eastern Europe, much can yet be done. If we continue, as in the past, to do nothing, then let us stop deluding ourselves by unfounded visions of world peace and a League of Nations.

Senator Borah and Ohio Sentiment.

I see in Friday's paper Senator Borah's reference to an Ohio correspondent who has told him that he meets only two men in one hundred who favor the League of Nations. If Senator Borah is listening seriously to nonsense of that stamp he is reading public sentiment in America about as accurately as the Kaiser read it at the beginning of the war, and he is destined to disappear over the borders of political life in the not distant future as ingloriously as the Kaiser fled from the borders of Germany.

The men of an Ohio college, Denison University, at Granville, took a vote on the League the other day, after the fervid opposition of such patriots as Reed and Borah, Vardaman and Poindexter, Lodge and Sherman, had been duly disseminated. Of the nearly three hundred men present at chapel when the vote was taken only about one in twenty-nine recorded himself in opposition. If Senator Borah has any idea whatever that the figures given by his Ohio correspondent are even one-tenth true, let him try his hand at persuading Senator Harding to resign and demonstrate Ohio's opposition to the League by asking for a re-election on that issue.

W. H. JOHNSON.

A statement attributed to Senator Borah of Idaho in The New York Times of March 28 says that only 2 per cent. of the people of Ohio favor the League of Nations idea. Mr. Borah is gravely misrepresenting the sentiment of this State by asserting that Ohio is against the President's plan. It would be more correct to say that only 2 per cent. of Ohioans oppose the League. Sentiment in the colleges and universities here is practically unanimous in favor of the League. Only one newspaper of any prominence has opposed the League, and this one newspaper was considered violently pro-German in the war.

A Monroe Doctrine Development.

In the discussion of the relation of the proposed League of Nations to the Monroe Doctrine, it seems to me that two opposing conceptions of the latter are evident. One is that the Monroe Doctrine is a statement of our intention to maintain control over the fortunes of the American hemisphere. The other is that it is a statement of our intention to resist any effort to subjugate again to a European power an American State that had won its independence. The former interpretation seems to be that of Lodge. The latter is that of Wilson and Taft—and, I might add, of President Monroe. With the former interpretation any League of Nations would be in conflict. The latter finds its natural development in a League of Nations that extends the same sort of guarantee to all continents and links together all the nations as guarantors.

LONDON CHEERS SIMS.

Naval Headquarters Staff Turns Out —Host at the Station.

LONDON, March 31.—Vice Admiral William S. Sims, who commanded American naval forces in the war zone, had a rousing sendoff at naval headquarters this morning when he said farewell as he was about to leave for the United States. The streets about the headquarters were packed with soldiers of all nationalities, while the Headquarters Staff turned out for the occasion. Scores of cowbells mingled their din with the cheering as the Vice Admiral waved the crowd good-by.

At Waterloo Station Ambassador Davis, Consul General Skinner, Major Waldorf Astor, and a large number of members of the Embassy and Consulate staffs, together with many personal friends, British and American, bade Admiral Sims Godspeed. The British Admiralty was represented by Vice Admiral Browning, Rear Admiral Alexander Duff, Assistant Chief of the Navy Staff, and Captain Rudolph Bentinck, R. N. Admiral Sims shook hands with the postmen, charwomen, and other employes, one of whom exclaimed, "Everybody is your friend."

Admiral Sims arrived at Southampton to go on board the Mauretania. He was met by Mayor S. G. Kimber, who accompanied him to the dock. The Mauretania carries 2,000 American soldiers among her passengers.

Admiral Sims declined to be interviewed as he boarded the vessel, declaring that he was "absolutely pumped dry." Accompanying him home are Captains Richard H. Leigh, Dudley W. Knox, and Joel R. P. Pringle; Commanders Fairfield and John V. Babcock, and Lieutenant Commander Edwards.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The various private organizations formed during and since the war to detect offenders against the laws of the country and to aid in securing the prosecution of seditionists, agitators and others, will receive no sanction from the Department of Justice, so Attorney-General Palmer announced today in a statement which reads in part as follows:

"Espionage conducted by private individuals or organizations is entirely at variance with our theories of government, and its operation in any community constitutes a grave menace to that feeling of public confidence which is the chief force making for the maintenance of good order.

"Furthermore, on reflection it must be obvious to every one that for a Government agency to maintain any relationship whatever with private bodies engaged in this work would in the end result in impairing the confidence of the public in disinterestedness and impartiality of Government investigations.

"I fully realize the patriotic and high-minded motives with which these organizations have been formed, and which have animated them in making proffers of assistance to this Department, but I am constrained to say frankly that I fear the work of these private organizations may produce harmful results. I, therefore, feel compelled to instruct the various officials of this department not to enter into relationship with them."

BURLESON IGNORES CHARGES

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Post Office Department remained silent today on the accusation that Postmaster General Burleson intended to make a $30,000,000 increase in telephone rates for the benefit of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The allegation was made in Postal Telegraph, the official publication of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company. It is possible that within a short time some notice may be taken of the charge. It is understood that the department officials privately term the statement as "absurd" and "untrue," and that they maintain that the recent rate increases put into effect by the Postmaster General were solely for the purpose of paying the increased salaries of employes.

It was said at the department today that, so far as the request of the Merchants' Association of New York that deferred cable rates be restored was concerned, the censorship agreement between the allied nations was still in force on the cables and interfered with many desired changes. It is understood that the Post Office officials want the censorship agreement altered so that commercial messages in cipher may be transmitted, thus saving cost to the sender and decreasing the cable congestion.

New Telegraph Rates Between New York and Other Big Cities.

The new telegraph rates for commercial messages, promulgated a few days ago by Postmaster General Burleson, will go into effect today, increasing the cost of the service by one-fifth. An estimate of the total gross annual income of the country's telegraph business, figured at about $80,000,000, shows that the new rates mean an added cost of $16,000,000, which will have to be paid by the public.

| Point. | Old Rate. | New Rate. | Point. | Old Rate. | New Rate. |
| San Francisco.... | $1.00 | $1.20 | Kansas City | .60 | .72 |
| Indianapolis | .50 | .60 | Philadelphia. | .25 | .30 |
| New Orleans | .60 | .72 | Providence.. | .30 | .36 |
| St. Louis... | .50 | .60 | | | |

According to officials of the Postal Telegraph Company, a corporation which has steadfastly opposed Government control, the $16,000,000 added cost for telegraphs is to be followed by a thirty-million-dollar advance in the cost of telephoning.

DISCUSSES FREE SPEECH.

Judge Mayer Says Issue Is Obedience to Laws.

Judge Julius M. Mayer last night reviewed the various decisions of the Supreme Court and courts of the first instance on the place of free speech in war time in an address made to the National Security League's Flying Squadron at their weekly "Speakers' Plattsburg," held at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street. Judge Mayer said that there could be no abridgement of the right to discuss economic or political doctrines, so long as there was no attempt to undermine the Government or defeat its laws.

"Obedience to the law is the foundation of the Republic," the Judge said. "We know that what seems wrong today may be right tomorrow, but with such idealistic speculations and theorizing the court has nothing to do. The only difference between freedom of speech in time of war and time of peace is in the circumstances. The subject is not difficult at all, because if we were to write out two propositions, the first of which we thought to be within the realm of free speech and the other not, and presented them to the first 100 people we met on the street I am sure that an overwhelming majority would in their lay way be able to tell what was fair without the aid of any Judge or jury."

BOLSHEVIST ENVOY ACQUIRES A STAFF

STILL EXPECTS TO TRADE

Ignores Washington's Silence and Prepares an Organization for Propaganda and Commerce.

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist Ambassador to the United States, named his "embassy staff" yesterday, and announced that permanent offices in this city would be taken soon. Whether he will also maintain offices in Washington was not announced. Professor G. V. Lomonosoff, one of the former representatives of the Kerensky Government in this country, is one of the attachés named yesterday. It had been the impression in Government circles that Professor Lomonosoff was unalterably opposed to the Red terror, which, according to Ambassador Francis and other official witnesses recently out of Russia, now grips that country under the direction of Lenine and Trotzky.

In a statement he gave out, Mr. Martens asserted that trade relations between Bolshevist Russia and the United States will shortly be established and that hundreds of millions of dollars in trade between the two countries will be the result. It has been repeatedly stated in Washington since his original announcement two weeks ago, that this country has not recognized his mission nor has it in any way agreed to the Bolshevist proposals for a resumption of trade relations.

Santera Nuorteva, the Finn, who until the appearance of Martens was the chief paid agent of the Bolsheviki in this country, is a member of Martens's staff and is announced as publicity chief, which means that he will continue under Martens his direction of Bolshevist propaganda in this country.

Mr. Martens has also appointed A. A. Heller head of his commercial department, which, he says, as soon as trade relations with Russia are established, will have charge of the purchasing for the Soviet Government and the sale of Russian products here. Inasmuch as the Russian Government is at present the sole buyer of foreign products in Russia, this means that if trade relations are established this commercial department will do all the business that is done. Mr. Heller was the Treasurer, General Manager, and founder of the International Oxygen Company of New Jersey, a business of considerable proportions. On Jan. 1 of this year he resigned from that corporation for the purpose of devoting himself to scientific studies at Harvard. He has agreed to change his plans, Mr. Martens says, to devote his time solely to the duties of a commercial representative of the Soviet Government. Mr. Heller is a native of Russia. He came to America in 1891 and joined the Socialist movement in 1892.

A Russian who was in this country in an official capacity prior to the Bolshevist revolution of November, 1917, said yesterday that Mr. Martens, the "Potential Ambassador" is a German. At his office this was denied. It was said that Martens was born in Southern Russia of German parents. His credentials refer to him as a citizen of the Soviet Republic of Russia. A bank slip bearing his name and being the record of an account in the National City Bank for June, 1917, gives his occupation as that of agent of the Demidoff San Donati Iron Works of Russia. On that slip the name is spelled "Maertens."

SELLING RUSSIAN SUPPLIES.

The official Russian Railway Mission here, which operates under supervision of the embassy at Washington, is selling off some of the large quantity of supplies which it had accumulated in this country for the rehabilitation of the Russian railways as soon as shipping facilities should permit transfer of such supplies across the Pacific to Vladivostok and political conditions from that port westward should enable the work to be undertaken. Disclosure of this fact in the business community yesterday aroused a good deal of speculation as to the meaning of the sales.

The particular case from which the fact of the reselling became known was the disposal of 6,000 out of the 20,000 tons of steel rails now in storage at Seattle to interests understood to be acting for the Chinese Government. Many efforts had previously been made to purchase these rails from the Russian mission, but in vain. When an attempt was made about a year ago to buy a part of them for Japan, which intended to use them for military purposes in Manchuria in connection with the movement to restore stable conditions in Siberia, the overtures were repulsed, according to the agents who made the attempt, with some indignation on the part of the Russian officials, who intimated their intention of holding the rails for their original purpose and no other. The sale of 6,000 tons to China was completed last week.

A Times reporter who sought information as to whether the sale of supplies had any connection with the confident prediction of Ludwig Martens, "potential Ambassador" of the Bolsheviki, that this Government would shortly extend recognition to the Soviet régime in Russia, was referred at the Russian mission offices in the Flatiron Building to the office of the Railway Mission in the Woolworth Building. There it was said that M. Ouget, financial agent of the mission, had gone for the day, and could not be reached in the evening, but doubtless he would answer all questions today.

Members of the Stevens Engineering Mission, which at the request of this Government has undertaken the rehabilitation of the Trans-Siberian Railway, left Vladivostok some weeks ago, according to recent dispatches from Siberia, making their way west to begin their task. It has been supposed that this mission would use many of the Russian railway supplies accumulated here.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—In the absence of Ambassador Boris Bakhmetieff in Paris, Baron Gunsberg at the Russian Embassy said today that the Russian Railway Mission in New York had been selling supplies for some time, mostly rails. He flatly denied that the move had any political significance involving recognition of Bolshevist influence or anything else.

H. S. GUGGENHEIMER WED IN JERSEY CITY

LAW BARRED WEDDING HERE

The marriage of Harry S. Guggenheimer, a son of the late Randolph Guggenheimer, the First President of the Borough of Manhattan, and of Mrs. Guggenheimer of 923 Fifth Avenue, and Miss Gwendolyn Ranger Wormser, a daughter of the late Maurice S. Wormser and of Mrs. Wormser of 45 East Eighty-second Street, took place at noon yesterday in Jersey City, in the presence of the immediate families only.

The ceremony was performed at the residence of Judge Leo Sullivan, who officiated. The bride, in a dark blue traveling costume, was attended only by her brother's fiancée, Miss Marie Wehrane, and Mr. Guggenheimer's brother, Charles S. Guggenheimer, was his best man. Others present were Mrs. Randolph Guggenheimer, the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Maurice S. Wormser, the bride's brother, Mr. Wormser, Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, and Mrs. Philip Lewisohn. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to Mrs. Wormser's New York residence, where a breakfast was served and afterward Mr. Guggenheimer and his bride left for Palm Beach to spend their honeymoon there. Mr. Guggenheimer has taken a house at Babylon, L. I., for the Summer.

The final decree of divorce between Mr. Guggenheimer and his first wife, Janet Beecher Guggenheimer, a well-known actress, was signed on March 28 by Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins and filed in Westchester County. Mrs. Guggenheimer received permission to resume her maiden name and Mr. Guggenheimer was forbidden to remarry, hence the ceremony in New Jersey. This first marriage took place in 1913. Yesterday's bride, who is 23, has been a member of the Summer colony at Long Branch, and is a granddaughter of the late Solomon Ranger. Mr. Guggenheimer is a lawyer and a member of the firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall, this city.

WEDS ROGER M. MINTON.

Mrs. Louise G. Hadlow a Bride in Marble Collegiate Church.

Mrs. Louise G. Hadlow and Roger M. Minton were married at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Marble Collegiate Church in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends. Mrs. C. R. Buchanan of Richmond, Va., a sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and Philip Van Rensselaer Schuyler acted as best man for Mr. Minton. A small reception folowed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Mabon, at the Wyoming, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street.

The bride was a widow, and formerly resided in Richmond. Mr. Minton recently received his honorable discharge from the United States Marines, and was in service for a time at Santo Domingo. He is a member of the Union and New York Yacht Clubs. His first wife was Miss Anita Ingersoll, daughter of the late Charles D. Ingersoll. They were married in April, 1910, and divorced several years ago.

ALBANY, March 31.—Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, leader of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, came to Albany tonight to lead the fight to save from the legislative graveyard the series of protective measures introduced in behalf of the Women's Joint Legislative Conference for Women Workers of the State. Mrs. Whitehouse will devote most of her time during the remainder of the session to an endeavor to obtain favorable action on the bills in the Senate. The Assembly, through refusal to report the bills, with the exception of the Women's Elevator bill, which has passed, has shown antagonism to the measures.

Mrs. Whitehouse made an appointment to see Speaker Sweet and Majority Leader Adler of the Assembly tomorrow to attempt to secure a reversal of action on the bills in the lower house.

School teachers of New York City, led by Miss Olive Jones, President of the New York City Federation of Teachers, invaded the Legislature tonight and told the lawmakers that the Downing-Malone bill providing substantial increases in salaries to teachers throughout the State had a widespread backing. It is regarded as doubtful, however, if the bill can secure sufficient votes to pass, mainly because the cities of the State complain that they are already financially overburdened.

MARRY IN PERSHING CLUB.

Lieut. Geo. Harrison, U. S. N., and Miss Sheehan Wed in Haste.

Miss Margaret Lucile Sheehan of 220 West Forty-ninth Street, and Lieutenant George Harrison, U. S. N., were married last night at the Pershing Club of the War Camp Community Service, which was formerly St. Bartholomew's Church, by the Rev. John Ryan.

Arrangements were made in a hurry as the Lieutenant had to sail this morning. The necessary witnesses were recruited from the club, including Mrs. Eugenie McPherson and Mrs. Josephine Stevens. The chaplain also happened to be on the spot.

Several times before Lieutenant Harrison and his fiancée set the date for the marriage, but each time naval orders would interfere and the Lieutenant would be called back to his ship and sent overseas.

Menken-Sinton Wedding April 24.

Naval Aviators as Anxious to Avoid Them as to Have Clear Skies.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—While final plans for the projected transatlantic flight of naval seaplanes are rapidly taking form, the officers in charge have not decided upon even a tentative date for the start. It was explained officially today at the Navy Department that this would be affected as much by windstorms current at Newfoundland as by clear weather.

After the machines reach Newfoundland from Rockaway Beach, L. I., they must receive a final tuning up, and then the start must be made between storms which sweep down from the Arctic every there or four days. The beginning of the flight must be so gauged, it is explained, that the machines will not overtake one storm as it slows down before dissipating at sea and yet will not be caught in a second squall.

Before "jumping off" for the actual crossing of the ocean, the seaplanes will be called upon to make a longer voyage than has yet been negotiated by naval machines—that from Rockaway Beach to Newfoundland. At least one stop will be made on this flight, probably at Halifax, for fuel.

It may be necessary for one or more of the machines to descend at other points, and it is to select possible landing places that the destroyer Barney was sent on its cruise along the coast from Maine to Newfoundland. The destroyer is now held at Halifax by ice floes, but it was said at the Department today that she would proceed to Newfoundland when the ice cleared.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 31.—Colonel Ray Collishaw, a Canadian aviator, sailed on the steamship Olympic for England today to bring back an airplane with which to enter the transatlantic contest. He will attempt his flight from Newfoundland early in May, accompanied by Major McKeever and a wireless operator.

Colonel Collishaw expects to accomplish the flight in twenty hours. His machine will be equipped with five motors of 400 horsepower each, and will be capable of carrying fifty people and remaining in the air for thirty hours.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 31.—Public hearings will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday on the Davenport-Judson Taxation bills imposing an income tax, personal property tax, and an increase in rates of the Emerson impost on the net incomes of all corporations. The hearings will be held in the Senate Chamber beginning at 2 o'clock each afternoon.

Faced with the necessity of raising at least $25,000,000 for the State's Treasury to insure conduct of the Government for the next fiscal year, leaders may have to make the proposed income tax a party measure to force it through the Legislature, to overcome the opposition which is manifesting itself, particularly up State. Members of the majority and the minority tonight refused to indicate how they would vote on the income tax proposal, but both leaders in the Assembly declared that an income tax was bound to come, and that because of the imperative need of funds this was the time for the enactment of such a law.

It is not believed that the minority on the Legislative Tax Investigating Committee will file a report supplementary to that to be filed by Senator Davenport, Chairman of the committee. From this it has been inferred that Governor Smith will be favorable to the tax legislation as proposed.

Governor Smith called the members of the Democratic minority in both houses to the Executive Chamber at the conclusion of the session tonight. They discussed the tax bills pending in the Legislature and the remainder of the Governor's program.

Acting upon the preliminary report of the investigation into the conduct of the State Industrial Commission, the Governor tonight sent a message to the Senate and Assembly urging that the direct settlement of claims under the Workmen's Compensation Act, which was provided for through legislation enacted during the first year of the Whitman régime, be eliminated by law, so that in the future the State may be the arbiter in all such cases, as it was when the law was first put into operation.

Bills to carry out the Governor's recommendations were introduced by Senator James A. Foley and Assemblyman Charles D. Donohue, the Democratic leaders of the Senate and Assembly. Senator Foley urged that his bill be advanced to third reading at once, but to this J. Henry Walters, President pro tem. of the Senate, objected, and the measure was sent to committee.

The Sage bill abolishing the State Food Commission passed the Assembly. It had already passed the Senate, and is now ready for the Governor's signature.

The Assembly advanced to third reading the Malone bill permitting fishing and baseball on Sunday after 2 P. M., if local governing bodies should adopt permissive ordinances.

Federal Revenue Department Listing to Determine Beverages Within the Law.

ALBANY, March 31.—Private apartments, which under the Anti-Saloon League's Bone-Dry Prohibition Enforcement bill as originally drafted would have been subject to visitation by the State "Welfare" Commissioner and his deputies, will be immune from raids as the result of an amendment made to that measure at the Senate session this evening. The amendment, which was offered by Senator Thompson of Niagara, introducer of the bill, defines apartments as "private dwellings," and for such the bill provides no liquor search warrants shall be issued. The amendment was prepared by the Anti-Saloon League to meet widespread objections to the original clause.

It was only one of a series of amendments that were made tonight on the initiative of the league. In one of these amendments, the league, in order to ingratiate itself with the Republicans, makes provision for the continuance in office of the present Excise Commissioner, who is a Republican, until the end of his term, under the title "Welfare Commissioner."

The Anti-Saloon League had inserted in the enforcement bill, too, an entirely new section providing that "all alcoholic compounds, listed by the United States Internal Revenue Department as not sufficiently medicated to prevent their beverage use, are hereby declared to be liquor for the purposes of this chapter."

This new section also provides that where the "Welfare" Commissioner shall have knowledge or notice, or where complaint is made, "that a liquid is being used as a beverage and is capable of producing intoxication," he shall investigate and have authority to summon witnesses in the course of his investigation. If the complaint is sustained or his suspicions verified, he is required to declare the liquid in question taboo under the law. The section further provides for the making of analyses by the Department of Health, and also for the appointment by the Welfare Commissioner of a Standing Committee composed of three physicians and two druggists to determine whether the drug contents in liquids of alcoholic compound is sufficient to render them unfit as a beverage.

A new cider clause in the bill makes it a crime for any one to have in his possession fermented cider that has not been dealcoholized. Under the clause any one permitting cider to ferment must attach a label to the container giving the date on which the cider was made.

Senator Thompson said tonight that unless the bill is reported from committee he would move to suspend the Senate rules for the purpose of making a fight to compel the commitee to let the measure come out for debate.

PARIS, March 30.—Dr. John H. Finley, arriving today from Asia Minor, was astonished on reaching Paris when he saw a copy of an Albany newspaper which said that he was about to resign as New York Commissioner of Education to become Governor General of Palestine.

So far is this from being the case that he will sail tomorrow for America to take up his educational duties at Albany. He has completed his part of the work which the Red Cross assigned to him as its Commissioner in Asia Minor and the Near East. His last mission there was to travel all the way from the Euphrates to Constantinople, he being the first American to undertake this journey since the war.

PROHIBITION HERE SURPRISES LIPTON

SEES WELCOME TO TROOPS

Yachtsman Declares Germans Will Not Be Allowed Into England for Years.

Of all the changes in this country since his last visit in 1913, Sir Thomas Lipton yesterday said that he considered the passing of the prohibition amendment the most remarkable. Sir Thomas declared that he was surprised because it had always been his opinion that American citizens would never permit their freedom of action to be hindered in any way.

"Prohibition couldn't come in England," he said, "and it is with great amazement that I see that you in this country have passed the amendment providing that a man shall not drink certain things, even if he wants to and has the price. In England we have always rather imagined Americans as being the freest people on earth and as being most jealous of that freedom. What will you do when prohibition is in force? Will it be easy to obey the law?"

It was at the close of a hard day yesterday, spent, as Sir Thomas admitted, chiefly in getting around and getting acquainted with the city again, that the famous yachtsman consented to rceive newspaper men in his suite on the seventeenth floor of the Commodore Hotel. His eye was as bright as ever as he parried some of the questions which were shot at him and which for one reason or another he did not wish to discuss.

"How do you stand on the League of Nations?" Sir Thomas was asked.

He thought a moment, then replied: "How do you stand on it? You know I am not a politician."

He was interested in the latest reports from the Peace Conference, and said he wondered if Lloyd George and President Wilson were "pulliing together."

"We will not allow Germans to immigrate to England for several years to come, that's certain," he said. "It would not do at all. You see there are too many persons who have suffered at the hands of Germany, and the sight of a German in a factory, or even on the street, would be a signal for a fight every time."

Sees Soldiers Welcomed Home.

Sir Thomas was enthusiastic at the sight he witnessed on the bay yesterday when the shipload of American soldiers, with whom he had crossed the ocean, were greeted by New York.

"I tell you that reception made tears come to my eyes," he said. "I have seen nothing finer in my life than the way you people here welcomed your boys from over there, unless perhaps it be the way in which those boys themselves had looked forward all the way across to the welcome they would get from their countrymen. No better men ever stood in shoe leather than the soldiers who came home on the Aquitania with me. I remember especially a youngster who could hardly restrain himself the last day. 'My mother is somewhere out there in one of those ships meeting us,' he told me. 'She has come all the way from San Francisco to be here when I land.' It was a great thing for the world that a nation like America was ready to come in when she did."

Sir Thomas said that in England the returning soldiers did not get quite so exuberant a welcome, although the feeling was just as deep. Englishmen were not so apt to show their feelings, and also, he said, England had suffered too deeply in the war—the sight of thousands of cripples on the streets—to give way to any sentiment of joy now, no matter how strong and sincere it might be.

He told many interesting anecdotes, one of which happened some years ago at Cowes, England, during the racing season. Sir Thomas and his guests, Martin Littleton and Mrs. Littleton and John D. Crimmins of New York, were on board Sir Thomas's yacht, the Erin, one morning, when they saw the King's private launch coming toward their ship. Everything was at once put in order for his Majesty's arrival, the crew hastily donning their best uniforms and the Americans present getting ready to make the proper bow. The launch drew alongside, and, as the Captain waited with Sir Thomas at the gangway, out stepped former Mayor John Fitzgerald of Boston and his two daughters.

Mayor Fitzgerald, he said, had wandered along the waterfront looking for a launch to take him to call on Sir Thomas, and had in some manner got on to the royal wharf, and when the crew of the King's launch saw him they thought he was a peer of England, especially as he asked to be taken to the yacht of Sir Thomas Lipton, the King's friend.

Sir Thomas said that he had not yet visited the New York Yacht Club, but expected to do so some time before he went back. He declared that there would be a race in 1920, and that one of his purposes in coming over had been to look over the challenger, Shamrock IV., which is in dry dock here.

Ten Buyers After One Suit.

The representative of a clothing house yesterday stated that conditions have reached a stage in the industry where ten buyers are after one suit. The services of the house "staller," as he named the individual who thinks up excuses for non-delivery, were never so much in demand as at the present time. Reorders on top of initial orders, together with the confusion incidental to preparing for the Fall season, he said, have placed the average manufacturer in a position where he is almost ready to throw up his hands.

Need for Design Law.

Although manufacturers of textiles for some time have studied the question of protection for original designs, the matter has never come to a head. As time goes on in the woolen, silk and cotton piece goods trade the necessity for a law that will give the desired protection, the manufacturers state, grows more pressing. An example was shown yesterday by a manufacturer who displayed a fabric and then its counterpart that he had picked up in the market, line for line the same pattern and almost shade for shade the same color design. The imitation was made to compete at a lower price.

Dress Goods Sales Steady.

While in no sense approximating a boom, a steady business in dress goods for the current and coming seasons is told of in this market. The manufacturers have no difficulty in selling all the merchandise they desire, and in some cases the problem is less one of getting orders than of making deliveries later on. Men on the road for the jobbers are sending in good business for Fall, though it is said that many buyers are loath to accept present prices as final. In the house trade now passing, there is quite a little divergence of demand, but the best call still appears to be for novelty plaids.

Do Not Like Allotments Plan.

The heavy demand for, and the rather limited production of, the fancier kinds of silk hosiery for Fall has made it necessary for some concerns to allot certain numbers to their customers, these allotments being based on the amount of business done with them during recent normal seasons. The plan is not meeting with full satisfaction, however, for, according to the men who sell the goods, every buyer wants more than his or her allotment. When told that to increase their share means the stinting of some one else, they make the "be-a-good-fellow" plea and promise all kinds of fat orders in the future if they are taken care of "just this time." If this fails to move the salesmen, it is as likely as not followed by the buyers with charges of discrimination in favor of some other store and more or less veiled threats of closing their accounts.

Burlaps Quiet Down Again.

The spurt of buying that marked last week as the most active the local burlap trade has seen for four or five months has come to an end, and the market is again quiet. Prices, however, continue to be quoted on the bases reached as a result of the buying movement. For lightweight forty-inch goods 6¾ cents is asked, while heavy burlaps of the same width are held at 8¼ cents. Not much is heard from the primary markets. Calcutta mills will go on a four-days-a-week operating schedule today to be continued indefinitely. About the only thing of interest concerning Dundee is that deliveries of wide burlaps on old orders are being made more freely.

More Millinery Novelties Shown.

The current season in the millinery field is more than ordinarily productive of novelties. Among the new things offered here are hats of wood fibre straw. This straw is about two inches wide and can be braided or arranged in loops. The same material is seen glazed, and in this form is called Chicklet straw. Among the newest trimmings are large, flat flowers made of dotted chiffon in all the pastel shades. They are said to be especially adaptable for use on dress hats. Grapes, raisins, and little rosebuds made of soft taffeta are also being used for decorations, as are flowers made of straight ostrich flues. In colors, jade green seems to be the newest that has found favor.

Lace Hosiery Wanted.

Dealers catering to the retail demand for women's hosiery report a scarcity and a very active demand for lace goods. These latter designs were formerly made in Germany, but several manufacturers in this country have been able to duplicate them successfully. It was reported yesterday that, if such merchandise were available at the present time, buyers no doubt could be found who would pay eight or twelve dollars a dozen more for this sort of hose. The business on general lines of women's hosiery has been satisfactory, but retailers still persist in a hand to mouth buying policy despite the fact that the mills are reported to be four or five hundred thousand dozen behind production up to the present.

Carpet Openings Today.

In addition to the auction sale of floor coverings to start today in the showroom of the Alexander Smith and Sons Carpet Company, all the important factors in the trade will announce prices, thereby formally opening the Fall season. In starting the season earlier than in years, the purpose of the big manufacturers, it was said yesterday, is to stabilize conditions and at the same time to accommodate the retail buyers who for a long time have believed that an earlier opening would prove a boon to the trade. At any rate, it will not make necessary a trip to this city covering ten days or two weeks at a time when they are needed in their own stores or offices.

Ribbons in Excellent Demand.

The ribbon trade has been unable to keep abreast of the present demand. Conditions on which prices are based, namely, the raw material market, shortage of stock and labor, give a very strong tone to present quotations. Wide goods are especially needed for vestees and bags, in the latter instance one buyer writing that he has plenty of bag tops on his counters but no ribbon to sell with them. All patterns are being taken, as buyers are anxious for merchandise and are not so particular just what it is they get.

Gray Goods Prices Firmer.

Gray goods prices took on a firmer tone in this market yesterday, though trading was not overactive. One of the few features was the smaller quantity of goods offered from second hands. Sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made for April delivery by first hands at 9¼ cents, and late in the day it was difficult to get the goods out at that price. The same was true of 39-inch 68-72s, which sold from first hands at 10⅝ cents. Sheetings were rather quiet, but prices were well sustained. Sales included some April 36-inch 56-60 four-yard goods at 11⅝ cents. Business in sateens and twills was good, and quite sizeable sales of lawns and other fine-yarn goods were reported for delivery in April, May, and June.

OPPOSES BLUE SKY BILL.

The Bar Association's Committee on the Amendment of the Law yesterday sent to the Governor and the members of the Legislature its opinions of 100 measures now pending before the Legislature. Among the bills disapproved is the Black "blue sky" law, concerning which the committee says:

"There are at the present time millions of dollars in valid and marketable securities in the State of New York the sale of which in the ordinary course of business would be made difficult or impossible if this legislation were enacted. Moreover, the bill is badly drawn and is at time unintelligible."

Other bills disapproved are the Sage-Malone measure to amend the negotiable instruments law as to what constitutes notice, saying that "its particular vice is that it seeks to substitute a selfish special interest on the part of banks and trust companies for the integrity of our law." The Pellet bill to increase the number of General Sessions Judges from seven to nine, the Link bills to prohibit the use of signs in foreign languages, and the Marshall-Cheney bill to repeal the present provision that a trust company cannot lend money to its own Directors in excess of 10 per cent. of its capital stock are all disapproved.

Among the bills approved is the Blackburn bill "to terminate the present high scandal of permitting a Surrogate and County Judge to act as attorney in civil and criminal cases in the Supreme Court."

POTASH IN FOOD SHIPS.

It Will Be Part of the Cargo of Those Returning from Hamburg.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, March 31.—The Weser Zeitung, commenting on the arrival of several food ships at Hamburg, says that the American harbor master, Captain Robinson, has decided that these vessels shall be used for transporting potash on the homeward voyage and that 5,000 tons of potash are soon expected at Hamburg.

The Zeitung says that the steamship West Carnifax is already unloading and that the docks are protected by a military patrol. American sailors are said to be carrying on a lively trade with the guards, giving chocolates and cigarettes in exchange for Hamburg souvenirs. Two ships are expected today from Rotterdam, bringing 2,300 tons of grain and some fats.

The Rhenish Gazette notes the agreement that further transportation of American foodstuffs to the interior of Germany shall not be carried out by the State, but by the Association of German shippers and forwarding agencies. The paper sees in this the beginning of industrial economic freedom.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Resist Pressure and Special Issues Gain Ground —Copper Situation Abroad.

The stable undertone of the stock market was demonstrated more fully yesterday than in the closing days of last week, and trading had much the general character of the sessions for some time past. That is, professional traders on the floor of the Exchange and outside were active and fairly successful in bidding up a number of the specialties. In the first hour there appeared to be something of an effort to depress the steel stocks through short sales, but so little of a following was uncovered that those who sought profits this way were quickly discouraged. Steel common at one time was offered down with a fair degree of persistence. The stimulating influence of the statement of the corporation for 1918 was in evidence, however, and the attack on the stock had little result to speak of, the final quotation showing no change for the day. Irrespective of the immediate course of the steel industry, the Steel Corporation's report set forth in detail the great strength of working capital, and the largely increased manufacturing facilities which have been added during the war period.

Inasmuch as the security market is much interested in foreign trade prospects attention was drawn to the copper metal situation by the report of a member of the committee of copper men which went abroad sometime ago to study conditions. The survey resulted in information going to show that while large stocks are in the hands of the allied Governments private consumers in a number of countries, including Germany, have very little. The inference to be drawn from this was that the removal of current trade restrictions would stimulate exports, but this outlook is still beclouded by the lack of plans so far of arranging proper credits in this country. The copper stocks moved in an irregular fashion with no particular trend.

The settlement of the Corn Products Company's case out of court disposes of another of the famous anti-trust suits. The market took due notice of statements that the arrangement proposed by the corporation was of a drastic nature as affecting the properties which will still be owned when details are worked out. Like many other important events now to the fore at home and abroad the case had no especial influence on the day's business in stocks. The news from Paris and from points of political disturbance on the Continent was considered with the calmness and apparent indifference that have been the procedure for weeks. Even strong intimations coming from the seat of the peace conference that internal differences among the Commissioners were coming to a head was received with no especial anxiety. If the stock market was directed less by professional buyers and sellers and more by a general public participation the firmness of the market structure might be looked upon as a true barometer of what the people are thinking about peace negotiations. As it is the lack of pronounced liquidating and realizing sales seemed to show something of confidence that matters will work out all right across the sea.

The call money market was on a 6 per cent. basis practically all day long and in banking quarters it is expected to keep close to this level until the Victory Liberty Loan is completed. Sterling exchange remained around the basis of 4.58 where it has seemed to be supported for several days past. Francs moved into new low ground at 6.04 for cables, closing somewhat better than this. There were no new developments to affect any of the exchange markets.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stocks Easily Advanced.

Traders are finding it a simple matter to "run prices up." Almost any sort of buying will suffice to do it and whenever two or three brokers happen to start buying at the same time word goes forth that "pool activity is starting up," and more buyers are attracted and there is a mild and not long-lived sensation. Then, usually, the stock quietly slips back to where it started from, while popular attention moves elsewhere. The explanation, it would seem, is easy enough. Most people these days want to be bulls. They feel that prices are going up, ought to go up, and are fearful they will not be present when the movement starts. Hence, they are inclined to jump in at the slightest provocation, and then, more often than not, they jump out again as soon as it is discovered the stock they happen to have is not going to go right through the roof. All of which makes for a considerable turn-over, and, at the same time, explains the fact that brokers' loans are not swelling with the volume of business.

Traction Stocks.

A good illustration of the way stocks may be marked up on slight provocation may be found in the local tractions. Interborough Consolidated preferred rose some 4 points in the early trading, while the common and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit and the Third Avenue shares all scored good gains all on a rumor that the Martin bill had been reported out at Albany and was expected to pass the Legislature and be signed by the Governor. Not everybody in Wall Street expects Governor Smith to sign the Martin bill if it is passed, for some quiet reports say it is to be made a party measure by the Republicans. But aside from that, and notwithstanding the Street went to it yesterday and allowed the traction shares to act as if the whole thing were over and increased fares were an accomplished fact. The action of Interborough Consolidated common, which rose 1¼ and reacted ⅝ would be sensational on a percentage basis. The movement equals a rise of 37 per cent. and a reaction of 14 per cent.

French Finances.

The French Government, acting through J. P. Morgan & Co., will meet its $100,000,000 obligation today, paying 105¼ for the bonds presented at the Morgan offices. A few of the bonds, it is understood, have been converted into the so-called twenty-year bonds, which are really eighteen-year bonds, as they mature in 1937, and some will be presented to the French Treasury authorities at Paris, but a majority will be cashed here. Possibly because of this French exchange fell to a new low for the present movement, touching 6.06 for cables. The money for the redemption of the bonds, it is stated on authority, has been in hand for some weeks, so that no exchange operation was necessary, but the sentimental influence of the maturing bonds may have had something to do with the drop yesterday. Also, the uncertain state of affairs at Paris has, to put it in one way, done nothing to help franc exchange.

Foreign Credits Delayed.

Bankers say a great mass of work pends while the diplomatists argue at Paris. Inquiries for loans have been received from a number of European countries—France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, and Denmark, among others—and from some Asiatic nations. But bankers here can hardly bring themselves to the point of enthusing while yet the peace treaty remains unsigned. There is no particular disposition to criticise or attack any one—merely a tendency to regret that things should be as they are, for the business promises to be profitable and interesting once it starts moving.

Our Wheat Crop.

One of the leading private authorities on wheat estimates the Winter wheat crop at somewhere between 897,000,000 and 921,000,000 bushels, depending on whether there is more or less abandonment than there was in 1915, and allowing for a varying degree of Winter kill. The condition of the crop now is placed at 95.8, and reports coming in from many different sources say the Winter kill is virtually nil and that abandonment will be the lowest on record, so that indications are the higher, rather than the lower, figure is more nearly correct. If the 921,000,000 bushel mark is accepted—and realized—the crop is better than last year by 333,000,000 bushels and better than the bumper crop of 1915 by 236,000,000 bushels.

Steel Stock Held by Workers.

The course of Steel common in the market from day to day shows what investors and speculators in general think of it. A fresh point of view is supplied by figures which show what the Steel Corporation's own employes think of the stock. The annual statement shows that since Jan. 1 of this year 156,680 shares( have been subscribed for by the workers, no fewer than 60,741 employes buying the stock. The stock subscribed for is 64.2 per cent. more than in the same period of the preceding year, while the increase of subscribers is 40.4 per cent. When the offering was made this year at $92 per share the market appraisal moved under this price for some days. The later movement up to par and above may or may not have stimulated subscriptions. Employes receive a special dividend over and above the regular payment, which naturally has some influence on the distribution.

For a Fair Comparison.

While the rent paid to the railroads by the Government averages $75,000,000 a month, seasonal variations in the volume of traffic are so great that it is unfair to compare monthly returns with that figure. Railroad men have been among the first to assert that such a comparison is not fair, and the Association of Railway Executives has compiled a table showing what the average monthly return of the carriers in the pre-war test period was. It follows:

| | | | |
| Jan. | $55,000,000 | July | $76,000,000 |
| Feb. | 47,000,000 | Aug. | 88,000,000 |
| Mar. | 68,000,000 | Sept. | 92,000,000 |
| April | 67,000,000 | Oct. | 95,000,000 |

By quarters, the average net income in the test period compares with the quarterly payment of about $226,000,000, which the Government has to make, as follows: First quarter, $170,000,000; second quarter, $227,000,000; third quarter, $256,000,000, and last quarter, $252,000,000. For the first half of the year in the test period the average was $397,000,000, while in the second half it was $507,000,000.

Tempering the Viewpoint.

One of the most consistent optimists in the steel trade, who is in close touch with developments both with respect to the low and high cost producers, said yesterday that he continues "optimistic with reservations." The new price schedule, he said, has brought great difficulties to small high-cost companies, and there will be an increasing number of shutdowns by concerns of that character. The larger high-cost companies, on the other hand, have reaped the benefit of three years of capacity business at war prices, and have been able to fortify themselves so that they should weather the slack period between war and peace demands. The latter, according to this man, should begin to be apparent on a broad scale within a comparatively few months. He also gave it as his opinion that orders, when they really gain headway, will outstrip the price schedule, and that pig iron will advance again, possibly as high as $36 to $40 a ton.

Corn Products at New High.

Corn Products Refining sold to a new high record, at 60¾, in yesterday's stock market. Details of the terms that the corporation had agreed upon with the Attorney General of the United States in settlement of the Government's dissolution suit, which was started in 1913, served to check the advance which began in the first few minutes of trading after the opening, but the stock displayed a firm undertone and closed at 59, with a net gain of one-eighth of a point over the previous close.

CORN PRODUCTS CO. MUST BE BROKEN UP

NO LOOPHOLE FOR ESCAPE

Court Explains That Competitive Conditions Must Be Restored in Harmony with Law.

A final decree directing the dissolution of the Corn Products Refining Company, an eighty-million-dollar concern, not later than Jan. 1, 1921, under pain of having the properties sold at public auction, was filed yesterday by Federal Judge Learned Hand. The decree, which is most drastic, follows the line of an agreement reached between the Government and the company after the United States Supreme Court had dismissed the company's appeal from a conviction for violating the Sherman anti-trust law.

In a decree made by Judge Hand in November, 1916, no mention was made of the method of restoring competition, but referred this matter to the Federal Trade Commission. After the determination to appeal had been made by the company it was announced that if the Supreme Court decided in favor of the company, then the Federal Trade Commission could hold hearings and decide upon the separation of the company into a number of units. But the Government and the company agreed upon a plan for the dissolution, which the decree approves.

The final decree makes a complete dissolution imperative and provides no loophole for an escape from it by any artifices such as separating the units and placing men under some central control in charge of each of them. While it sets Jan. 1, 1921, as the latest date for the carrying out of the order, the decree provides that all reasonable diligence shall be exercised in the dissolution. In the suit begun by the Government against the company for violation of the Sherman law it charged that the company was an illegal combination and that it had displayed an inveterate and incorrigible insistence in interfering with the course of trade and commerce.

The decree, in directing the dissolution in such fashion that the company, as it is now organized, shall pass entirely out of the control of its present management, says:

> The defendant, Corn Products Refining Company, with all reasonable diligence, and in any event not later than Jan. 1, 1921, shall, subject to the approval of the court, sell and dispose of its plants at Granite City, Ill.; Davenport, Iowa; its interest in the stock and other securities of the National Starch Company, with its plant at Oswego, N. Y., and the stock and securities of the Novelty Candy Company, which has plants at Chicago, Ill., and Jersey City, N. J., to a person or persons, including corporations, not controlled by or affiliated with the Corn Products Refining Company, or any of its officers, Directors, agents or affiliated corporations, and if such purchaser be a corporation, none of the defendants, and no officer, Director or stockholder of the Corn Products Refining Company or affiliated corporations shall have any substantial interest in the stock or other securities of such purchaser.
> And the Corn Products Refining Company, or affiliated corporations, shall not have any officers or Directors in common with such purchaser, nor shall any defendant be such purchaser. Only persons or corporations intending to continue the business shall be eligible as purchasers.

All of the officers of the company were made defendants in the Government suit. The decree also provides that the company shall not permit or cause the assets of the properties, tangible or intangible, to be substantially changed or diminished, or to reduce their capacity or be turned over for purposes other than that for which they have been used.

To Restore Competition.

It is explained by the court that the object of the decree is to restore competitive conditions, and it is provided that if these conditions are not restored at the expiration of three years the Government shall have the right to such further relief as shall be necessary to restore competitive conditions and to bring about a situation in harmony with the law. In the meantime the court reserves jurisdiction in the matter, and may at any time reopen the cause and take such action as may be needed to obtain the object sought.

The suit against the company was instituted by the Government on March 1, 1913. In its complant it alleged that the company controlled more than 60 per cent. of the trade in glucose, starch, and their by-products. In his opinion directing a dissolution, which Judge Hand wrote in June, 1916, he said:

> The Corn Products Refining Company has been characterized throughout by attempts to create sporadic competition. We have the richest possible evidence that they never meant to maintain it as a policy, but only to drive out weaker competitors to maintain the field. Its constant effort has been to prevent competitors from demonstrating whether they could manufacture as well and as cheaply as itself.
> It has tried, throughout, by its power, temporarily, to affect commercial conditions so as to obscure the actual industrial facts and to make impossible any test of relative strength. That it has failed does not change the past or make its continued existence in any sense less compromising to the future. There is every assurance that it will continue unfair trade methods unless it is forcibly prevented.

Among the many charges made against the company by the Government was one to the effect that it sought to obtain freight rates that would make it easier to overcome competitors.

The largest individual plants of the company are those located at Argo and Pekin, Ill., and at Edgewater, N. J. These the company will be permitted to retain. The company was originally created by the merger of the Corn Products Company and the New York Glucose, the Warner Sugar Refining and the St. Louis Syrup and Preserving Companies.

Edward T. Bedford, President of the Corn Products Refining Corporation, said yesterday that the plants which must be disposed of before 1921 showed earnings last year which were equal to the total pre-war earnings of the entire organization, and that the candy plants alone had made $1,000 000 and had paid a $700,000 excess profits tax. Pre-war earnings of the corporation in 1913 showed total income of more than $3,665,000, with a surplus after depreciation, interest charges, taxes, and insurance, amounting to $784,855. In the following year total income was more than $3,877,000 and surplus was $811,943.

Mr. Bedford said that there would be no reorganization of the corporation and no readjustment of capital as the result of the agreement.

PALMER SEES GOOD RESULTS.

Attorney General Declares Legal Steps Are Largely Cleared.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—What Attorney General Palmer and his advisers regard as an important development in Federal anti-trust matters took place in the Supreme Court of the United States today when the Corn Products Refining Company, through its counsel, moved for a dismissal of its appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

The District Court some time ago adjudged the Corn Products Refining Company to be a combination in restraint of trade in starch, glucose, and grape sugar, made from corn, and their derivatives, and in mixed groups containing 85 per cent. or thereabouts of glucose. The Corn Products Company appealed from this decree to the United States Supreme Court. The dismissal of this appeal, on motion of the appellants, granted by the Supreme Court today means that the decree of the lower court will now go into effect.

"The result in this case," said Attorney General Palmer, after learning of the dismissal of the appeal, "coupled with the similar decree entered last November in the Harvester case, should go far toward clearing and settling the law on this important question.

"The result is to put into full force and effect the decree of the District Court which, after adjudging that the union of competitors on so large a scale through the instrumentality of the Corn Products Company, was a combination in restraint of trade, ordered the dissolution of the combination and enjoined it from further pursuing certain trade practices set forth in detail in the decree.

"As a step toward compliance with the law, the company had heretofore dispossessed itself by order of the District Court of all its interest in the corporation of Penick & Ford, Limited, which was one of its principal competitors in syrups.

"By a further order entered today by the District Court the company is directed, with all possible diligence and in any event not later than Jan. 1, 1921, to sell to entirely independent interests, its plant at Granite City, Ill.; its plant at Davenport, Iowa; all its holding in the National Starch Company, with plants at Oswego, N. Y., and all its holdings in the Novelty Candy Company, which, according to the charge of the bill, it had used to coerce the patronage of candy manufacturers.

"The decree further provides that if these properties shall not have been disposed of within the time limited, they are to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder. This leaves the company with plants at Argo and Pekin, Ill., and Edgewater, N. J., only.

"Finally, the decree entered today by the District Court provides that if, at the expiration of three years, the measures therein directed and those directed by the previous decrees in the case have not proved adequate in the opinion of the Government to restore competitive conditions in trade and commerce in starch, glucose, and grape sugar, made from corn and their derivatives, and in mixed syrups, and to bring about a situation in harmony with law, the Government shall have the right to such further relief in the present case as may be necessary to that end."

ACTIVE SESSION IN COTTON.

Weather Reports Drive Prices Up After Sharp Decline.

Very general selling, with Wall Street and other local houses taking the lead, sent yesterday's cotton market down sharply in the morning, and then, in the afternoon, bad weather reports and good export reports sent it back up again, so that on the day the net changes were comparatively small, while the swings were large. It was a peculiar market, with what seemed to be a very strong undertone. The early selling was so aggressive that the casual observer might be pardoned for believing it reflected something more than mere liquidation. Persons who were liquidating long cotton would hardly do so in a way to slaughter values, and that is what yesterday's early selling did.

The weather reports, which spoke of cold weather in many parts of the belt, and the rather favorable export figures, together with some short-covering and evening-up, took the market at the low figures, when old May was at 23.80, new May at 24.46, and old and new July at 21.65 and 21.99, respectively, and sent them skyward. The rise brought old and new May to 24.30 and 25.20, and old and new July to 22.50 and 22.80, rallies of 50 to 85 points, with other options doing correspondingly. The buying, at times in the afternoon, was almost as aggressive as was the early selling, which seems to bear out the contention that the present market is more under the control of the professional traders than of any conservative trade interest. It has been this sort of market, as a matter of fact, ever since the Exchange was forced to embrace two kinds of contracts, and will probably remain such for some time to come.

The afternoon rally was well sustained and prices held well, finishing at or close to the best quotation of the day. Compared with Saturday's closing, yesterday's market finished within a range of 5 down to 15 up for active old-style contracts, and 5 to 30 points up for active new-style contracts.

America Leads in Supplying Long Time Money, Penny Tells Bankers.

NEW ORLEANS, March 31.—The United States has displaced England and all other pre-war creditor countries in supplying long-time money for the financing of industry and transportation, D. H. G. Penny of New York told bankers here today. Mr. Penny, who is Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce of New York, delivered an address before the annual convention of the Association of Reserve City Bankers.

"During the war dollar exchange has made remarkable progress in dealings in South America and the Far East," said Mr. Penny. "It is more readily negotiated in Japan and China than any other exchange. Closely allied to dollar exchange and leading directly to an extension of dollar exchange is what is known as 'direct exchange.' For example, we are doing business with Argentina, Greece, Japan, and other foreign countries in their own moneys now. Reversely, they quote dollars in their markets and make payments to us in dollars.

"Prior to 1914 bank acceptances in the United States were unimportant, and we consequently lacked the instrumentality for making dollar exchange an important factor in international operations. Since the inauguration of the Federal Reserve System, however, the growth in the volume of bank acceptances has been rapid. On Aug. 31, 1918, the total acceptance liabilities of member banks of the Federal Reserve System were $522,000,000. The total for all banks in the country may well have been $750,000,000. Of our bank acceptances something over half are employed in foreign trade.

"We must take many a leaf from London's book. Our commodity markets must be made more liquid. Our stock market must be prepared to take foreign securities and must deal in a larger list of securities.

"We are far behind London in the range and scope of both commodity and stock dealings, although the volume is large. We need not feel called upon, however, to extend dollar exchange at the expense of our friends across the water. The recent break in sterling exchange gives America a great opportunity both to aid London and to extend dollar exchange throughout the world.

"Whether or not we displace England in the short-term money market in financing the actual shipment of goods from country to country, we have displaced her and all the pre-war creditor countries in supplying real capital, or long-time money, for the financing of industry and transportation. To accumulate long-time capital we must produce more in a year than we consume in a year. In saving capital our people will not merely be making individual profit, but they will also be performing services both to their country and to humanity of a vital sort. Civilization must be saved from poverty and economic shipwreck. The whole world looks to America."

Prudent Men Thrive

They do not follow a costly method inviting a loss, but adhere steadfastly to the profitable principle of providing against a loss.

Such men welcome the protection afforded by American Credit Insurance. By adopting this service of safety, prudence and wise economy, the difference between what they have and what they owe—their net worth—increases in the right way.

Every manufacturer and jobber, whatever the size of his business, should have the service and protection which the American provides for a small and fixed charge. Our new booklet, "A Billion of Business", will be sent free upon request. Get a copy.

Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, the largest city in South America and next to Paris the largest Latin city in the world, is the capital of the Argentine Republic. This magnificent centre of commerce and social activity has in recent years overtaken three large European capitals. In 1910 the population was 1,272,000, and in this same year there were 10,000 factories in the city.

The rapid growth of Buenos Aires has necessitated constant enlargement and improvement of port facilities. Its total foreign trade in 1916 was $440,168,000, of which $176,982,000 were imports and $263,186,000 exports. Exports consist principally of wool, leather and grain, with one-fifth of its total exports going to Great Britain. 60% of Argentine's foreign trade is handled through Buenos Aires.

SAY STRIKE WILL CONTINUE.

Tidewater Boatmen Return, Others Are Still Out—Owners Hopeful.

Leaders of the horbar strike asserted yesterday that the return to work of more than one-quarter of the strikers who belonged to the Tidewater Boatmen's Union would not prevent the strike of the other harbor workers from going forward.

Thomas L. Delahunty and other officials of the Marine Workers' Affiliation said that the demand for a basic eight-hour day still stood and that the boat owners would not be allowed to settle with the other striking organizations on a different basis from the agreement with the Railroad Administration.

Private boat owners believed that the lighter and tugboat Captains and engineers were likely to accept compromise terms and go back to work without insisting on the eight-hour day. The boat owners have offered this class of harbor workers a ten-hour day, with time and a half for overtime, and wage increases which, it is said, would addd to their monthly incomes by about 25 per cent. Leaders of the lighter Captains and engineers denied yesterday that they were ready to accept these increases.

Paul Bonynge, counsel for the New York Boat Owners' Association, said yesterday: "As a result of the capitulation of the tidewater boatmen the strike will be over within a short time. It apappears to be the beginning of the end. This move on the part of the tidewater men fully alleviates the danger of coal shortage."

Health Commissioner Copeland said yesterday, after interviews with the strike leaders, that no definite plan had been reached for the towing of garbage to sea, but that the strikers had agreed to help the city in every way possible. He said that the Department of Health was prepared to commandeer tugs, if necessary, in the interests of the health of the city.

PAPER BY WOMEN A FAILURE

Men Take Over Atlantic City Daily After Eight Months' Experiment.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 31.—After a trial of eight months the experiment of having a newspaper edited, managed and printed entirely by women has proved to be a failure, and it was announced today that the next issue of The Evening Union, which is owned by Governor Edge, would come out under the guidance of a man.

Since last August the editorial, news, and advertising forces of the paper have been composed entirely of college women. The chief cause of failure is said to be that the editors and reporters failed to develop "news sense."

Office of the Vice-President

Island Oil & Transport Corporation

TO THE HOLDERS OF VOTING TRUST CERTIFICATES FOR STOCK OF THE ISLAND OIL & TRANSPORT CORPORATION:

As set forth in the Annual Report issued under date of January 15th last, your company is increasing its pipe line and shipping facilities with a view to the handling of upward of 10,000,000 barrels of oil annually. After having made careful investigation, your directors are convinced that, in addition to the very profitable business in crude oil shipments, your company should follow the example of the other large producers operating in the same territory and take advantage of the additional profits to be obtained through the extraction of gasoline, fuel oil and by-products. Other companies have demonstrated that the refining profits greatly exceed the profits made in the production and sale of crude oil. In view of the fact that your company now has a potential production of over 35,000,000 barrels of oil annually, these plans for diversifying and increasing the company's products need in no way restrict the company's shipments of crude oil.

For the purpose of accomplishing these objects the "Island Refining Corporation" has been organized under the laws of the State of Virginia, with the following authorized capitalization:

$6,000,000 Seven Per Cent. and Participating Ten-Year Gold Bonds to be dated April 15, 1919, and to mature April 15, 1929.

In addition to interest at the rate of 7% per annum, holders of the Seven Per Cent. and Participating Ten-Year Gold Bonds will be entitled to a pro rata share of an annual distribution of 20% of the net earnings (after deducting sinking fund requirements) of the Corporation for the preceding calendar year.

The Island Refining Corporation will construct (itself or through subsidiary companies) on sites now being obtained, three plants with a combined capacity of 5,400,000 barrels of crude oil per annum. One plant will be erected at Palo Blanco (about eighty miles south of Tampico, Mexico), adjacent to the terminal and loading station of the Island Oil & Transport Corporation, another on the Island of Cuba, and the third in the United States adjacent to the Gulf Coast. The Mexican and Cuban plants will produce gasoline and fuel oil. The plant in the United States will be equipped to produce gasoline, gas oil and coke.

The bonds will be secured by a direct first mortgage on the American plant to be constructed and owned by the Refining Corporation, and by the pledge of all the stock of the company owning the Mexican plant, and by not less than two-thirds of the stock of the company owning the Cuban plant.

All of the stock of the Island Refining Corporation is to be acquired and owned by the Island Oil & Transport Corporation and therefore all surplus earnings, after interest, sinking fund and bondholders' participation therein, will accrue to your company.

For the purpose of obtaining funds for the construction, equipment and operation of the plants, and for working capital, the Island Refining Corporation will sell $4,500,000 (principal amount) of its Seven Per Cent. and Participating Ten-Year Gold Bonds.

Application can be made at this office for further information regarding the new company and its bonds.

Holders of Voting Trust Certificates for Stock of the Island Oil & Transport Corporation, at the close of business on April 7, 1919, will be entitled to subscribe for said bonds at the price of 92½% of the principal, in the proportion of $100 principal amount of bonds for each 50 shares of stock represented by Voting Trust Certificates.

The bonds will be issued in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000. Subscriptions for bonds must be for amounts in multiples of $100.

Subscription warrants, specifying the amount of bonds to which holders of Voting Trust Certificates are entitled to subscribe, will be mailed as soon as possible after the closing of the books on April 7, 1919. Fractional warrants will be issued in respect of fractions of 50 shares of stock, good for subscriptions when tendered in amounts of $100 or multiples thereof. Holders of Voting Trust Certificates, desiring to acquire additional fractional warrants to complete subscription privileges for a full bond or desiring to dispose of their fractional warrants, must do so in the market.

Payments for bonds, at the rate of $92.50 per each $100 of bonds, accompanied by duly endorsed subscription warrants, must be made on or before April 15, 1919, at the office of A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., 62 Cedar Street, New York City.

Pending the authorization, preparation and issue of the bonds, interim certificates or receipts will be issued exchangeable for the bonds when ready for delivery.

A Syndicate has been formed which has underwritten the offer of the bonds, and any bonds not taken by the shareholders will be sold to said Syndicate.

(Signed) F. B. LASHER, Vice-President.

Kelly Says Stocks in Europe Are Gradually Waning.

C. F. Kelly, President of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and Chairman of the committee representing the Copper Export Association which has just returned from abroad after an extended organization trip which began early in January, said yesterday that the investigation of the statistical position and the industrial conditions in Great Britain, France, Italy, and the Central Powers, as far as nonferrous metals were concerned, and with particular reference to copper, was satisfactorily accomplished. In addition to Mr. Kelly the other members of the committee who made the trip were J. C. Clendennin, Vice President of the American Smelting and Refining Company; R. L. Agassiz, President of the Calumet and Hecla Mining Company, and Walter Douglas, President of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation.

"Stocks of copper," said Mr. Kelly, "while apparently large, are concentrated in the hands of the respective allied Governments; Germany, and what was formerly Austria, have completely exhausted their respective stocks and will undoubtedly be in the market for large quantities of copper, as soon as trade restrictions are removed. The copper-consuming industries in the allied countries are without stocks of metal. Government stocks are being used and will be very much reduced in the near future by distribution among the consumers, who are now doing a fair business. The solution of labor difficulties and the transformation of industrial plants and transport systems from a war to a peace basis are the factors that are impeding the resumption of business.

"Great Britain, France, and Italy have extensive and ambitious plans under consideration for the electrification of railways, and for the construction of centrally located plants from which electric power will be transmitted to manufacturing and industrial concerns. These installations, together with the immediate necessity for the replacement and rehabilitation of peace industries, will provide an enlarged demand for the product of American mines."

CITIES SERVICE REPORT.

Company Shows Earnings of $22,280,067 for the Year.

The pamphlet report of the Cities Service Company for 1918, which has just been issued, shows net earnings of $31,428,222, which was equivalent to 9.47 per cent. on the total capitalization and indebtedness outstanding in the hands of the public plus the combined net surplus, compared with 9.22 per cent. in the preceding year.

The report also shows that earnings from oil operations throughout the year increased substantially notwithstanding restrictions caused by the war. The company's leasing campaign was carried on while drilling operations were held to a minimum because of high costs and scarcity of labor and materials.

Earnings accruing to the company from public utility operations in 1918 were $4,229,563, and from oil operations $18,050,504, making a total of $22,280,067. This compares with $4,742,652 from public utilities and $14,509,841 from oil operations in 1917, a total of $19,252,493.

MAY RAISE FARES IF FOUND NECESSARY

HEDGES STAYS AS RECEIVER

Burr Urges Lower Rentals Instead of Raise in Fare or Change in Transfers.

Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer yesterday issued an order appointing Job E. Hedges permanent receiver of the New York Railways Company. William P. Burr, the City Corporation Counsel, did not oppose the order, but appeared to urge that the financial difficulties of the company be met by reducing the rentals it pays to the companies from which it leases street railway lines and not by abolishing transfers or raising fares.

Judge Mayer thanked Corporation Counsel Burr for his offer to co-operate and added that the question of fares, transfers, and rentals would be determined in accordance with the facts developed under the receivership. If it were found that the elimination of transfers, or the increase of fares, were necessary to keep transportation systems in New York alive, Judge Mayer said that the people of the city would favor this remedy.

"In respect to the financial situation," said Judge Mayer, "I have been extremely careful to say nothing on the much-mooted question as to the increase of fares. When all the facts are clearly understood, then it will be found out what is the right thing to do. If increases of fare are unnecessary, all will understand it. If increases of fare prove to be necessary after full and fair discussion, I am convinced that the public of New York is so fair and reasonable that it will not hesitate in making it known that it desires the remedy of increased fares to be adopted."

Corporation Counsel Burr asked that, if it were contemplated that the transfer system should be done away with, a public hearing on the subject should be held. He submitted diagrams showing the system of transfers and the leasing arrangements now in existence, and in an affidavit intended for the information of the court said:

"The special purpose of the deponent in appearing upon behalf of the city at this time is to ask that if the court continue the receivership that it will take prompt and immediate measures to preserve the present unity of the defendant's railway system, as prayed for in the complaint, as well as in the defendant's answer, and as a necessary incident thereto to preserve and safeguard the present universal system of free transfers in the interest of the traveling public.

"While making the most strenuous appeals to the municipal authorities on the alleged ground of dire financial distress for increases of the existing 5-cent rate of fare, the street railway companies of this city, including the defendant, have nevertheless up till now never been willing to apply to the Board of Estimate for new short-term grants limited to the charter period, in which temporary rate increases, to tide over war conditions, might possibly have been stipulated, in conjunction with other provisions looking to ultimate municipal ownership. The enactment of a law that will permit the commission to strengthen these municipal 5-cent fare perpetual franchises by granting increases, though based on the alleged value of these properties, will tend to subvert the charter policy and is therefore earnestly opposed by the city.

"It may be well that this receiver, exercising his honest judgment, will reach the conclusion that a scaling down of existing high rentals in leases and other economies, coupled with the continuation of the existing universal 5-cent rate of fare, will be the wisest and the safest policy for him to try to put in effect. If, however, he reaches the conclusion that it is in the interest of the creditors and security holders for whom he is the custodian, to apply to the authorities duly constituted under State law for permission to charge an increased rate of fare, certainly he will stand in a much stronger and more equitable position when he comes to make that application, if the record of his receivership will show his sincere and consistent effort to co-operate with the city authorities in seeking in the meantime to prevent a disruption and disintegration of the system by the abrogation of leases and attendant transfer rights."

The Corporation Counsel asserted that the New York Railways Company was paying excessive rentals to the companies from which the lines were leased. In one case he said a rental was paid which produced a profit of 26 per cent. for the company owning the physical property. His affidavit continues:

"Invoking the doctrine which has grown up in connection with receiverships, of the right of the receiver to elect to refuse to adopt unprofitable contracts of his insolvent debtor, the receiver would thereupon (should his course be modeled after that of past receiverships) apply to this court for a reasonable period, say of six months or thereabouts, within which to elect as to which of these leases he should adopt and which of these leases he should refuse to adopt. During this probationary period, any lessor company whose rent is not paid (and probably the receiver would have to move very slowly, indeed, in paying any of these rentals) would consult the provisions of its contract of lease as to its right, by reason of the failure to receive rent upon the stipulated date, to exercise its right of re-entry.

"While the Supreme Court of the United States has repeatedly declared that considerations of the public interest should be paramount in the administration of a railroad by a court of equity, nevertheless the actual practice up to very recent years has been such as to make it scarcely feasible or possible for the court to protect the interests of the public, in the case of a street surface system built up on a basis of leased lines, with privileges of free transfer. This is so for the reason that there has been no public service statute vesting a commission with powers adequate zealously to safeguard and enforce the interests of the traveling public, nor have the official authorities of municipalities up to very recent years been alive to or sought to exercise whatever powers they possess under the Constitution or by statute to protect the people of the city in respect of their transportation privileges."

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Following the lead of many banking and commercial houses in the financial district that have purchased, since the close of the war, the buildings they have occupied for years as tenants, the Canadian Bank of Commerce yesterday signed contracts to buy the Post Building at the junction of Beaver and Hanover Streets and Exchange place.

The property which was sold by the Post Building Company consists of an eight-story structure with frontages of 93.2 on Beaver Street, 53.4 on Hanover and 35.4 on Exchange Place. It was held at about $650,000. Title to the property will be passed to the bank, thus ending a tenancy of close to forty years, as the bank was one of the first important tenants of the building when it was completed in 1880.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce, which now has 460 agencies, all of which are in Canada except those in New York, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Mexico City, London, Eng., and St. John, N. B., with resources aggregating more than $440,000,000, opened its first branch in this city at 50 Wall Street on Feb. 21, 1872, in charge of J. G. Harper and J. H. Goadby. It then had eighteen agencies with resources less than $15,000,000.

At the time of its removal in 1880 to the Post Building, where it has been ever since, the bank had thirty-three agencies and total resources of $31,000,000. The present agents are Frederick B. Francis and J. A. C. Kemp. Mr. Francis stated yesterday that the bank did not contemplate any immediate improvement to the property just purchased.

ACCOUNTANTS NEEDED,

MEN AND WOMEN.

I want to hear from bookkeepers, cashiers, school teachers, office workers, stenographers and all capable men and women, either with or without bookkeeping experience, who are ambitious to get into higher accounting positions paying

The readjustment of commerce and industry to a peace basis, the reconstruction and reorganization of American business along more efficient lines, the more scientific analysis of costs to meet domestic and world competition and the necessity for accurate income and excess profits tax reports to the Government have created thousands of new and attractive opportunities for permanent positions in the higher accounting field.

At present we can supply only in a very limited way students and members to fill the numerous requests being received for cost accountants, auditors, junior and senior accountants, comptrollers, &c., &c. Government and business demands have exhausted the available supply of trained men and women.

So, our organization, having the largest staff of accounting and business efficiency experts in the world, is making every possible effort to help meet this unusual situation, and to that end I will interview men or women who desire to qualify for these positions by taking individual home training. This can be done without interfering with their present employment.

APPLICANTS WHO ARE ACCEPTED

will be placed under the direct personal supervision of one of our staff of certified public accountants and thoroughly trained in the special knowledge and practical procedure necessary to qualify for important accounting work.

Address for interview, giving age, position, education and telephone number, A. C. S., Post Office Box 63, Times Square Station.

A downtown group is forming to follow this course. Meetings will be held Wednesdays at 5:30 P. M. in the auditorium at 115 Fulton Street. The course starts April 9.

You want to know "How will the study of Foreign Trade benefit me?" You will find the answer in the booklet, "Foreign Trade, Today's Opportunity." Send for it. Your business address, please.

HYLAN'S PHYSICIAN MAY GET HEALTH JOB

STATEMENT BY COPELAND

Present Commissioner Formally Announces Intention to Resign in Near Future.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Commissioner of Health, in a statement issued yesterday, said he intended to resign "within a reasonable time" in order to return to private practice. His statement led to the report that Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Mayor Hylan's private physician, would be Dr. Copeland's successor. Dr. Copeland said he knew nothing of this.

The name of Dr. Monaghan has cropped up whenever the position of Health Commissioner has been vacant. When Mayor Hylan took office it was reported that Dr. Monaghan would be his Health Commissioner. Dr. J. Lewis Amster was appointed, and when he resigned, charging, among other things, that Mayor Hylan had attempted to issue orders to him through Dr. Monaghan, the name of the latter was again mentioned for the vacancy.

In his statement yesterday Commissioner Copeland said:

"I intend to resign from the office of Health Commissioner, but my resignation is not yet in the hands of the Mayor. There is no hurry about the matter and I will continue in the position until the Mayor has the opportunity of picking my successor.

"When I accepted the position of Health Commissioner I did so through patriotic motives. The war is now over and no such condition exists. It is no easy job to look after the welfare of so many people.

"I held the position at the sacrifice of more than $1,000 per month and I have made up my mind to look after my personal self in the near future. The Department is in excellent condition and my resignation is purely from personal motives."

It was rumored yesterday that Dr. Copeland would resign on April 30, and when asked if he would leave by the end of the month he said that it would probably be more than a month before he left his post.

Adding to his statement Commissioner Copeland said that his resignation was not prompted by criticisms of his department. Ever since the accession of Mayor Hylan the Health Department has been a storm centre of criticism. When Mayor Hylan demanded of Health Commissioner Amster that he abolish forthwith the specialized bureaus of the department, public interest in the latter centred itself in an agitation on the part of civic, social, and labor organizations which led to the abandonment of the plan.

Mayor Hylan was committed to the plan of borough autonomy when he entered office and a plan of borough autonomy has been carried out under the direction of Commissioner Copeland. There was strenuous opposition to the plan of borough autonomy by Dr. S. S. Goldwater and other experts. Dissatisfaction was also expressed by labor and civic organizations and by individuals on the separation of the Division of Industrial Hygiene from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases as well as on the Commissioner's handling of the influenza epidemic.

FUND FOR PHILLIPS EXETER.

Alumni to Raise $2,000,000 to Enlarge and Strengthen Academy.

Plans were made at a meeting of representatives of the Alumni of Phillips Exeter Academy at the D. K. E. Club, 30 West Forty-fourth Street, last night, to raise a fund of $2,000,000 for the enlargement of the school and the increase of its revenue.

Letters were sent out last night to 6,000 alumni asking that subscriptions be sent to the New York office of the alumni at 25 Nassau Street. One million dollars is to be set aside to increase the income of the school and $1,000,000 to be used for the building of a student infirmary, a student union and additional dormitories.

It was announced that among those supporting the movement are Thomas W. Lamont, William Boyce Thompson, George A. Plimpton, Ogden Mills, Dr. D. H. McAlpin, C. W. McAlpin, Arthur H. Lockett, William R. Barbour, D. Q. Brown, and John C. McCall. Plans for a campaign for funds among the alumni were laid more than two years ago, but were suspended because of the war.

TO TRY FRICKE FOR TREASON

American Citizen of German Birth is Charged with Aiding Spy.

Albert Paul Fricke, an American citizen of German birth, will be placed on trial for treason in the Federal District Court tomorrow morning. This is the first case involving treason to the United States in time of war to be brought to trial in this district since April, 1917. Judge Julius M. Mayer will preside at the Fricke trial, and the Government prosecutor will be De Lancey Nicoll. Thomas J. O'Neill is Fricke's lawyer.

Before this country entered the war Fricke was the American agent of a German toy and block making concern. He is charged with having aided and abetted the activities of Commander Hermann Wessells of the German Navy, who the Government alleges came to this country in the Winter of 1917 to act as an official spy for the German Government. Fricke is also charged with having been identified with the financing of Wessells's activities.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 31.—Fist fights and rough-house tactics marked the closing hours today of the wildest Mayoralty campaign in the history of Chicago. On the eve of the election the managers for Mayor William Hale Thompson, Robert Sweitzer, and Maclay Hoyne are all claiming victory. Sweitzer's backers say he will win by more than 150,000; Hoyne's camp sticks to 100,000 as the majority that will sweep the independent candidate into office. Thompson headquarters modestly figure his Honor's margin at 50,000; the Mayor himself says it will be 200,000.

Betting favors Sweitzer, the Democratic nominee. It is reported that his backers have been offering 6 to 5. A big Thompson pool, which was to have been thrown into the betting ring today, failed to materialize.

Miss Kate Turtherford, a former Thompson worker, who was speaking for Hoyne today at a sidewalk meeting, was assaulted by a man wearing a Sweitzer button, who disappeared in the crowd before the police could arrest him.

There is more interest in the election than for many years, and a record vote is expected. It is believed that more than 700,000 ballots will be cast. There will be 35,000 workers of the major candidates watching the polls to prevent any crookedness. In addition, the Labor Party will have 5,000 men on hand on its own account. The Mayor last night offered $1,000 to any one detecting pollution of the ballot box.

DINE HEAD OF WISE FUND.

Daniel P. Hays Gets Loving Cup for Work for American Judaism.

Daniel P. Hays, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Isaac M. Wise Centenary New York Campaign, was the guest of honor at a luncheon yesterday given by the Administrative Committee at the Lawyers' Club, in recognition of his work in the campaign.

Among those who spoke of the services of Mr. Hays in the conduct of the campaign were Philip J. Goodhart, Honorary Chairman, and Ludwig Vogelstein, Vice Chairman. Ben Altheimer, Vice Chairman, on behalf of the Administrative Committee, gave Mr. Hays a loving cup in honor of his work for American Judaism. Another cup was given to David M. Bressler, Director of the New York campaign.

Telegrams congratulating Mr. Hays and the other members of the organization were received from Jacob H. Schiff at White Sulphur Springs and from J. Walter Freiberg, National Chairman of the campaign.

CAPTAIN INDICTED FOR MURDER AT SEA

RETURNS 7 OTHER COUNTS

Officers of Barkentine Puako Accused of Felonious Assault and Maltreatment of Crew.

Captain Adolph C. Pedersen of the American barkentine Puako, and his son, Adolph E. Pedersen, second mate, were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of murder on the high seas. Adolph, the son, and another son, Leonard, who was first mate, were also indicted for felonious assault and maltreatment of the crew of the Puako during a trip from Victoria, B. C., to Cape Town, which began April 27 and ended Aug. 27, 1918.

When the crew arrived at Cape Town complaints were lodged with the American Consul, who placed the Pedersens under arrest and shipped them to Brest for further shipment to these shores. The murder charge is based on the death of Axel Hansen, a seaman, who cast himself into the sea on Aug. 6, and who later asked to be picked up. The Captain, it is alleged, refused to aid him and Hansen clung to the log rope until his strength failed and he was drowned.

On divers days, says the indictment, between May 4 and Aug. 6 the defendants, with intent to cause Hansen's death, beat him, gave him insufficient food, and inflicted upon him other cruel punishment, which so affected his mind and body that, fearing for his life and being unable to escape, he cast himself into the sea. When he called for help the defendants "did neglect and refuse to render aid, help, and assistance" and he was left to drown.

Seven other indictments against the defendants charge them with other lesser crimes. The defendants will plead today.

Towing Disabled Steamer Here.

Transportation Facts Are Established

For sound, practical reasons and the best use of your money, why not make an attempt to verify the facts before deciding whether you will spend two or three thousand dollars for an ordinary automobile, or invest in a Twin Six Packard with all that a Packard can give you

A LEADING transportation expert has said that most automobiles are built on theory and bought on personal opinion.

Transportation is now a science. It is a science that applies to your own car whether it carries you across the Continent or merely from your home to your office or serves your family or friends in their daily activities.

It is only by treating the problem as a whole that we get the facts.

For example, a man may have his eye filled by economy of gasoline and tires, and he may throw away more on engine tinkering than he saves on both these items.

He may get lightness at the expense of safety or dragging weight at a heavy up-keep charge.

If he gets power when he wants it he may have to pay for it when he doesn't use it.

While passenger cars were bought as luxuries alone, it was difficult to get consideration for the facts.

When will the purchase of the family car be regarded as a business transaction?

The Packard people are transportation experts; they have more to tell you on this subject than any other organization in the world. You can ask them to discuss your car problem without obligation. It is to your interest and profit to do so.
